Believed to Have Veto of Big Bills Under Consideration.

(Full details of the Yale-Harvard regatta will be found on the sports pages).

By Leon Dure, Jr.

New London, Conn., June 22.—After watching the Yale varsity crew defeat Harvard by three boat lengths on the 4-mile Thames River course this afternoon, President Roosevelt notified newsmen that he was going back to work tomorrow and would have some "big news."

Mr. Roosevelt watched Yale make it a clean sweep of this regatta day. This morning Yale won the freshman race by three-quarters of a length and the junior varsity by three.

The President, denied the happiness of seeing his alma mater win with his son, Franklin, jr., in the Harvard freshman shell, waved a good-natured greeting to cheering throngs on the boat train from his position on the foredeck of the referee's boat.

Vetoes Anticipated.

Between races, the President, on board the "floating White House" Sequoia, declined to elaborate on his "big news" announcement.

It was understood the news would deal with several Congressional measures, including the farm mortgage moratorium bill passed during the closing hours of the last Congress. Veto of some of the measures was anticipated tonight.

Tomorrow the Sequoia, after another night in the river, will dock here and the President will motor to Hyde Park, N. Y., his ancestral home on the Hudson, to spend the week-end before returning to Washington.

Perched precariously on the forward deck of the referee's launch, President Roosevelt rode down the Thames three times today to watch the machine-like oarsmen of Yale win.

Splendid Day.

During all three events, the President leaned forward intently in an armchair placed in the open bow in the launch and followed the grueling pace of the crews as they sped down a long lane of festive yachts.

"It was a splendid day," the President declared as he came aboard the Sequoia at nightfall. "I've been waiting for years to see the record

Gas Execution To Aid Science

Physicians to Perform Autopsy on Doomed Man's Body.

Canon City, Colo., June 22 (AP).—A score or more persons, including 15 Colorado physicians, gathered here to watch William Cody Kelley die in Colorado's new lethal gas chamber at sundown today.

The physicians hoped, through an autopsy on Kelley's body, to gain information about gas deaths to aid them in treating victims of mine disasters where gas is a contributing cause.

Kelley was sentenced to death for the murder of Russell Browning, Delta, Colo., hog raiser, in a robbery last October. He was calm today, in contrast to his frenzied shouts and hysterical mutterings during recent days and nights.

Crash of Building Traps 7 Children

Five Seriously Hurt as Old House Caves In.

Chicago, June 22 (AP).—Six boys and a girl were trapped beneath tons of brick and timbers today when a dilapidated two-story house, long since condemned as unsafe, tumbled down on them.

They had been playing in the vacant building, tearing and chopping away the 40-year-old walls for firewood, when the structure gave way. Thousands of spectators watched firemen digging through the ruins in a driving rain for two hours before they were satisfied all the victims had been removed.

U. S. Surveyor Killed.

Laramie, Wyo., June 22 (AP).—Davis Moore, 35, of Greenville, S. C., member of a Government Geodetic Survey party, was fatally wounded by a bullet fired accidentally last night by K. H. Waddell, of Syracuse, Kans., another member of the party.

MRS. JOSEPH FIDANQUE.

El Paso, Tex., June 22 (AP).—Mrs. Sibyl Fidanque, beautiful musician and 39-year-old wife of a Panama shipping man, was found in a hotel here today after a six-day search. She told of being kidnaped from her San Jose (Calif.) home at gun point by a man and a young woman, who drugged her.

She was identified at San Jose by her 20-year-old son, Jack Fidanque, after a telephone conversation with his mother here. The youth left immediately for El Paso by airplane.

The identification, which at first had been questioned by San Jose police, was strengthened by the announcement of Sheriff Chris F. Fox, of El Paso County, that a matron's examination showed the woman to bear body scars, which had been described by the California police as identification marks.

Mrs. Fidanque registered at the

Blonde Enters Death Riddle Of Lost Bride

N. Y. Police Seek Identity of Woman Capt. Poderjay Called Sister-in-Law.

New York, June 22.—Identification of a mysterious blonde, introduced by Ivan Poderjay as his sister-in-law, was sought by police tonight as they turned their inquiry to money and women in the search for new clews in the disappearance of Agnes Colonia Tufverson.

The blonde, Capt. John H. Ayres, of the missing persons bureau, believes, might have been Mlle. Susanne Ferrand, who is held with Poderjay in Vienna, and to whom he was married March 22, 1933, in London, nine months before he took Miss Tufverson as his bride.

If the blonde, known to have visited Miss Tufverson's apartment several times, was Mlle. Ferrand, a new picture of intrigue rises for police scrutiny. What would be Poderjay's purpose, officials asked, in having his wife nearby at a time he was being married to another woman?

Gave Him $5,000.

Capt. Ayres said a study of Miss Tufverson's bank account has revealed that she gave Poderjay a draft for $5,000 on a London bank shortly after they were married. In all, he said, she had $10,000, but what has happened to the missing $5,000 is not known.

Miss Tufverson, as a corporation attorney, earned $8,000 a year.

Besides the blonde and the vanished Miss Tufverson, two other women have been pitched into the widespread inquiry.

One was unidentified by Ayres, who said he had learned of her through a letter. It is believed this letter was found in Miss Tufverson's apartment.

The other is Helen E. Vogel, violinist, who came to know Poderjay

Former Official Sentenced.

Phoenix, Ariz., June 22 (AP).—Henry J. Sullivan, former city attorney, was sentenced by Judge Paul J. McCormick today to serve one year and a day in Federal Prison and pay a fine of $5,000 for income tax evasion.

Human Ashes May End War Over Millions

Casket Brought to Court by Widow of Man in Old Fraud Case.

Yakima, Wash., June 22 (AP).—A silver casket allegedly containing the ashes of Mrs. Sarah E. Smith Scollard, long-missing possessor of a fortune estimated as high as $14,000,000, was brought here today by the widow of Reese B. Brown, Yakima capitalist accused of having taken $5,000,000 from the wealthy woman.

The bizarre turn in the 5-year-old mystery came during the pendency of a suit by the guardian of Mrs. Scollard's estate against Brown's estate, charging the latter took $5,000,000 from the wealthy woman while acting as her attorney and while she was mentally incompetent.

Mrs. Brown said she found the casket among the private effects of her husband only yesterday, and that she did not know why he had kept the matter a secret.

Accompanying the casket were papers stating Mrs. Scollard, who had been known as "the Hetty Green of La Salle street" because of a spectacular career in real estate operations in Chicago, died in Montreal, Que., July 24, 1932, of pneumonia.

Mrs. Scollard was about 63 when she disappeared in April, 1928. A $500,000 deposit in her name in a Seattle bank was withdrawn about the same time. She was seen last in Portland, Oreg., in company with

N. J. Boy, 16, Arrested For Kidnaping Threat

Newark, N. J., June 22 (AP).—A 16-year-old high school boy was taken into custody by police and Federal authorities as the writer of a note demanding $500 from Meyer M. Rubin, druggist, on threat of kidnaping one of Rubin's two children. Department of Justice Agent Robert W. Austin said the boy's name was Walter Ancypowie.

Austin said the boy admitted he sent the letter on May 24 to see how "the wheels of the police department turned."

Experiments on Rats May Help Man Conquer the Stratosphere

Berkeley, Calif., June 22 (AP). Experiments on albino rats that demonstrated the huuman body is able to store oxygen, and may help show men how they can condition themselves for flights into the stratosphere, were reported here today before the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Profs. Harold B. Robertson and Francis Marsh Baldwin, University of Southern California physiologists, told of the experiment.

The Southern California researchers reached the conclusions that the body could store oxygen by supplying the rats with more than normal amounts of pure oxygen and then shutting off the supply to far below the normal requirements and observing that they could subsist for a considerable period during which otherwise they would have perished.

This, they held, warranted the conclusion that if aviators could remain in an atmosphere of oxygen for about an hour before attempting an altitude flight, they would be able to endure heights hitherto impossible.

It was predicted that if given suitable oxygen treatments in advance to wash nitrogen out of the body, a pilot with breathing apparatus might rise to 50,000 or 55,000 feet. At Southern California it was also found that males were much better able to withstand low pressures than females.

Paris Warns Reich of Debt Retaliations

German Fund Seizure May Follow Default of Loan Payments.

Britain Expresses Hope of Agreement by July 1.

Paris, June 22 (U.P.).—France is prepared to establish a clearing house similar to that of Britain to seize German funds and protect Frenchmen against the Reich's moratorium, it was indicated tonight.

The foreign secretary issued a communique declaring that France has taken "necessary measures" to be put into effect if Germany's "payments on the Dawes and Young plan loans are not made."

"The measures will be effective only if an agreement is not reached before July 1," the communique said.

Britain Moves for Accord.

London, June 22 (U.P.).—The government sent Germany a note two days ago indicating Britain would refrain from setting up a clearing house to seize German cash against the Reich's moratorium if an agreement can be reached before July 1 protecting British interests, it was revealed tonight.

A "white paper" was issued containing Germany's June 15 moratorium note on all foreign obligations, and the reply of Sir John Simon, foreign secretary. The latter expressed readiness to discuss the possibility of an agreement to protect British creditors during the six months the standstill decree on debts is in effect.

Sir John suggested Germany immediately send a representative to London to discuss a settlement.

Interest 2% of Export Income.

He pointed out that receipts for German exports averaged the Reich 350,000,000 to 400,000,000 marks (about $133,000,000 to $152,000,000) a month, and consequently the interest on the Dawes and Young plan loans represents only around 2 per cent of the gross foreign exchange income to Germany, from all sources.

Berlin, June 22 (U.P.).—The Reichsbank tonight announced that beginning Monday the total foreign exchange allowed importers would be fixed daily, not to exceed the proceeds from exports. The requirements in raw materials and foodstuffs will be given priority.

Strikers Plan Ship Embargo

Threaten to Tie Up Ships Loaded at Seattle by Nonunion Men.

San Francisco, June 22 (AP).—A threat to lay down an embargo in Europe, Australia and the Atlantic Coast on all ships loaded at Seattle by nonunion men was made today by the striking maritime workers as preparations went forward for a general opening of Northwest ports under police protection.

Meanwhile the strikers' committee in San Francisco telegraphed to Secretary of Labor Perkins at Washington, declaring they already had conceded points to the employers in efforts to settle the walkout, which began May 9.

W. T. Morris, of Tacoma, speaking for the Northwest Joint Strike Committee of Maritime Workers, declared arrangements had been been completed in foreign ports for the embargo on Seattle shipping if opening of the Seattle port succeeded.

About 350 officers guarded pier 40 at Seattle while preparations were being made to load the British motorship Modavia. At Portland the gasoline tanker Lio was discharging 1,500,000 gallons of fuel under police guard.

Drinking Places' Portals Opened To Policemen

Policemen now may enter the heretofore forbidden portals of liquor establishments.

Since liquor became legal they have been faced with the prospect of Trial Board action if found within the drinking places.

But so many restaurants have obtained liquor and beer licenses that the policemen were unable to buy meals without running the risk of violating the regulations.

In the past they have been allowed to enter only in the performance of duty. Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen yesterday rescinded the order, but they still are forbidden to drink on duty.

As a result, Superintendent of Police Ernest W. Brown is expected to withdraw charges against Patrolman W. L. Morris, of the Second Precinct, who was to be brought before the Trial Board for entering a restaurant which held a liquor license.

Power Executive Dies.

F.R.M'Ninch Reappointed Power Chief

Virginia Dam Projects Challenges U. S. Lease Rights.

(Associated Press.)

Frank R. McNinch yesterday was renamed Federal Power Commission chairman by President Roosevelt, an appointment that by chance coincided with a new challenge to the power claims of the Federal Government.

In reappointing McNinch to a five-year term, Mr. Roosevelt ignored the demand of Senator Bailey (Democrat), North Carolina, that McNinch, who opposed the election of the Democratic Presidential nominee of 1928, Alfred E. Smith, be dropped from appointive office.

The Appalachian Electric Power Co., meanwhile, notified the Power Commission that it intended to proceed with construction of a dam on the New River, in Virginia. The commission, in a previous case involving the same company, had contended the Federal Government had control not only over power plants on the navigable portions of streams, but over their nonnavigable headquarters.

Upon the outcome of the Appalachian's challenge may repose the question of whether the Federal Government can license or claim the right to lease power sites on many streams.

Writ May Be Sought.

Members of the Federal Power Commission indicated last night an application for an injunction to restrain the Appalachian from proceeding with its plan probably would be forthcoming. It was recalled such a petition was filed a fortnight ago against subsidiaries of the Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation, a concern proposing to build a dam about 40 miles down stream from the Appalachian project on the New River.

The reappointment of McNinch was viewed as forecasting a vigorous push by the Administration for rounding out all stages of the President's power-utility program.

Engaged in Wide Survey.

Under McNinch's chairmanship, the Power Commission has begun a three-fold schedule of studies, based on Mr. Roosevelt's power program.

Under order of the President, it is engaged in a Nation-wide survey of all power sites.

Within the scope of this order came a report on a project long favored by the President—development of the resources of the international sector of the St. Lawrence River.

The commission also is making a comparison of electric rates for all principal communities of the country and a study of the costs of transmitting energy from hydro-electric plants.

For the first time in more than a year the membership of the Power Commission was completed recently. The last vacancy was filled by

Sister Saves Girl From Live Wire

Thrusts Stick Into Mouth; Pulls Her to Safety.

Fredericksburg, Va., June 22 (Spl.).—Using her wits in an emergency, an 11-year-old King George County girl yesterday saved her sister, 12, from electrocution when the girl's foot touched a 260-volt transmission line that had fallen across a road on the summer estate of Mrs. Langbourne M. Williams, of Richmond.

The girl heroine is Florence Blakely, daughter of the foreman of Mrs. Williams' estate. When her sister Daisy stepped on the wire she tried to pull her free, but the shock was so severe she was forced to release her. She then got a long stick and when her sister was too weak to seize it, forced it into Daisy's mouth. The almost unconscious girl gripped the stick with her teeth and was forced free of the charged wire.

Daisy was unconscious when a doctor reached her, but is expected to recover.

1,200 Mill Workers End Strike Monday

Columbus, Ga., June 22 (AP).—Approximately 1,200 textile workers, who have been on strike at the Eagle and Phenix Cotton Mill here for about three weeks, will return to their jobs Monday under terms of an agreement accepted today.

The agreement established machinery for settlement of minor complaints, which were partly responsible for the strike.

Texas Oil Man Draws 99 Years in Son's Death

Vernon, Tex., June 22 (AP).—Charles S. Richardson, former Olney mayor and prominent oil operator, was convicted by a jury today of slaying his son, Elga, 20, and sentenced to 99 years' imprisonment.

Elga, a student at North Texas Teachers College, at Denton, was fatally wounded last New Year's Day while home for the holidays. He told officers he and his father argued over the son's laundry.

Woodring Advised New Contract for Silverman, Col. McMullen Testifies

Three Felled by Heat; Rain to Cool City

Thundershowers Expected to Bring Some Relief Today; 93 Highest Mark Reached Yesterday.

While the mercury clung tenaciously to the nineties from noon to 6 p. m. yesterday the first heat prostrations of the summer were reported, three persons being overcome here during the afternoon.

After reaching 96 at 3:30 p. m. Thursday, the hottest of the present summer, the temperature dropped slowly until 73 was recorded at 6 a. m. today when a new rise began. It reached 89 at noon and from that period until 6 p. m. the mercury remained at 90 or above, the highest for the day being 93, recorded at 2:10 p. m.

Thundershowers today were expected to temper the heat, according to officials at the Weather Bureau.

Those overcome here yesterday were: Stephen Zimmerman, 54, of the 1400 block of N street, overcome at Eleventh and F streets; Frank Street, 34, of 2517 Seventeenth street northeast, stricken in the 1500 block on Gales street northeast, and Joseph Lutterloh, 39, colored, 1500 block of Fourth street, overcome at Second and H streets northeast.

Street and Lutterloh were given treatment at Casualty Hospital and Zimmerman was treated at Emergency Hospital. They were not believed to be in serious condition.

Government 'Waste' Rapped By Dickinson

G. O. P. Keynoter, Off for Iowa, Fires Parting Shot.

In a parting shot at what he termed Government "waste and extravagance," Senator L. J. Dickinson, of Iowa, Republican National convention keynoter, declared last night "this country can not exist half victimized and half subsidized."

Leaving Washington for Iowa, the persistent critic of Administration policies charged an "utter disregard of those in charge of the affairs of today with reference to expenditures and their effect on recovery in the morrow."

"With expenditures now listed and authorizations creating obligations against the Treasury amounting to approximately $14,000,000,000 in the second session of this Congress, and with the further fact that the public debt has now reached $27,000,000,000, it is certainly time for the American people to at least stop, look and listen," he said.

"Emergency" Is Now Normalcy.

In a sardonically worded statement, he asked that members of the "brain trust" be dispatched over the country "telling how they are creating distress by attempting to relieve distress."

An emergency is no longer an emergency when extended over a long period of time, but an actual condition, argued the Iowa Senator, in one of the first Republican precampaign blasts.

He charged the Government is assuming every obligation for the individual, for the corporation and for business.

"It is an easy matter to convert the farmer to a relief program as long as he can draw a per diem and a mileage expense account for operating his Ford," said Senator Dickinson.

"These expenses do not extend to one class of people, but to many. At the present time we have reports of the waste of funds and the indictment of public officials in numerous States of the Union.

Must Explain Promises.

"This waste is bound to continue as long as we have the haphazard method now in vogue of trying to do everything for everybody through a bureau in Washington, D. C. As long as this method continues, it means continued waste, and continued extravagance. The American people should realize that if they receive a dollar from the Treasury of the United States, the

Kvale Urges Probe of NRA Ford Boycott

House Military Committee Asked to Submit Data to President.

An investigation of the Government's refusal to permit Henry Ford to bid on automobile and truck contracts because he refused to sign an NRA compliance certificate was urged last night by Representative Paul Kvale (Farmer-Labor), Minnesota.

He said he expected to ask the House Military Affairs sub-committee, of which he is a member and which is investigating War Department dealings, to inquire into the Ford case.

This development followed action adverse to Ford from two Government agencies earlier this week. The RFC announced that its direct loans to industry would not be available to concerns which had not signed up with NRA or which bought from nonsigners. The Federal Radio Commission received from one of its examiners a report recommending against renewal of three experimental radio licenses owned by the automobile maker.

"I hold no particular brief for Henry Ford," said Kvale, "but I do believe that a vital element of competition has been removed from the Government supply picture in refusing to permit him to bid on Government contracts. That action has boosted the price paid by the Army, the Postoffice and other Government departments buying motor supplies from $50 to $100 per car."

Kvale said he would like the committee to go into every phase of the controversy over Henry Ford's reasons for not signing the NRA code, so that the President might have complete information on which to base conclusions. He said he understood one of Ford's reasons was that the code could be altered by the President without consulting the industry.

NRA doors remain open to Ford, should he decide to seek a Blue Eagle or file a certificate of compliance with codes, officials said yesterday.

The possibility that Ford might elect to heal his long breach with the recovery unit was revived following announcement by the RFC that it would not countenance expenditure of funds it loans private enterprise on machinery, equipment or services from any firm failing to submit certificates of code compliance.

However, Ford has refused to join NRA ever since its creation and NRA officials have received no intimations of any change of heart.

Bottled Rum Sale to Midnight Allowed, Public Mixin' Refused

Bottled liquors and beer now may be sold until midnight, it was ordained yesterday by the District Commissioners at the suggestion of the Alcoholic Beverage Control board.

At the same time, the Commissioners rejected the board's recommendation that drinks be mixed in public view, instead of behind screens as now required.

Sales until midnight of all beverages in bottle form will become legal after the new regulation has been advertised for five days. Until the expiration of this period, sales will be prohibited after 10 p. m.

The Commissioners also enunciated a policy against prescribing a "dry" area in any section of the city, and declared that each application must be given individual consideration.

This decision was caused by a plea of citizens of the Takoma Park section, which asked that the neighborhood be prescribed "dry," and that licenses for sales of all alcoholic beverages be forbidden.

The extension of time in which bottled liquor and beer may be sold was the second within a month. It already had been shifted from 8 p. m. to 10 p. m. The ruling applies only to "off sale" establishments. All holders of licenses for consumption on the premises may sell until 2 a. m., except on Saturday, when midnight is the closing hour.

Refusal of the Commissioners to permit mixing drinks and beer drawing in public view was based on their belief that it would result in conditions resembling the old-time barroom, to which President Roosevelt had registered objection.

Liquor board offices are being deluged with applications for licenses in residential areas, which were forbidden under the original liquor law, but which now may be secured as a result of an amendment to the law.

Congress Probers Told of Concessions on Army Goods.

Latter Denies Any Secrecy in Affair

Merely Asked to Aid Firms "in Distress," Statement Says.

By Frank Getty.

The trading activities of Joseph Silverman, jr., subject to scrutiny recently by both houses of Congress, the Department of Justice and a grand jury, were aired on the Hill again yesterday.

Col. Joseph I. McMullen, under fire before a House investigating committee, testified to having drawn up contracts last February to enable the New York trader to deal more favorably with the War Department in the matter of surplus clothing.

The contracts, also designed to aid the Newbury Manufacturing Co., of Boston, Mass., a client of Robert Jackson, former secretary of the Democratic National committee, were prepared at the order of Assistant Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring, McMullen testified.

Committee members professed to find something "peculiar" in the changes ordered by the Assistant Secretary of War, which had the effect of enabling the Silverman and Newbury firms to dispose of surplus Army goods in the United States.

Woodring Denies Secrecy.

Woodring, however, issued a statement yesterday afternoon, saying there was nothing peculiar or secret about the affair.

McMullen, who is on the Judge Advocate General's staff, said he received Jackson and Ralph O'Neill, Silverman's attorney and former American Legion National commander, at his Battery Park home in February.

The colonel, who may face criminal charges as a result of his admission that he accepted fees from firms for legal services while on active duty, said all his activities in connection with surplus goods were at Woodring's request. On Thursday, McMullen refused to testify regarding the meeting at his home with Jackson and O'Neill, but changed his mind overnight.

"Why do you now testify on this matter, when yesterday you asserted it might tend to incriminate you," asked Chairman Rogers (Democrat), New Hampshire.

"I was a little mad yesterday, and flew off the handle," replied the witness.

Hash Sent as Substitute.

It was at first proposed to invite Woodring to appear before the committee, which is investigating alleged irregularities in War Department purchases, but the Assistant

Gen. Johnson Is in Hospital

Ill 3d Time in Year, He Plans No Let-up in Work.

For the third time in less than a year, Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator, was a patient last night in Walter Reed Hospital.

He entered the institution yesterday on his return from a Tennessee speaking tour and will receive surgical treatment today for a local infection. Associates predicted he would return to his office after spending the week-end in the hospital.

Johnson's health, his friends said, will not interfere with a 30-day swing through the country to resell the Blue Eagle, planned to begin July 10.

The recovery chief's habit of working late nearly every night has led President Roosevelt and others to admonish him against endangering his health. Johnson, however, has scoffed at reports that illness would cause him to resign.

He spent a week at the Army Medical Center in October, conferring from his cot on a coal strike then existing in Pennsylvania. He was pronounced physically fit after 24 hours in the hospital a month ago.

Matricide Is Held Insane by Alienist

Los Angeles, June 22 (AP).—An opinion that Louis Payne, 21, who killed his mother and brother with an ax, was "medically and legally insane" at the time of the slaying was presented to Judge Fletcher Bowron today by Dr. Thomas Orbison, psychiatrist appointed by the court.

Payne, son of Lucius F. Payne, St. Louis utilities executive, is scheduled to go to trial July 16.

Ban on Quick Aging of Rum Draws Protest

Manufacturers Declare Bootleggers Aided by Ruling.

Manufacturers of scientifically matured or quick-aged whisky appeared before Guy T. Helvering, Internal Revenue Commissioner, yesterday to protest the recent ruling prohibiting use of oak chips, shredded barrel staves and other time-saving methods of ripening whisky.

The ruling is due to go into effect August 1 and representatives of the Continental Distilling Corporation asserted that unless the Government revokes its prohibition on quick-aging processes, the cost of low-priced brands will be forced up and drive trade into bootlegging channels.

The point at issue is whether the sole test of matured whisky is the length of time it has reposed in a barrel or whether introduction of new methods make that traditional test obsolete.

Dr. James M. Doran, supervisor of the distilling code authority, was present but when asked by Commissioner Helvering to state his attitude, he said the code authority had taken no position on the matter.

Blames Competitors.

The Continental Distilling Corporation, which has put out the "Sweepstakes" and "Keystone State" brands, contends its business would be seriously damaged if its processes were forbidden. After the hearing S. S. Neuman, chairman of the board of Continental, said that competitors dealing in brands made by the older aging processes were seeking to throttle their low-priced brands through Government regulations.

"The ruling which is the subject of this hearing, if permitted to stand, would prohibit the production at our distillery of quick-aged whisky by the modern, economical and scientifically controlled method adopted by us on a commercial basis after extensive and costly research work," J. Maurice Gray, attorney for Continental, told Commissioner Helvering.

"This method has been in continuous use by us for the past six months under the bureau's supervision and surveillance, and with the unqualified approval of the authorities. As a result of our process, we have been and are furnishing the consumer who has little money to spend a pure, wholesome and potable liquor at a price within his reach.

Warns of Bootlegging.

"Our objective has been, with a small margin of profit for ourselves, to make liquors available to State stores and dealers at such prices as would assist in attracting trade away from the bootlegger. Beyond doubt the bootlegger has continued to flourish since repeal only because of price. And any step which in any way would bring about a material rise in liquor prices would be a play into the bootlegger's hands. We submit with all emphasis at our command that this ruling would constitute such a step, antagonistic to the Government's interests generally, and its revenues in particular."

The ruling was issued June 1 by Arthur J. Mellott, acting deputy commissioner of internal revenue.

A proviso in the law permits purifying and refining of spirits "through any material which will not remain incorporated with such spirits when the manufacture thereof is complete." Continental insists that its process leaves no more of the charred barrel in the whisky than the traditional aging methods do, and that it therefore comes within the proviso of the law.

Continental also is fighting a battle over labeling before the Federal Alcohol Control Administration and in arguing the case earlier this week, Samuel O. Wynne, counsel for Continental, declared that competitors are fighting his concern through Government agencies.

Labeling Fight.

"It is evident," he said, "that the old line whisky distillers have been unable to compete with either the product or the prices of the Continental Distilling Corporation, and it would appear that this is an attempt to meet this competition through using the authority of the Federal Alcohol Control Administration to raise the costs to the Continental Co., thereby raising the cost of our liquor to the public, instead of lowering their own prices."

He declared that straight whisky is not associated with age and that the public is fully protected by the back labels on every bottle which state the time of manufacturing and of bottling.

Neuman said that there is every indication that three-fourths of the liquor consumed in the United States is bootleg liquor.

"The big business in the bootleg trade now is in alcohol," he said. "Bootleggers color and flavor it and sell it to taverns, where it is put into standard trade bottles and passed off to the public. Every move by the Government to raise the price of liquor encourages this traffic."

Federal Leaders Attend Luncheon

Baltimore, June 22 (Spl.).—Highlands Burns, president of the board of directors of the Maryland Casualty Co., was host at luncheon today to a group of Washingtonians prominent in the activities of the Roosevelt Administration.

The guests included Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation; Representative Sam Rayburn, of Texas; Representative John McDuffie, of Alabama; Smith W. Purdum, Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, and James Bruce, financial adviser to the Home Owners' Loan Corporation.

The luncheon was in honor of Silliman Evans, former Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, who resigned to become president of the Maryland Casualty Co.

Congress Fails To Reform Self, But Upsets U.S.

Economic and Political Life of Country Changed.

The Seventy-third Congress changed the economic and political face of the United States pretty completely during its term of office, but forgot one little detail in reforming the world. It forgot to reform itself.

A study of Congressional prerogatives revealed that live Congressmen get just about as much as they always did and have just as much fun doing it, according to the United Press.

Dead Congressmen are different. They are restricted to four colleagues at their funeral. But those four get the same old travel allowances.

When Representative Thomas C. Coffin, of Idaho, died recently as the result of an automobile accident, one legislator, approached to go on the funeral party, said that he would be glad to go as far as Chicago, where he had business to transact, but could not go on to Idaho. The House sergeant at arms refused to approve funeral party expenses for this case.

Travel Allowance.

A Congressman still draws 15 cents per mile when he travels to and from his home or on official business. If he has established residence in Washington and chooses to stay here, he still gets his travel allowance.

It is true that the reform of limiting funeral delegations came through the Seventy-third Congress unscathed, but not without a struggle. Representative John J. O'Connor (Democrat), New York, sought to increase the number and spoke on passing of the old days. But he lost his point.

When Senator George W. Norris (Republican), Nebraska, got the Senate to adopt a resolution removing partisan politics from appointments to the Home Owners Loan Corporation, the amendment was wiped out in the House.

Free Transportation.

When Senator Hugo L. Black (Democrat), Alabama, ordered Capt. R. Stanley Dollar, of the Dollar Steamship Lines, to produce a list of office holders who had enjoyed free transportation on the Dollar Lines, Dollar sent the Ocean and Air Mail Committee a list, but it was never published.

Black, however, sought to reform this particular custom by making it illegal to accept free transportation on ocean and air-mail lines. The bill died.

Even a shorter life was accorded the proposal that wives of members should no longer be allowed free flowers from the Botanic Gardens back of the Capitol. For years Congressmen and their wives have had this privilege.

Apoplexy Stroke Kills Speaker of S. C. House

Dillon, S. C., June 22 (AP).—Speaker James B. Gibson of the South Carolina House of Representatives died of apoplexy today at his home here. He was 54.

When the Legislature adjourned, Speaker Gibson announced he was withdrawing from politics. He consented, however, to serve as president of the 1934 State Democratic convention in his last public appearance.

"Dillinger" Bandits Rob Woman of $500 Savings

Columbia, Tenn., June 22 (AP).—Representing themselves as "members of the John Dillinger gang," two bandits today forced their way into the farmhouse of Miss Ida Wells, 54, bound, gagged, and robbed her of $500 in savings which she had sewn in her underclothing.

U. S. No. 1 Crossings Will Be Eliminated

Fredericksburg, Va., June 22 (Spl.).—Elimination of all crossings south of Alexandria on U. S. Route 1, the New York-to-Florida highway, will be made in 30 days, according to an announcement of the State highway department.

Library of Congress Installs Rare Books in Gigantic Safe

Priceless Volumes Are Kept Under Guard Constantly.

A gigantic "safe" with steel doors and locks now holds the collection of rare books in the Library of Congress, according to Associated Press.

No library official will venture to estimate how much the collection is worth—"priceless," they say.

For instance there's a slim first edition of Poe's "Murders in the Rue Morgue" autographed by the author. And there's a copy of "Fanshawe," Hawthorne's first book. Believing his work amateurish, the author burned what he thought was the whole first edition, but somehow this copy survived.

The room where the books may be examined with special permission is within the safe.

The only way in or out is through two heavy swinning bronze doors in one of which is a secret panel which hides the combination lock to the whole place.

Robert E. M. Cowie, 71, Financier, Succumbs

Altadena, Calif., June 22 (AP).—Robert E. M. Cowie, 71, former president of the railway express agency, who retired in 1932, died at home today after a short illness.

Cowie was first vice president of the Westcott Express Co.; chairman of the Board of the Golconda Petroleum Corporation; director of the Chase National Bank, New York, and a member of its advisory board; member of the board of managers of the Cuba-Mexican Syndicate and a director of the Citizens National Bank of Los Angeles.

Hiram Johnson Scoffs At Dictatorship Rumor

San Frale, June 22 (AP).—Voicing high praise for President Roosevelt and declaring talk of his dictatorship is "all poppycock," Senator Hiram Johnson returned to his home here today to confer with political advisers on what he declares will be his last campaign.

The senior Senator from California, now 68 years old, said after 18 years of service in the Senate he is ready for one more six-year term.

Goering Police Guards Confined to Quarters

Berlin, June 22 (AP).—About 150 members of Hermann Goering's special police guards were confined to concentration camps yesterday because of insubordination, it became known today.

These special guards, recruited from the ranks of the storm troops, had been doing guard duty before Goering's official residence.

Courts May Decide Who Gets Bandit Car

Arcadia, La., June 22 (AP).—The courts may be called upon to settle disposition of the bullet-riddled automobile in which Clyde Barrow, Southwestern desperado, and Bonnie Parker, his gun-woman companion, were slain near here several weeks ago.

Mrs. Jesse Warren, wife of the owner from whom the car was stolen, came here and made formal demand upon the sheriff, Henderson Gordan, that he surrender the car. The sheriff referred her to his attorney, indicating that the whole thing would be threshed out legally.

E. A. T. Sells Stock In New York Airline

New York, June 22 (AP).—E. R. Breech, president of North American Aviation, Inc., stated today that the company's subsidiary, Eastern Air Transport, Inc., had disposed of its entire interest in New York Airways, which formerly operated a line between Atlantic City, New York and Washington.

Federal Reserve Agent Dies.

Los Angeles, June 22 (AP).—Isaac Newton, 73, Federal Reserve agent and chairman of the board of the San Francisco Federal Reserve Bank, died today at his home here after a three weeks' illness.

Only 1 Salary For Glassford, McCarl Rules

Must Take Either Retired Pay or Compensation as Conciliator.

The troubles of Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford have not been confined to labor difficulties in Imperial Valley, Calif., where he has been acting as a Labor Department conciliator.

When the former District of Columbia police superintendent accepted Secretary of Labor Perkin's offer to go among the fruit men in California to iron out their troubles with wage workers, he forgot to notify the War Department whether he wanted to draw his pay as a retired officer or accept the "per diem plus expenses" offered by Miss Perkins. That was on April 1.

Since then Gen. Glassford has not received either the per diem compensation or his retired pay.

And Comptroller General McCarl ruled yesterday that the vouchers would have to be held up, pending Gen. Glassford's decision as to which pay roll he will select.

McCarl ruled that as the rate of retirement pay and the rate of compensation in the civilian position, which is only part-time, both exceed $3,000 per annum, "Gen. Glassford is not entitled to retired pay for nonwork days in his civilian position, but must elect which form of payment he will receive, and unless and until he has done so—there being no evidence of record as to receipt of civilian compensation—the voucher in question is not authorized to be paid."

Garner at Ranch Home Making Vacation Plans

Uvalde, Tex., June 22 (AP).—John N. Garner, Vice President, began making plans for his summer vacation today. "I want to get out where I can relax and take some exercise," he told friends.

Garner returned home last night. His fishing and hunting companions, Ross Brumfield, B. Morrison and Pete Walcott, met him.

Mrs. Garner arrived home two days before her husband.

Woman Reports Theft Of Purse and $3,000

Theft of a pocketbook containing negotiable real estate and other notes valued at more than $3,000 was reported to police yesterday by Sarah T. Rosenfeld, of 444 Rhode Island avenue northwest.

She told police she entered a bank at Seventh and E streets northwest and put the pocketbook on a counter. When she turned to look for it a few minutes later it had disappeared.

Richmond, June 22 (AP).—Gov. Peery today reappointed Henry G. Barbee, of Norfolk, to the State Port Authority, and appointed C. V. W. Trice, of Norfolk, to the State Real Estate Commission.

Ritchie Gives Farm Honors To 47 Women

Nine From Nearby Areas Listed Among Short Course Honorees.

Four delegates from Prince Georges and five from Montgomery County were among the 47 women to whom Gov. Ritchie presented certificates yesterday at the close of the University of Maryland's annual Rural Women's Short Course.

Those from Prince Georges were Mrs. Edward S. Hislop, of Hyattsville, president of the group; Miss Marguerite M. Lingrell, Anacostia Station; Mrs. John W. Buffington and Mrs. Rita F. Turner, Berwyn, Md.

The Montgomery County delegates were Mrs. Cora S. Howard, Mrs. Guy Howes and Mrs. Cassie Woodfield, Gaithersburg; Mrs. Augustus Cursler, Spencerville, and Mrs. Marguerite Smith.

Gov. Ritchie in extending greetings to the group alluded to the fact that the short course class this year was the "Tercentenary Class," and declared that the early settlers of Maryland laid the foundation for both civil and religious liberty.

Montgomery Speaks.

The Rev. James Shera Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives, delivered the main address at the convocation. He spoke on "The Widening Interests of American Women."

Representing the university's board of regents, Mrs. John L. Whitehurst paid a tribute to the training the women receive in their home demonstration groups under the extension service. She referred specifically to the cooperation she had received from them in organizing NRA work in Maryland.

The invocation was pronounced by the Rev. Ronalds Taylor, of College Park. Vocal solos were given by Miss Ruth Sherman Jones, of Olney.

The short course officially ended yesterday with a sight-seeing trip to the Cathedral and Monastery in Washington, followed by a picnic supper in Rock Creek Park.

Certificate Holders.

Besides the Prince Georges County and Montgomery County women, those receiving certificates for attending the course for four years were:

Allegany County—Mrs. Arthur C. Lancaster, Mrs. William L. Maddocks, Mrs. Margaret McMurdo, Mrs. Lucy E. Reith, Mrs. B. C. Robinette, Mrs. R. D. Robertson, Mrs. Jesse M. Wilson, Mrs. Perry Willson and Mrs. O. C. Willson, of Cumberland; Mrs. Anna M. Frenzoi, Lonaconing; Mrs. Alys Compton McCullough, Haneock, and Mrs. C. G. Ort, Lons.

Baltimore City—Mrs. Lillie Beeker, Mrs. M. Frances Harris, Mrs. Frank Lindsay, Mrs. Anna C. Raum and Mrs. Thomas Harris.

Baltimore County — Miss Nellie E. Fowble, Monkton.

Carroll County—Mrs. Sherman C. Kline, Mount Airy; Mrs. Arthur B. Shipley, Woodbine, and Mrs. Olen Wilson and Mrs. Edward G. Wright, Sykesville.

Four From Prince Georges.

Frederick County—Mrs. H. C. Erdman, Burkittsville; Mrs. Luther F. Magaha, and Mrs. Mildred G. Sulsby, Buckeystown.

Harford County—Mrs. Kenneth T. Burkins, Castleton.

Montgomery County—Mrs. Cora S. Howard, Mrs. Guy Howes and Mrs. Cassie Woodfield, Gaithersburg; Mrs. Augustus Cursler, Spencerville, and Mrs. Marguerite Smith, Rockville.

Prince Georges County—Mrs. Edward S. Hislop, Hyattsville; Miss Marguerite M. Lingrell, Anacostia Station; Mrs. John W. Buffington and Mrs. Rita F. Turner, Berwyn.

Washington County—Mrs. Florence E. Bricker, Hagerstown.

Consumer Avoids Gas-Meter Loss

Moundsville, W. Va., June 22 (Spl.).—Gas companies can not collect from consumers in West Virginia if the gas meter goes wrong, Judge James F. Shipman ruled in a decision handed down in the Marshall County Circuit Court.

The only exception, he holds, is where it is shown that the consumer tampered with the meter or has otherwise been responsible for defective condition, in which case the gas company can charge an average rate.

The case was brought against the Manufacturers Light & Heat Co. by Spencer Gable, of McMechen, who sought to recover money alleged due him after payment of his gas bill when his meter had registered a smaller amount. It had been found to be damaged. Gable argued his own case in court and won judgment.

Autoist Granted Bail After Girl's Death

Baltimore, June 22 (AP).—William W. McNeil, jr., of Raleigh, N. C., was released by Magistrate Gerard Mueller, of Baltimore County, on $1,000 bond yesterday after he had been charged with causing the death of Miss Polly Fountain.

The warrant was issued after an inquest by a coroner's jury. It was alleged Miss Fountain, also of Raleigh, was riding in an automobile driven by McNeil, which failed to negotiate a curve near Essex early Monday.

Roosevelt, Mussolini Compared By Republican Campaigners

Fear "End of Liberty" in Sweeping Powers, but Democrats Cite "Abundant Life" as Aim; Scoff at Dictatorship.

Congress has left with President Roosevelt dictatorial powers such as no Chief Executive before him ever dreamed, according to the United Press.

From the amount of gold in the dollar to the amount of water in a quart of oysters, President Roosevelt's word is supreme. From the Texas oil wells to the New York Stock Exchange his signature is all-powerful. He can tell the Georgia farmer how much cotton to plant, the Illinois banker how much interest to charge and the Pennsylvania coal miner how many hours to work.

The Republican Senatorial Congressional Committee today compared Mr. Roosevelt to Mussolini, saw in his mounting powers "an end to liberty," and called them an expression of "the Socialist idea."

The Democrats retorted that the President must have these extraordinary powers to combat the depression, and to bring about his desire of a "more abundant life" for every American. They insist President Roosevelt has no idea of making himself an American dictator.

A resume of the records of the last two Congresses indicates that Mr. Roosevelt has been delegated all-powerful control of American industry, finance, transportation, international trade, agriculture, labor and the inter-relations of any one to another. The specific powers of the President are divided among 12 major programs:

1. Business control through the National Recovery Administration, with authority to regulate through codes the minutest details of competition.

2. Agricultural control, including processing taxes to help the farmer, and crop control regulations to help him help himself.

3. Labor control, through the NRA wages and hours provisions and through the new labor bill providing for arbitration of disputes.

4. Stock market control, with a board appointed by him to administer the securities act, which outlaws doubtful practices and sets up rules under which brokers and exchanges must operate.

5. Communication control, affecting the telephone, the telegraph and the radio and designed to coordinate them.

6. Oil control, through the Petroleum Administration. (Not as effective as the President would like because of the failure of Congress to pass a more comprehensive bill.)

7. Railroad control, through his Federal coordinator, with power to scale down capital indebtedness, eliminate useless competition and abandon nonpaying lines.

8. Tariff control, giving Mr. Roosevelt personal authority to adjust tariffs—50 per cent in either direction and thus govern the country's international trade.

9. Monetary control, including regulation of the currency and expenditure of a $2,000,000,000 (B) fund to stabilize foreign exchange.

10. Banking control through the Federal Deposit Insurane Corporation and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

11. Industrial finance control through the loans to industry act, wherein the Administration can lend $580,000,000 (M) to those concerns which measure up to Federal standards.

12. Relief control, wherein the Federal Emergency Relief Administration supervises practically all relief activities in the country and gives shoes to the penniless city man and cows to the drought-stricken farmer.

Perhaps the only aspect of American life which has escaped control by President Roosevelt in one way or another is the press.

Greed, Intrigue Laid to War Materials Ring

Startling Revelations Will Shock Public, Says Senator Pope.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Pope (Democrat), Idaho, said yesterday "startling revelations" concerning activities of the American munitions and war materials industry had been uncovered by investigators for the Senate Munitions Investigating Committee.

With Senator Nye (Republican), North Dakota, committee chairman, out of town, the investigators met Pope yesterday and went over their reports with him. The Senator said the committee employes would continue their work throughout the summer. The committee probably will start hearings in September.

While the Idahoan would not disclose contents of the reports, "because to do so would destroy their strategic value and give too much opportunity to firms involved to disseminate subversive propaganda," he did say they contained "information on the activities of numerous munitions and other war materials manufacturers, which will shock the entire Nation when disclosed."

Pope said the people of the United States would be "amazed by the story of greed, intrigue, war scare propaganda and lobbying which will be made public" during committee hearings.

He indicated the investigation would disclose an enormous "ring," interested in propagation of wars and strife, which covers "far more than just the war materials industry."

Kohen to Seek Legion Honor as Independent

Despite refusal of the steering committee of Costello Post of the American Legion to indorse him for department commander, Charles Kohen yesterday announced that he would be an independent candidate for the office. The vote against indorsement was 18 to 12.

Kohen is well known for his work among disabled veterans of the Capital. He has been active in behalf of veterans in hospitals for the past ten years. In 1929 he received, for his humanitarian work, the Watson B. Miller Award.

Kohen also announced yesterday he would seek to have the steering committee reconsider its action.

Steel Executive Dies On Canadian Vacation

broken, and today both teams broke it."

First event of a brilliant day which the President gave over almost entirely to sport was the 2-mile race of the Freshmen. Pulling No. 6 for the Harvard yearlings was Franklin D., jr., a sadly disappointed youth tonight.

To obtain the best possible vantage point, President Roosevelt swung aboard the referee's launch as befitted an old sailor. With him went his son, James Roosevelt. The President was clad in a white yachting hat, white trousers, brown coat and gray tie.

See Son Defeated.

Mrs. Roosevelt, accompanied by Mrs. James Roosevelt, boarded the committee boat Tara and there joined a number of enthusiasts. Dressed in flowing white, she took her place in the bow likewise, seated on the open deck, which rolled gently in the breeze.

The two launches went to the starting point up the river, where at 9:57 a gun crack sent the frail shells speeding downstream. Both the President and Mrs. Roosevelt followed close behind, their eyes trained on Number 6, who pulled as though his life depended on the outcome.

Undismayed by the presence of Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., and his father, however, the Yale freshmen jumped into the lead at the start and held it for the entire two miles, winning by a scant half-length. The two crews bent in exhaustion after the finish but revived to row away.

The junior varsity race which followed immediately found the President close behind, evidencing the same interest and occasionally using his glasses to note the strokes. Yale won this event more handily, crossing the finish line more than two lengths ahead.

Washington Note Halts London Naval Parley

London, June 22 (AP).—Negotiations between United States and British naval experts here were stopped temporarily today on receipt of instructions from Washington.

The nature of the note received by the American delegation was not revealed. It was indicated, however, that as a result of new directions from the United States there will be no more sessions of the bilateral conference until Monday.

Wool Pool Pays $9,400.

Waynesboro, Pa., June 22 (Spl.). Three hundred and twenty wool growers in Franklin County today were $9,400 richer as the result of the wool pool check received by County Agent J. H. Knode. A total of 33,615¾ pounds was received from the farmers. Pool expenses amounted to $133.

More Utilities Face Federal Investigation

Extension May Provide "Club" While Shaping Reforms.

(United Press.)

Affairs of the hitherto untouched gas and electric companies will be brought under Federal scrutiny in the next 18 months through extension of the Federal Trade Commission's six-year public utility investigation.

The extension, passed almost unnoticed in final moments of Congress, is designed to provide "fresh and full" details of utility practices so the Administration can sponsor in the next Congress a strict regulatory legislative program, the United Press learned.

Moreover, an authoritative source held, the extension will provide a "club" for the Administration to hold over the utilities while the legislative program is being enacted. It also will give time to observe operations of the Tennessee Valley Authority's power plant and time for the Federal Power Commission's survey of electric rates.

Runs Until 1936.

The investigation was scheduled to have expired July 1, but will now run until January 1, 1936. The Senate will receive a report from the Trade Commission on its findings.

The first of the new investigations will involve the Texas & Louisiana Power Co., controlled by the General Water, Gas & Electric Co. Date for the hearing is still to be set. The company operates gas, electric and ice manufacturing services in Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Kentucky, New Mexico and Arizona. Names of other companies to be investigated will be announced later.

Reports are ready on subsidiaries of eight large holding systems as part of the old investigation, and hearings will be held soon. In addition, 23 subsidiaries in nine large chains are being investigated and hearings will be ordered.

Since 1928, when the inquiry was ordered by a Senate resolution, the Trade Commission estimates consumers' power rates have been reduced more than $118,000,000 by nearly 100 companies it has investigated.

Four Main Targets.

Principal disclosures in the investigation which the new legislation is expected to curb are:

1. Stock and property value inflation running into billion-dollar figures.

2. Payment of excessive management fees and other alleged abuses of parent company relations with subsidiaries.

3. Disclosure of political activities by utilities, including the recent case of former New York State Senator Warren T. Thayer, of Chateaugay, N. Y., who resigned.

4. Extensive propaganda campaigns through newspapers, schools and civic organizations.

Companies on which report have been completed or are being prepared include members of these systems: Associated Gas & Electric, Cities Service, Columbia Gas & Electric, Electric Bond & Share, Insull group, Niagara Hudson Power, Standard Gas & Electric, Stone & Webster, American Gas & Electric, Commonwealth & Southern, Duke Power Co., Tri-Utilities Corporation.

He said it will "take all of the honey - dipped, high - sounding phrases of the Administration spokesmen to explain away their inability to make good on any of their preelection promises to put men to work, to balance the budget, to reduce taxes and restore parity in price."

Dickinson said $950,000,000 was appropriated for relief in January, and $890,000,000 more in June, "with the assurance that these funds will not last long and with the comment on the part of those in authority that the American taxpayer has had no experience with high taxes."

Annapolis Highway Will Be Improved

Baltimore, June 22 (Spl.).—Plans for widening and improving Annapolis boulevard between Baltimore and Furnace Branch, Anne Arundel County, were announced today by the State roads commission.

The plans call for a dual highway, each lane to be 20 feet wide, and with a six-foot grass plot between. Each lane will accommodate two lines of traffic.

Bids will be received Tuesday by the State roads commission, which pointed out that the existing road would be retained as the northbound lane and that the contract would call for construction of a southbound lane only. Cost of the improvement has been estimated at about $300,000.

Chinese Railroads Seek Used Equipment

New York, June 22 (AP).—Chinese railroads are potential buyers of obsolete American railroad equipment, it was disclosed today following a meeting of the Eastern president's conference and organization of transportation heads.

According to the Department of Commerce, the Chinese roads are in the market for light equipment. Possibility of such transfers was considered by the Eastern executives at the department's suggestion.

Col. McMullen Is Questioned On Contract

Says He Drew Up Army Goods Pact at Order of Woodring.

Secretary issued his statement instead, and sent along Maj. Gen. L. H. Bash, the new quartermaster general, to undergo the committee's grilling during the afternoon.

The contracts sought by Silverman and the Newbury Co. differed from those previously in effect in that surplus Army goods acquired by them could not previously be resold in the United States. Silverman sought to resell or trade to the Army 700,000 suits of underwear in exchange for military equipment held to be worth millions of dollars. The New York trader asserted the Government would save $750,000 on the deal.

Although the changes were made, all Silverman's trading with the War Department was blocked by the subsequent grand jury proceedings and orders from the Assistant Secretary of War.

Chairman Rogers said Woodring would be given an opportunity to testify later if he desired, although with the appearance of Gen. MacArthur today, the Washington hearings will cease temporarily. Department of Justice action in a number of matters revealed at hearings this spring can be looked for soon, Rogers said. He and two Republican members of the committee, Goss, of Connecticut, and Plumley, Vermont, will meet in Boston next month to take up the inquiry into surplus goods purchases.

Contract Explained.

Woodring said yesterday that McMullen's testimony regarding the Silverman and Jackson contracts was substantially correct.

"The changes made in Silverman's contract were similar to those made in other instances to help 'distressed businesses'," Woodring explained.

"Silverman wished to break his contract to take certain surplus goods, but I insisted upon delivery. Under the terms of the contract, he was forced to export the surplus stocks, and could not sell them in this country.

"Some time after I had forced him to accept the goods, Silverman came to the department and explained that, because of depressed conditions, it was impossible for him to sell the goods abroad. He asked that the contract be amended so that he could sell the goods in this country, and, in accordance with our practice at this time, and the Administration's desire to help depressed businesses, I authorized the necessary change in the contract."

Committee members expressed satisfaction with Woodring's explanation, but thought the manner of the February meeting at McMullen's home "peculiar." They also dug more deeply yesterday into McMullen's activities while on duty at the judge advocate general's office, his part in taking his son to London as attorney for an American commission at the age of 26, and his authorization of payment of high fees to his legal associates in the office of Semmes & Semmes for work on Government patent cases.

Representative James (Republican), Michigan, who drew from Col. McMullen considerable evidence concerning which the witness expressed ignorance Thursday, intimated the committee will lay the colonel's case before War Department and Justice Department officials today.

Roosevelt Favors Proposal to Mint Congress Medals

Cumberland, Md., June 22 (AP).—A Parisian sculptor, who once mined coal in western Maryland, has received an endorsement from President Roosevelt of his proposal to mint special medals for the members of each Congress.

The idea was originated by John Conlon, now living in Paris, who wrote his brother, Thomas F. Conlon, of Cumberland, this week explaining his plan and enclosing a copy of the President's letter.

The sculptor proposed a specially designed medal be struck annually for each member of the National Legislature as a means of identification and as a heirloom for his family. He submitted a design for a medal for the Seventy-third Congress which completed its work this week.

President Roosevelt advised the Parisian to present his proposal to Representative David J. Lewis, of Cumberland, for submission to Congress.

Human Ashes Enter Fight for $5,000,000

Brown, who died last January 27, in an automobile accident.

The silver casket and the papers, Mrs. Brown said, were found by her son, Fred, in the private apartment of the capitalist at Brownstown, on the Yakima Indian Reservation. Brown had lived on his 20,000-acre estate there, going in for agriculture and the breeding of fine cattle and horses. The ranch was valued at $1,000,000.

Brings Death Certificate.

Among the papers brought by Mrs. Brown and her attorney, Miss Reba Hurn, of Spokane, was a document purporting to be a death certificate and a notice bearing the name of an undertaker stating that the body had been cremated and the ashes turned over to Brown.

Mrs. Brown said Mrs. Scollard had concealed herself in Montreal to avoid being traced by American Federal agents after having been indicted on an income tax charge.

"I do not know why Mr. Brown did not wish to give out news of the death," she said, "and as soon as I found out about the ashes I brought them here. I will ask the court for permission to place them in the mausoleum where Mr. Brown rests."

Court Refuses Park Depositor Suit Dismissal

Mrs. Crittenden Holds Lack of Charter Puts Onus on Directors.

Following his decision that the directors of the closed Park Savings Bank were liable for the bank's accounts as of date of charter expiration in 1929, Justice Jesse C. Adkins yesterday held that suit brought by Mrs. Fannie Crittenden, 1708 Newton street northwest, was not to be dismissed on motion.

Mrs. Crittenden brought her suit against seven directors on the theory that her account, established in the bank after the charter expired, was made on the misrepresentations of the directors.

Justice Adkins was called upon to rule on the suit, when the directors named asked that the suit be dismissed. They said that inasmuch as the question of their liability was as yet not established the suit was not tenable.

Justice Adkins held that the directors' answer showed no good reason for debarring the suit. He held that further action should await a final determination of the liability of the directors.

Mrs. Crittenden deposited slightly more than $4,000 after the charter expired.

hotel here Wednesday. She said she did not know how she came to El Paso, and could remember other details only vaguely because of the drug given her. She said she was forced to dye her black hair red, after which her male abductor remarked, "Now she's a dead ringer for the guy we bumped off."

"I was in my home and my son had just left for a resort," she said. "The door bell rang, and I went to the door, a young woman, about 30, stood there looking at me. I asked her if she was looking for my son, and she said yes.

Forced to Leave Home.

"Jim put a gun in my ribs and took me back into the house, where he picked up some of my clothes and put them in a bag. Then they took me out to an automobile," she went on. "Is this a kidnaping?" I asked.

"'That's not my racket,'" replied the big man. 'Have a drink.' He said it was absinthe.

"Then they made me sniff something, and I don't remember very well what happened. They drove out of town.

"I remembered he called her 'Girlie' and 'Mazie' and that we were in one town and the man said, 'Hell, the dicks and the newspapers have got hold of this, and now we've got use our heads'."

through his attempted business dealings with her late father. She called him a "male vamp," and had little to do with him.

Reported Seen in Boston.

Capt. Ayres said that if Mlle. Ferrand had been in New York, she did not enter the country under that name. Neither is there a record of a woman of that name departing from the United States. Poderjay, it is known, sailed for England alone.

Reports came to the missing persons bureau from Boston that Mrs. Ruth F. Hall, an employe of a Boston cleaning establishment, had seen Miss Tufverson there on May 15 and early in June.

Mrs. Hall said the woman, whom she recognized today from a picture published in the Boston American, brought clothes to be cleaned each time.

Evidence of Sadistic Practices Uncovered

Vienna, June 22 (AP).—Evidence which police said indicates that Capt. Ivan Poderjay engaged in erotic practices was disclosed today as the authorities continued their investigation of the European angles of the disappearance of Miss Agnes Tufverson.

Meanwhile check of Miss Tufverson's possessions, received from New York, revealed that many things Miss Ferrand claimed belonged to her were the property of Miss Tufverson.

At the police station where she is held she was made to try on all the clothing taken from the apartment, and many articles proved too big for her. Others had been altered to fit her.

One trunk of Miss Tufverson's was found in the apartment, and unverified reports from Belgrade said that a trunk full of dresses had been sent by Poderjay to a sister in Sarajevo. The sister was said to have sold the trunk and the best dresses it contained.

Poderjay was turned over to the court investigator today with a police memorandum which stated that he is "suspected of murder and bigamy."

Girl Won't Marry A Hoover Because Brother, Sister Did

Mount Wolf, Pa., June 22 (Spl.).—Leah Hoover, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Hoover, has not definitely decided just whom she will marry, but it will not be any one by the name of Hoover, because, she says, three unrelated Hoovers in the same family are "enough."

Her sister, Ada, married the Rev. Clarence A. Hoover, superintendent of the Milton Wright Memorial at Kauffmans, in Franklin County, Pa. Then her brother, Russell, followed suit by marrying a girl named Hoover, member of another family.

Mr. Roosevelt's appointment of Clyde L. Seavey, of California, whose recommendation was supported by California's independent Republican Senator, Hiram Johnson.

Reynolds' Opposition Based on Party Pledge

Virginia Beach, Va., June 22 (AP).—Senator Robert R. Reynolds (Democrat), North Carolina, vacationing here today said he opposed the appointment of Frank R. McNinch either as chairman or a member of the Federal Trade Commission, "but if the President saw fit to appoint him, I have nothing more to say."

McNinch was reappointed commissioner chairman by the President today.

"I opposed him in North Carolina," said Senator Reynolds. "I do not know Mr. McNinch personally, and did not oppose him on personal grounds.

"My opposition to his appointment to the commission was a campaign pledge, and I carried it out," said the Senator. "Tuesday afternoon, in Washington, I dictated a letter of opposition, addressed to President Roosevelt, and instructed my secretary to send it to the White House."

The Senator said he had promised to make the letter public, but in the rush of leaving Washington this had not been done.

G. W. Hispanic Forum Planned

Third Seminar on Latin Affairs Will Open Here July 2.

George Washington University will open its third annual Seminar-Conference of Hispanic American Affairs here July 2. The sessions, under the auspices of the recently organized Center of Inter-American Studies, will continue for six weeks.

Special emphasis will be placed on the A. B. C. Powers—Argentina, Brazil and Chile—with lectures by Dr. A. Curtis Wilgus, director of the center, and distinguished experts from other American universities.

Modern Argentina will be depicted for the students and educators at the conference by Dr. J. Fred Rippy, of Duke University, from July 2 until July 13. Dr. Rippy is noted as an authority on Hispanic American history.

From July 16 until July 27, Dr. Isaac J. Cox, of Northwestern University, will conduct a series of lectures on modern Chile. Prof. Percy A. Martin, of Stanford University, will discuss modern Brazil from July 30 until August 9.

Miss Leila Draper, Church Aid, Dies

Led Campaign to Finance Children's Home.

Miss Leila F. Draper, a resident of the District since 1907, died here early yesterday. She had been ill since 1928.

A member of St. Margaret's Episcopal Church, Miss Draper came to Washington from Brooklyn, N. Y. She served as assistant treasurer of St. Margaret's for a number of years, and was treasurer of the Episcopal Home for Children. She was a leading worker in the campaign which made possible the new building at Nebraska avenue and Rock Creek Church road.

Surviving Miss Draper are her sister, Mrs. Carlos C. Van Leer, and a brother, Charles W. Draper. Funeral services will be held today at 2 p. m. at St. Margaret's Church. Burial will be in Greenwood Cemetery.

Peace Efforts Fail in Strike Of Plasterers

4-Hour Parley Breaks Up as Walkout Enters Sixth Week.

The strike of plasterers entered its sixth week yesterday as a four-hour conference, called to discuss their demands for $1.75 an hour and a 30-hour week, failed to produce a settlement.

At the same time, it was learned union steamfitters have signed a one-year contract providing $1.50 an hour, an increase of 21 cents over the scale which has been in effect several years. The wage agreement was reached by arbitration.

Construction operations on PWA projects are still tied up, due to the contractors' refusal to pay carpenters more than $1.10 an hour, the PWA scale. A petition will be presented to the Board of Labor Review next week asking that the Government either require the carpenters to accept $1.10 or pay the difference itself.

Union carpenters returned to work this week on non-PWA construction at $1.25 an hour, ending a seven weeks' strike.

None has been put on, however, at the Library of Congress annex, Internal Revenue addition, Federal warehouse addition, Chemistry building at Howard University and a plant at St. Elizabeths Hospital, all PWA projects. Work on them has been suspended since May 1.

Approximately 200 plasterers walked out May 18, after the Employing Plasterers Association had rejected demands for $1.75 an hour and a five-day, 30-hour week. Previously the scale had been $1.50 on a 40-hour week basis.

Another conference between wage committees probably will be held Tuesday or Wednesday, said Frank Murphy, secretary of the association. Yesterday's meeting of the two sides was only the second since the strike began.

Increase of steamfitters' wages is simply a restoration of the 14 per cent cut they voluntarily accepted a few years ago. Helpers also are included in the boost, going back to their old scale of 84½ cents an hour.

Can Take It

An electric shock of 2,500 volts may be fatal to some, but it's all in a day's work to Edward J. Plarr, an employe of the Central Armature Works, 625 D street northeast.

Plarr came in contact with a power line yesterday while installing a switchboard at the plant of the Wilkins-Rogers Milling Co., 3400 K street northwest. He was thrown 10 feet, sustaining a slight cut on his forehead.

Prohibition Drive Starts in Maryland Tomorrow.

Baltimore, June 22 (AP).—A Nation-wide movement, proposing a new prohibition amendment to the Federal Constitution, will be launched by Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, at a mass meeting at Mountain Lake Park Sunday.

Plans for the meeting were announced by George W. Crabbe, superintendent of the Antisaloon League of Maryland.

The movement was said to be the first one sponsored by the prohibitionists leading to another Constitutional amendment since the eighteenth amendment was repealed. Its purpose is to have inserted in the Constitution an enabling act that will give to Congress the powers now held by the States.

James Barton, Dancer and Comedian, Surprises Broadway in Henry Hull's Role

Warmly Prasied by Critics; Penner Comes to Town; Theater Chat.

(Reprinted from Yesterday's Last Edition.)

By Nelson B. Bell.

Some unusual substitutions have been made in the casts of Broadway's dramatic successes since the regular theatrical season may be said to have run its course.

Margalo Gillmore, for example, took the place of Helen Hayes in the title role of Maxwell Anderson's "Mary of Scotland," and in the same play Stanley Ridges, former leading man of the National Theater Players, succeeded Philip Merivale in the role of Bothwell. Nothing, however, has been quite so surprising as the success that has attended the introduction of a new star into the leading role of "Tobacco Road," played with such signal success throughout the season by Henry Hull.

When Mr. Hull recently retired from the cast, James Barton, of all people, was the actor selected to take his place.

Now then, there is nothing, please understand me, against Mr. Barton on the record books. In fact, he has been looked upon for years as one of the best musical comedy, vaudeville and revue actors we have. But this is the first straight dramatic assignment he has ever undertaken and in the nature of a new experience for one whose dancing has always been one of the mainstays of his professional appearances.

Unanimous Praise.

Barton's interpretation of the role of Jeeter Lester is said to vary greatly from his predecessor's, but he nevertheless received almost unanimous praise from the reviewers for the excellence of his performance.

There has probably never been so effective or so flamboyant an impersonation of a victim of progressive inebriety as the one with which James Barton used to enliven his vaudeville appearances. There were the earmarks of a gifted character comedian in every aspect of this realistic study of the benumbing effects of alcohol.

Even so, it is doubtful if Mr. Barton would have occurred to the minds of many as the actor ideally suited to succeed Henry Hull in one of the most vivid characterizations of the season.

That, however, is show business and how it works.

One is constrained to the belief that Post ads bring results! I mean to say that, presumably suggested by a recent item here concerning the havoc wrought to our swim suit by Ignatz, the family moth, there was delivered to this desk yesterday a new Jantzen bathing uniform without even the vaguest intimation of the source from which it might have come.

We are, of course, overwhelmingly grateful and intensely curious as to the identity of the voice that inquired over the phone late in the day if we had received a package and then hung up before we could utter another word beyond the monosyllabic "yes."

Ignatz, it seems needless to say, already has paid the supreme penalty for his destructiveness before a firing squad armed with Flit guns!

The New Champions.

For the lovers of sports of all kinds there is an unusually interesting newsreel on view at RKO-Keith's currently, in conjunction with first Washington showings of "The Life of Vergie Winters," co-starring Ann Harding and John Boles.

This thoroughly athleticized release deals with the new champions in all lines of sport, bearing down with some humor upon the newly acquired championship of the heavyweight division of the pugilistic racket by Max Baer. Master Baer offers a brief caricature of Jack Dempsey as an exemplification of the manner in which he thinks a champ should comport himself.

The Fight Pictures.

This bit of kidding is in quite a different mood from the one Max carried into the ring with him against Carnera. Having had a surreptitious peek at the official pictures of the Baer-Carnera massacre, I am in a position to state that Maxie was just as savage, now and again, as Mr. McNamee reported him to be from the ringside. At other times he was the clown, just as all of the sports writers described him as being. And part of the time the fight isn't so hot as a screen spectacle. There are a good many intervals when the boys seem merely to be fiddling around. It is a lamentable circumstance that fight pictures may not legally be exhibited in the District. They are less objectionable, from the standpoint of good, clean fun and absence of apparent brutality or attempt to commit mayhem than the pictures of the heavyweight wrestling matches in which the contestants resort to methods of attack that are little short of murderous.

These are permitted to be shown on local screens until the cows come home, without let or hindrance.

So what?

I will thank the gentleman who picked up my wrist watch off the third-floor window sill about 8 o'clock last night, to return it to the southeast corner of Room 300. It wasn't such a watch to begin with and won't serve him any very profitable purpose, especially with the initials "N. B. B." chiseled all over it. Besides that, I've grown sort of used to it after 10 or 12 years, and the naked wrist feels funny. Then, too, I'd like to know what time it is!

Five-Hour Cruise.

For those who wish to escape from the heat of the city, a special five-hour cruise down the Potomac is announced by the Potomac River Line for next Sunday.

The S. S. Potomac, with a capacity of 3,000 passengers, spacious dance floor, Bernie Jarboe music, restaurant, beer garden and cafeteria, will leave the Sixth street wharf at 11:30 a. m., and return at 4:30 in the afternoon.

The prices assessed for the trip represents a cost of 15 cents an hour for adults and 8 cents an hour for children. That is to say, tickets for adults will be 75 cents; children, 40 cents. The S. S. Potomac, incidentally, is the boat that carried the huge crowd down to St. Mary's for the tercentennial celebration a few days ago.

The Potomac River Line will start their Chapel Point trips on Wednesday June 27.

Mr. Joe Penner, having arrived in the National Capital to peddle a duck, sprinkle cigar ashes all over the stage of Loew's Fox and bounce his trick hat around until the multitude gasps and wonders what it is that keeps it on his head at all, a party will be tossed in his direction this evening.

A cordial "Duck-o-Gram" that is described as being "always dePENNERable" comes to hand with the exciting tidings that tonight at 10:30 in suite so-and-so at the Mayflower there will be goings-on. Mr. Carter Tait Barron, city manager of the Loew interests in Washington, expresses the friendly hope that we will be able to be there. Mr. Barron in this regard has nothing on us!

Broadway Raid!

For its 1934-35 production program, RKO-Radio Pictures again has staged a successful raid on the so-called Gay White Way, which is no longer white or very gay.

Several Broadway luminaries have affixed their names to stellar contracts calling for one or more films—with options.

Those who surrendered to the lures of Hollywood were Fred Astaire, one of the most nimble of the dancing comedians; Violet Kemble-Cooper, an artiste of the first water; Barbara Robbins, young dramatic star; John Beal, a fast young comer, and Thelma White, fresh from the "Follies," who rates as the list's beauty representative.

Stars Coming to Today's Screens

Straight From the Studios

Novel War Theme Is Evolved for Picture of Future; Paramount to Make 100 Single-Reel Subjects; Interesting Short Hollywood Items.

By Edwin Schallert.

Hollywood, June 21.—Forecasts of the future are something rare in pictures. Cecil B. DeMille has been talking of "The End of the World;" Douglas Fairbanks used to dally with the idea of presenting a movie called "One Hundred Years From Now." Future conflicts were told of in "Men Must Fight." And now comes a picture also dealing with a fight of the future called "War Is Declared," B. P. Schulber is to produce this with G. W. Pabst directing. Liam O'Flaherty is writing it.

CECIL B. DEMILLE.

The picture will not show an actual war, but instead the effect of a war on the lives of a number of people aboard a tramp ship far out at sea when word is received over the radio of what is happening.

They Come And Go.

England's "Peter Pan" is en route to Hollywood. That is, one of their Peter Pans. This one is Jane Baxter, widow of the racing driver, Clive Dunfee. She is in New York now, and is expected to arrive here early next week. It is understood that she is under contract to Twentieth Century. Miss Baxter appeared as Peter Pan during two seasons in revivals of the Barrie classic in London.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell has decided to leave Hollywood. She has filled three engagements during her stay—one in "Riptide," one in "The Green Hat" and in "One More River," with Diana Wynyard. She is departing July 1, and expects to do a stage play in England.

• • • •

Novel Cartoon Characters.

Dolls will makes their Hollywood debut shortly. And not Hollywood dolls, if you know what I mean. These are cartoon characters that are proposed for the screen. They will appear in color movies. Coincidentally, Paramount, which is to make these films, plans to do nothing but one-reelers henceforward. That means the abandonment of the two-reelers previously made. The pictures will include pictorials, headliners, sportlight, Pop-Eye cartoons and Betty Boop comedies. Intention is to do a hundred of these.

Nearly Settled After Dickens of Time.

It looks as if David Copperfield were just about discovered. That's the boy Copperfield. His name is Peter Trent, and George Cukor and David Selznick are bringing him to town with them. The decision isn't absolute as yet regarding this youth, but fairly certain. Tests will be made here which will settle the choice.

• • • •

Not a Stranger to Hollywood.

Russell Hicks, who arrived yesterday to do the heavy in "The Case of the Howling Dog," has had two previous Hollywood experiences. He was an extra in the days when "Intolerance" was filmed by D. W. Griffith, and sloshed through the mud for scenes in that picture. Also he played with Wallace Reid in "Tall Timber." This was before the war, and after he returned from the service, he acted as assistant casting director at Famous Players-Lasky, now Paramount.

Merchants Quit Trade Worries For 3-Day Trip

Cruise Takes 125 Men From D. C. to 4 Cities on Outing.

By a Staff Correspondent.

Aboard S. S. Southland, June 22.—Leaving worries of business behind, 125 Washington business men and District officials were aboard this steamer today on a three-day cruise. Stops will be made at Old Point Comfort, Norfolk, Newport News and Annapolis.

The cruise is the twenty-third annual booster trip of the Washington Merchants and Manufacturers Association, but is the first since 1932. James E. Colliflower, president of the association, is commander in chief of the outing.

Officials on board include William A. Van Duzer, director of traffic, and George W. Offutt and Isaac Gans, members of the Alcoholic Beverage Board. Mr. Van Duzer became the center of good-natured jesting over the recent downtown traffic battle. Merchants won a decided victory when they obtained suspension of the all-day parking ban recommended by the director.

Unable to Go.

Secretary of the Navy Swanson and the District Commissioners, who were invited, were unable to join the party.

The Southland is due to dock at Old Point Comfort at 8:15 a. m. today. Those planning to take part in a golf tourney at the Hampton Golf Club will disembark.

The steamer then will proceed to Norfolk, arriving at 9:30 a. m. and departing at 11 a. m. The ship then will head for Hampton Roads for passengers to view the U. S. fleet.

Visits to the battleships will be made via Navy launches from Old Point Comfort an hour later. Early in the afternoon the Southland will sail for the Newport News shipyard, where a new airplane carrier will be inspected.

The real thrill will come when the booster vessel leaves calm waters for the Virginia Capes and deep-sea fishing. This evening the ship will sail up Chesapeake Bay for Annapolis.

An hour and a half will be spent at the Maryland capital tomorrow, giving members of the party an opportunity to visit the Naval Academy and attend mass. The remainder of the day will be spent cruising on the Chesapeake Bay. Merchants will turn homeward tomorrow night. The Southland will dock in Washington at 7:30 a. m. Monday.

General Chairman.

Dr. Malcolm G. Gibbs, president of the Peoples Drug Stores, is general chairman of the committee in charge of the outing, while Lewis A. Payne is vice chairman. The other members of the committee are:

Officials to Fete New Colombia President Here

White House Luncheon and Other Functions on Lopez Program.

(United Press.)

The State Department yesterday completed its program for reception of Alfonso Lopez, president-elect of Colombia, who arrives tomorrow for a three-day stay.

During his visit Lopez will be entertained at a White Hous luncheon by President Roosevelt. A few days later Mr. Roosevelt will be a luncheon guest of retiring President Olaya of Colombia in Cartagena.

Lopez will be met in New Yprk by James Clement Dunn, special assistant to the Secretary of State, who will accompany him to Washington. Lopez will have his secretary, Antonio Izquierqo, with him.

The party will be greeted here by Secretary of State Cordell Hull, the Assistant Secretaries of State, secretaries to the President, military and naval aids, and other Government officials.

A guard of honor of U. S. Marines and the Sixteenth Brigade, U. S. Army, will be at the railroad station.

Lopez will stop at the Wardman Park Hotel with the Colombian minister. He will dine with the minister Sunday evening. On Monday the governing board of the Pan-American Union will entertain him at a luncheon and in the evening Assistant Secretary of State Sumner Welles will give a dinner in his honor.

President Roosevelt will receive Lopez and will entertain at the luncheon for him at the White House.

Rep. Burke Will Not Try to Retain Seat

Long Beach, Calif., June 22 (AP). John H. Burke, who has served the Eighteenth California District in Congress the last two years, announced today he would not be a candidate to succeed himself.

"I do not feel that I can conscientiously represent a number of clients who have come to me with tax appeal problems and corporate securities matters before the Interstate Commerce Commission and retain my seat as a Congressman at the same time," Representative Burke said.

Tydings Denies Radcliffe Stand Is "Political"

Protege of Senator Claims Support of Ten Md. Counties.

Baltimore, June 22 (Spl.).—A vigorous denial was issued here today by United States Senator Millard E. Tydings to reports that he seeks to gain supreme control of the Democratic party in Maryland through electing his political protege, George L. Radcliffe, to the office of Governor.

Mr. Tydings revealed that last winter he had assured Gov. Ritchie that he (Tydings) would support any Democratic candidate that the party nominated, provided that candidate ran a good chance of being elected.

But the Senator also said he had made it plain to the Governor that Ritchie's fifth-term candidacy would not have his support. His statement in part, follows:

"First in February, and repeatedly since then, I told Gov. Ritchie that my single interest was in the success of the Democratic party in Maryland. I told him that he would endanger that success by seeking a fifth term.

Offered Support for Senate.

"I told him that I would give all my support to any strong candidate for Governor that he would pick, and that I would support him (Ritchie) for the Senate. I told him then, as I have told him since, that I had no aspirations toward seizing control of the party. I told him that I was prepared to follow his leadership as long as that leadership did not invite the dangerous consequences of a fifth-term candidacy.

"I have frequently told the Governor that I am deeply interested in the Maryland heritage, a heritage which has forbidden Maryland Governors since the Civil War, with one exception, to succeed themselves, and that I am deeply concerned about Democratic success in November.

"I stood ready in February to work for the nomination and election of Gov. Ritchie to the Senate, and to work for the nomination and election of any strong candidatae he would name for Governor. I continued to reiterate this until Gov. Ritchie announced his fifth-term candidacy. I did everything I could to avert a primary.

Radcliffe Would Support President.

"Then a large group of influential Democratic leaders, equally concerned with the Democratic success, called upon Mr. Radcliffe to become a candidate as a man with a record of accomplishment and ability and a man who will uphold the President in coordinating the work of recovery between the State and Federal Governments. I am supporting him for those reasons, and because his nomination will assure Democratic success in November."

Mr. Tydings also criticized a petition from Allegany County indorsing the Ritchie candidacy. More than 50 letters have been received at Radcliffe headquarters from persons who had signed the Ritchie petition, Mr. Tydings said, each declaring that the writer had signed the petition before Mr. Radcliffe became a candidate. The writers wanted to know if they could have their names stricken from the Ritchie petition, Senator Tydings said.

Reports were current here today that Howard Bruce, Baltimore banker, will be the choice of the Ritchie ticket for the senatorial nomination.

10 Counties Back Ritchie.

Meanwhile, the recent indorsement of Garrett County, the "Radcliffe-for-Governor" movement now claims ten Maryland counties. Another, St. Mary's County, also has indorsed the "compromise candidate" move, but has not mentioned Radcliffe.

The ten counties from which indorsements were received include Kent, Queen Anne's, Talbot, Dorchester, Wicomico, Worcester and Somerset, on the Eastern Shore. On the Western Shore are Harford, home county of Senator Tydings and Calvert.

However, in spite of this apparently overwhelming indorsement, Mr. Radcliffe, who, because of his close friendship with President Roosevelt, has been dubbed the State's "New Dealer," Ritchie adherents declare that little momentum is behind the move.

They point out that, in a political battle with Gov. Ritchie, well entrenched in the State's political system as he is, the newly-announced gubernatorial candidate will find tough sledding in the September primaries.

On the other hand, hope for Mr. Radcliffe is being built on the supposition that he will conquer the Eastern Shore, where open contempt for Gov. Ritchie and Mayor Howard Jackson have been widely expressed—a result of last fall's lynching troubles.

Radcliffe supporters also point out that in Baltimore, where lie the majority of votes, the greater part of the populace will be divided between Jackson, who holds an enviable record as mayor, and Ritchie, giving neither the desired number of votes.

In turn, the Ritchie and Jackson camps declare that Radcliffe is very little known to the rank and file of the State's population, and that voters would not think of "taking a chance" with him.

Safety From Eviction Pledged Share-Croppers

Richmond, Va., June 22 (AP).—Tenant farmers and share-croppers in the Virginia tobacco-growing districts will be protected, Henry M. Taylor said yesterday, from being ousted from their homes as a result of crop curtailment under the Agricultural Adjustment Act. But day laborers, he added, were not provided for in the act.

Taylor is Federal-State statistician under the AAA here and his attention was called to the employe problem on tobacco farms by reports reaching the office of William A. Smith, Virginia emergency relief administrator. Smith said he had been told crop curtailment was resulting in large-scale layoffs of day laborers in the tobacco fields.

Young People Open Meetings In Shenandoah

Thousands of Visitors Will Be Attracted to Religious Rites.

Richmond, June 22 (Spl.).—Outstanding Christian leaders from all over America and from abroad will arrive in the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia next week with the opening of the Massanetta Springs Bible Conference.

The first of these conferences, the Presbyterian Young People's Conference, begins Monday and will continue until July 1. The 11 conferences scheduled for the summer months will bring between 20,000 and 40,000 visitors.

Addresses are scheduled by Dr. James Black, of Edinburgh, Scotland; Dr. Fred W. Norwood, pastor of The City Temple, in London; Dr. William Evans, outstanding Bible teacher; Dr. William L. Stidger, pastor of the Church of All Nations, Boston; Dr. Leyton H. Richards, of Birmingham, England, and others.

The second will be the Methodist Young People's Conference, from July 2 to July 8. The School of Sacred Music will begin July 9 under Dr. John Findlay Williamson, of Westminister Choir. It will continue until July 15. The Sacred Music Festival, July 16 to 22, has become a National institution. Choirs from 15 areas compose the chorus of 2,000 voices under the direction of Dr. Williamson for a concert July 20.

The festival is followed by the Synodical of Virginia, July 20 to 23, the Training School for Auxiliary Workers, July 23 to 30, the Lutheran Church Workers Conference, July 30 to August 5, the Baptist Assembly, August 6 to 12, and the Bible Conference and School for Pastors, August 13 to 26.

During the week of August 13 to 19 a new conference has been announced, dealing with moral and social problems. A special program for elders and deacons will be given August 17 to 19. Walter L. Lingle, president of Davidson College, will deliver a series of lectures during this conference.

Eastern Virginia Indians Get Part In July 4 Pageant

Richmond, June 22 (AP).—Four Indian tribes in eastern Virginia will take part in the historical pageant of southwest Virginia in Roanoke July 4, 5 and 6, the State Chamber of Commerce announced today.

Chief E. P. Bradby, of the Chickahominy tribe, will take most of the tribe at Windsor Shades, in New Kent County, to an encampment on Maher Field, in Roanoke.

The pageant scenario, which now is being rehearsed by a cast of more than 3,000, gives the Indians a prominent place.

Mutual Firms Gain Strength, Cooper Says

Insurance Official Sees Sounder Business Principles.

Staunton, Va., June 22 (Spl.).—Selecting Marion as next year's meeting place and reelecting officers, the Virginia Association of Mutual Insurance Companies closed its twelfth annual convention here today.

Gilbert E. Pence, Woodstock, was reelected president; W. R. Rowe, Irvington, vice president, and John H. Rolston, Harrisonburg, secretary-treasurer.

Principal addresses were made by Harry P. Cooper, Indianapolis, secretary of the National Association of Mutual Insurance Companies, and William H. Sheaffer, Baltimore, chief of the insurance division of the Federal Land Bank.

Mr. Cooper said a uniform farm mutual policy is being prepared and soon will be in use throughout the United States.

"These are distressing times, but they have been a blessing in disguise," he said. "They have uncovered the faults of mutual companies, and at the same time have inspired mutual companies to effect more business-like and uniform methods." He stated that of the 2,500 mutual farm insurance companies in the country, less than 5 per cent had discontinued business as a result of the depression.

Mr. Shaeffer told of the requirement of collateral security by the Federal Land Bank, and said that at present the bank had made $50,000,000 in loans in Virginia. Twenty-five thousand mutual insurance policies had been taken as collateral security, he said.

Mr. Rolston reported 34 mutual companies in Virginia have $113,443,000 insurance in force, with a membership of 54,890, with 4 companies reporting no losses during the past year. He reported that the average cost of Virginia mutuals was 30 cents per $100 last year.

A. E. Hoffman, Havre de Grace, Md., secretary of the Eastern Federation of Mutual Insurance Companies, also addressed the 65 representatives of 22 Virginia companies attending.

Orthopedic Clinic Scheduled Today

Fredericksburg, Va., June 22 (Spl.). — The summer orthopedic clinic conducted by Dr. W. T. Graham, of Richmond, will be held in the community nurse's office in the Fredericksburg Courthouse from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. tomorrow.

The clinic was established here ten years ago by the Fredericksburg chapter of the Crippled Children's Hospital.

Marksmanship Record Is Set By Md. Guards

First Regiment Leads All U. S. Units in Test, Leader Reveals.

Maryland's Fighting First is "first" in the United States in marksmanship, a bulletin issued by Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, commanding the Maryland National Guard, has revealed. The bulletin was forwarded to each unit of the regiment by Col. D. John Markey, of Frederick, commanding the regiment.

The First Regiment qualified the highest percentage of men in regiments throughout the United States in rifle and automatic rifle firing on the range and ranked fourth in machine gun firing and fifth in 3-inch trench mortar and 37 millimeter gun firing. The entire personnel of the regiment completed the rifle, machine gun and automatic rifle course and 96.7 per cent in the heavier arms, the bulletin states.

The regiment has distinguished precedent for its marksmanship ability. The first Maryland troops ever called to the defense of the Nation used targets held in the hands of their comrades to demonstrate their marksmanship while they were preparing at Frederick to respond to George Washington's call to arms.

"The record is a remarkable one and as a whole is the best regimental record in marksmanship throughout the United States for the season of 1933," Maj. Gen. Reckord wrote. "This splendid achievement is commended and is a concrete example of cooperation upon the part of the entire personnel of the regiment and worthy of emulation."

Ray Awaiting U. S. Ultimatum

Democratic Chairman in Maryland May Resign Post.

Baltimore, June 22 (Spl.).—Notification of the Federal Government's ultimatum that he can not hold a Government job and occupy a post in a political organization was being awaited today by J. Enos Ray, collector of internal revenue for Maryland.

Mr. Ray also is chairman of the Democratic State central committee.

At his home at Chillum, where he is ill, Mr. Ray issued the following statement:

"I have received no notice of this kind from the Treasury Department. Until I do receive such a notice, I will, of course, have no statement to make."

The opinion was expressed among Democratic officials here today that Mr. Ray will resign his position as State central committee chairman.

Indications are that Secretary of State David C. Winebrenner 3d, of Frederick, will be the choice of Democratic leaders for State central committee chairman in the event Mr. Ray gives up that position.

Treasury Income In Va. Increases

Richmond, June 22 (AP).—State treasury receipts have taken a jump since May 1, owing mainly to payment of taxes on corporation incomes and on shares of bank stock, the office of the State comptroller announced today.

These taxes were due on or before June 1. On June 18, the payments have totaled $1,274,994. Of this amount $874,418 represents payments on corporation incomes and $400,576 payments on shares of bank stock.

Of the amounts listed above $517,000 was paid on corporation incomes up to and including May 30, and $284,576 on shares of bank stock up to and including that date.

Tri-City Groups Plan Historical Developments

Hagerstown, Gettysburg, Frederick Hope to Attract Tourists.

Gettysburg, Pa., June 22 (Spl.).—A tri-city organization to develop and advertise historic points of interest in Gettysburg, Frederick and Hagerstown, Md., will likely result from the first of a series of meetings held here yesterday. The Chamber of Commerce entertained representatives of the Frederick and Hagerstown chambers.

Six members of the Hagerstown chamber, President John B. Ferguson, Vice President Vinton Hershey, and Directors Wallace Caum, Park Loy, Roy Leiter and Merritt Campbell, were met at the Mason & Dixon line and escorted here by representatives of the Gettysburg chamber. They were taken over the battlefield, through the industries of the town and then were guests with the Frederick representatives at a dinner last night.

An effort was made several years ago by interests in the three towns to organize a tri-city group to develop historical points, which abound in the vicinity of the three towns.

It is felt by representatives of the local chamber that the time is ripe for such an organization because of the resumption of tourist travel, and also in view of recent developments in Washington County, where three historical points are now being developed. These include the Battlefield of Antietam at Sharpsburg, where thousands of dollars have been spent in developing the battlefield; Fort Frederick, one of the few pre-Revolutionary war fortresses still standing, and the Washington Monument at Boonsboro, which is to be restored to its original condition when built in 1826.

Gettysburg also has its battlefield, visited by thousands annually, while Frederick boasts the Barbara Fritchie house, the tomb of Francis Scott Key, author of the "Star-Spangled Banner," and the home of Chief Justice Taney.

Baltimore, June 22 (Spl.).—A pair of shoes led to the arraignment in police court today of Sidney Friedman, coproprietor of a delicatessen store.

Mrs. Helen Carver, who said she had been employed as a waitress at Freedman's shop, testified she resigned after working five days and was given only 90 cents for her work. Friedman told her, she said, that the cost of uniforms and an employment agency's fee had been deducted.

When Mrs. Carver reached home, she recalled she had left a pair of shoes at the delicatessen, but when she went for them, she said, Friedman refused to surrender them unless she paid him 85 cents as a "fine" for not giving him proper notice that she was going to quit.

So Mrs. Carver swore out a warrant for him. He pleaded not guilty at the hearing and will face grand jury action.

Round Table Religious Talks To Feature U. of V. Session

Charlottesville, Va., June 22 (AP).—Religious problems are to play an important part in discussions of the eighth institute of public affairs at the University of Virginia which begins Sunday, July 1, and will continue for two weeks.

Various questions are to be discussed in four round table conferences, two of which will be held each week. In addition there will be two Sunday evening vesper services.

During the first week, the two religious round tables will be on "The Function of the Church in Modern Life," led by the Rev. Dr. John McDowell, moderator of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America, and "Home Ownership and the Country Church," led by Dr. Henry W. McLaughlin, director of the country church department of the Presbyterian Church in the United States.

During the second week, the religious discussions will be on "Protestant-Catholic-Jewish relationships in America," led by the Rev. Dr. Everett R. Clinchy, director of the National Conference of Jews and Christians, and "religious education," led by the Rev. Minor C. Miller, general secretary of the Virginia Council on Religious Education.

Among those who will appear before the groups are the Rev. Stanley High, of Stamford, Conn.; Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, New York City; Dr. Clarence Poe, editor of the Progressive Farmer; the Rev. Cameron Parker Hall, New York; Dr. Harold E. Fey, editor of the World Call; Prof. G. W. Forster, University of North Carolina; the Rev. Arthur W. Hewitt, Riverton, Vt.; Dr. Carl C. Taylor, of the United States Department of Labor; Rabbi Edward N. Calish, Richmond; Prof. George Walker Fiske, Oberlin College; Father John Elliott Ross, Charlottesville; Dr. C. A. Hauser, editor of educational publications, Reformed Church; Miss Frances M. Lester, division of leadership training, Methodist Episcopal Church, South; Prof. Edna Baxter, Hartford School of Religious Education, and the Rev. George C. Bellingrath, Richmond.

Va. Restricts Liquor Sales By Druggists

Competition With State Stores Draws A. B. C. Regulation.

Richmond, June 22 (Spl.).—The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board today adopted strict regulations governing the dispensing of spirituous liquors by druggists, after ruling that neighborhood blanket protests against issuance of wine-beer licenses can not be considered under the A. B. C. act.

The druggist regulations are designed to stop the dispensing of liquor by drug stores except for bona-fide medicinal use, and will end a general practice which has made many drug stores competitors of the State A. B. C. stores. The new rules will become effective when formally published by the board "within a few days," it was announced.

The board's opinion on blanket protests followed the march of approximately 100 bone-dry citizens upon the A. B. C. department with a request that it deny licenses to all applicants in north Richmond. Under the ruling, licenses will be granted in the North Side and elsewhere unless objectors can show that the applicant is not a proper person or his establishment is not a proper place.

Text of A. B. C. Order.

Under the order affecting druggists:

Prescriptions can be written only by licensed, practicing physicians.

They must be wholly in the handwriting of the physician, written in the English language without abbreviations.

They must be dated as of the day written and good for only ten days.

They must contain the name and address of the patient and the name and address of the physician, and, while the amount can be up to a gallon in quantity, each prescription must be filled in its entirety when presented.

Druggists must mark each prescription with the date filled, the amount and quantity.

Only original containers of the liquor may be used by the druggists in filling prescriptions and each must bear its proper stamp and labels and have its seal unbroken.

Prescriptions must be preserved for examination by inspectors of the board.

No person holding a druggist's license shall store any liquor in his place of business except that offered for sale by prescription.

A.B.C. "Lacks Authority."

The A.B.C. Board is without authority to declare unstamped liquor illegal and the possession thereof as prima facie evidence of a violation of the State law, Vivian L. Page, chairman of the House courts of justice committee of the General Assembly, declared today at Norfolk, it was learned here.

"While I believe everybody should patronize the State liquor stores, now that the State is providing what is said to be reasonably good liquor at a reasonable price, I do not believe the A.B.C. Board has any power to formulate legislation that changes a fundamental principle of the rules of evidence," said Mr. Page. "I do not believe there should be any more presumption of guilt as to violations of the liquor laws than in murder or theft cases.

"The A.B.C. law gives the board full authority to regulate its own sales and in licensing the sale of wine and beer, but I am quite certain it has no delegation of power to change the rules of evidence in criminal practice."

The point raised by several lawyers, including one or two members of the General Assembly, is that the order of the board as published undertakes to change the rules of evidence, as laid down by the code for criminal procedure, by putting the burden on a defendant to prove that liquor was illegally acquired when it does not bear the board's sale stamp.

Virginia Hospital Outlay Approved

Board Backs $119,000 Item for Fireproofing.

Richmond, June 22 (AP).—An administratioun plan for the expenditure of $119,000 in fireproofing buildings of Virginia State hospitals was approved by the general hospital board at a meeting with the Governor today.

The available money was appropriated by the Legislature for the installation of sprinkler systems and other fire-prevention equipment.

Action was taken at a meeting which began at noon and lasted several hours. Members of the special boards governing each State hospital, as well as the officers of the several institutions, attended. It was the second time that the whole board has been in session since it was reorganized according to an act of 1932.

Virginia Grange to Meet.

So the Horse Is Defunct!

Shenandoah Valley, Once the Empire of Heavy Draft Animals, Now Can't Get Enough of Them, So Breeding Is Resumed.

Harrisonburg, Va., June 22 (Spl.). The Shenandoah Valley, once the empire of the heavy draft horse, now is faced with the necessity of importing Western horses, particularly for farm work. When this horse kingdom was in its glory shipping horses here would have been like hauling hoodlums to Chicago.

Until the motor age began, Harrisonburg was the largest draft horse market in the East. It was common for 100 to 150 horses to change hands on "Court Day" and be shipped to all parts of the country. Every farmer kept several breeding mares. He also had a surplus of horses and, when he needed cash, sold them at good prices.

But in the last decade the horse market dropped to such low levels that it no longer was profitable to raise them. Then, too, the farmer sold off every available horse to get much needed cash. This resulted in the present shortage. The farmer now has no young horses to replace his old stock and cannot find them in his home vicinity.

A good farm horse now will bring about $175 and should be at least five years old before being put to heavy draft work. This shortage and good prevailing prices have started farmers to breeding horses again but it will be several years before the supply is equal to the demand.

Roy P. Beery, local horse dealer, says there is no end to the demand for good finished draft horses. He went to Chicago yesterday to buy a carload of them to fill local orders.

Heads Firemen

5,000 Firemen In Gala March At Cambridge

Maryland Smoke Eaters End 1934 Session With Annual Ball.

By Lelia B. Smith.

Cambridge, Md., June 22.—With a sizzzling sun blazing down upon them, 5,000 fire fighters and representatives of the volunteer system of nearly every town in Maryland, paraded a 2-mile course today as the zenith of their forty-second convention, which closed tonight with a firemen's ball.

Accompanying them were several companies from neighboring States which formed a part of the pageant.

Four persons collapsed from the heat.

Business was suspended at noon. The parade was directed by Austin Baughman, commissioner of motor vehicles of Maryland, and J. E. Reynolds, superintendent of the highway police of Delaware.

At the reviewing stand the parade halted while Russell P. Smith, chairman of the parade committee, escorted Noble F. Rushe, of Hyattsville, newly elected president, to a seat on the platform. City officials and members of the local police board were also in the grand stand. Chief Lutz of the Wilmington (Del.) Fire Department sat with them.

Radcliffe On Hand.

Prominent among those reviewing the parade was George L. Radcliffe, Democratic candidate for the nomination of Governor of Maryland and a native of this city. In the Radcliffe party were former Gov. Emerson C. Harrington, P. Watson Webb, Howard Simmons, Milford Nathan, W. D. Gould 3d., Dr. Guy Steele, L. D. T. Noble, Emerson C. Harrington, jr., Charles N. Spence, Thomas B. Radcliffe.

The Salisbury Co., accompanied by members of the auxiliary carrying Japanese parasols, presented a colorful aspect. Mrs. Mildred Chatham, who was elected president at this convention, was among the women in this section. One National Guard outfit, Company C, of Cambridge, interpersed the firemen's organizations.

Much applause greeted the Susquehanna Hose Co., of Havre de Grace. They were accompanied by a drum and bugle corps, in costume, representing youth of all ages. The Lonaconing Co. paused before the reviewing stand long enough to execute a number of drills. Prince Georges Ladies Auxiliary, led by Mrs. Mary A. Baker, of Hyattsville, and Mrs. Nina Merryman, of Bladensburg, dressed in glistening white satin, received the acclaim of the crowds. Firemen from Rockville, Annapolis, and Rivercale were applauded as they passed in review.

The parade ended in Spring Valley, and was closed by exhibition drills and band contests. During the speaking which followed, Mr. Radcliffe spoke briefly on taxes. He said "it seems easy to get money by taxation, but if a tax is repealed, it is placed somewhere else." He believes in a study of taxation to see if there can be a reduction.

Fire Chiefs Elect Heads.

Fire chiefs, organized this morning at the session of fire chiefs and assistants, elected Howard W. Travers, of Baltimore, president. George Finger, of Capitol Heights, was made secretary, and W. H. Shipley, Ellicott City, treasurer.

Sherwood Brockwell, fire chief of North Carolina, spoke in favor of relief for firemen and their dependent families. He also opposed the erection of buildings which add to fire risk.

At a special session of the convention this morning exception was taken to a syndicated article, published yesterday throughout the State, that the firemen rejected the Governor's appointment of an insurance commission. The body registered objection to insurance men having a majority, and accepted the committee with the addition of the incoming State president, the chairman of legislation, and Walter R. Hough, of Baltimore, making a committee in which the firemen have equal representation with insurance interests.

List of Winners.

A committee composed of Chief William J. Lutz, of the Wilmington Fire Department; Maj. R. H. Rosemere and former Mayor Earle W. Orem, announced the following winners of prizes:

Company making best appearance with 25 or more uniformed men in line, Westminster; company having most uniformes men in line, with apparatus, Salisbury; company having best fire-fighting apparatus (salvage truck excepted, Water Witch Company, Annapolis; best band in line, playing as they passed reviewing stand, Westminster; second best band in line, Federalsburg; best drum and bugle corps, Havre de Grace; company coming the longest distance, Lonaconing; best decorated residence, W. Nicholas Williams; best decorated place, Phillips Hardware Co.

Out-of-State prizes were awarded Ellendale, Del., for making the best appearance; Talleyville, Del., for having the best fire-fighting apparatus; Laurel, Del., best band; Delmar, Del., second best band; Talleyville, Del., company coming longest distance. Federalsburg won first prize in the band contest and Sharptown second. Easton was given first honors for the ladies auxiliary unit, making the best appearance, and Salisbury was second. A special prize was awarded Prince Georges County.

Member of Old Family.

A member of one of the oldest families of Hyattsville, he has been chief of that fire department for over 15 years. His father held the office before him. He is also a former vice president of the National Firemen's Association.

Other officers elected were E. B. Miller, Sparrows Point, first vice president; John N. Hornberger, Annapolis, second vice president; George R. Lindsay, Hagerstown, secretary; Frank Truitt, Ocean City, treasurer; Marc Bryant, Denton, trustee for the short term; Roy L. Morgan, Annapolis, trustee for the long term; the Rev. James W. Minter, Hereford, chaplain.

Oakland was selected as the convention city for next year.

The George W. Colborn honor cup was presented to Wilbur R. Dulin, of West Annapolis Fire Co., as the outstanding fireman of the State. Dulin, who is a road foreman for the Annapolis Metropolitan Sewerage Commission, rescued Mrs. Helen Paska, after driving through an open draw into Weems Creek. Dulin, who had been trained in life saving by the Red Cross, brought the victim to the surface alive, although she died a few hours later. Dulin, who was just recovering from the grippe, ran 100 yards from his home to the scene of the accident.

Auxiliary units, which have been meeting in the session room of Rescue Fire Company, elected the following officers tonight: President, Mrs. Mildred Chatham, Salisbury; senior vice president, Mrs. Mary Baker, Hyattsville; junior vice president, Mrs. Mary Walker, Berwyn Heights; secretary, Mrs. Nellie Gutherie, Salisbury; treasurer, Mrs. Virginia Lee Kenowith, Pikesville; historian, Mrs. Mary Wood, Rock Hall, and chancellor, Mrs. Anna Burnette, Branchville.

Maryland Plea Asks Set Price To Aid Farmer

Salisbury Civic Groups Protest Code Costs to Roosevelt.

Salisbury, Md., June 22 (AP).—A petition was sent to President Roosevelt and the Agricultural Adjustment Administration today by three Salisbury civic organizations urging them to set a minimum price on all farm produce.

The petition asserted that the prices paid to truck farmers on the Del-Mar-Va Peninslula, where much truck farming is done, is "insufficient to pay for seed, fertilizers, packages, freight and labor, leaving nothing for the farmer himself to live on and support his family."

"The condition has been worse this year of 1934 because of codes governing those dealing with the farmer, increasing the cost of hired help, machinery, equipment, stock, packages, fertilizer and seeds, without in any way reflecting that increase in the returns to the farmer in the sale of his products."

The petition called attention to the present bean crop, asserting the cost to the consumer in Eastern cities is 700 per cent higher than the price the farmer receives.

Orchestra Formed At Cumberland, Md.

Membership to Be Raised to Sixty Players.

Cumberland, Md., June 22 (Spl.). The Cumberland Festival Orchestra has been organized with a membership of more than 20 musicians.

The membership will be increased to 60. The orchestra played for the first time at the opening of the new Cumberland Free Public Library. G. Walter Fisher, prominent in music circles, was conductor.

It is proposed to organize a choral society in connection with the orchestra. Singers from church choirs and music groups in public schools have asked to participate.

Lecturer Gets Bird in the Bush

Buckhannon, W. V., June 22 (Spl.).—Students of the nature class of the West Virginia Wesleyan College summer school were listening to Prof. Jonathan Westfall lecture on hawks. The professor regretted he did not have such a bird on hand for illustration.

At that moment a commotion started among a large flock of birds on the Wesleyan campus. A hawk had become entangled in wires of a fence near the athletic field and was struggling to get loose.

Two men students detailed by the professor delivered the hawk to him.

President of Harrisonburg Group Succeeds Late G. E. Andrus.

Harrisonburg, Va., June 22 (Spl.). Russell L. Stultz, Rockingham World War veterans' leader and former newspaperman, was named secretary of the Harrisonburg Chamber of Commerce at the meeting of the board of directors last night. He succeeds the late George E. Andrus, who died six weeks ago.

Stultz resides at Tenth Legion, near here. He has been engaged in the milling business since his return from France but has devoted much time to activities of World War veterans and publicity work. He is historian of the Eightieth Division and is past commander of the Virginia Department, Veterans of Foreign Wars. He was one of the organizers of the local post of Veterans of Foreign Wars, one of the first in Virginia. He has been one of the leading contributors to the V. F. W. and Eightieth Division publications, and is now compiling a history of his division.

In selecting Stultz, the directors passed resolutions praising the work of the late Mr. Andrus during his three years' service.

Local Officers Pay Virginia $23,340

Revenue Under Hall Act Not All In Yet.

Richmond, June 22 (Spl.).—A total of $23,340.10 has been paid into the State treasury this year as a result of the Hall act, passed by the General Assembly of 1932, which requires various officers of localities to pay into the State treasury 10 per cent of fees collected during 1933, it was learned at the office of E. R. Combs, State comptroller today.

Many officers have not yet made the required payments. Two-thirds of the revenue from this source will be sent back to the localities. The other third will go to the State.

The act provides that for the year 1933 every court clerk, county and city treasurer, county and city commissioner of the revenue, county and city sheriff, city sergeants, high constable, examiner of records and attorney for the Commonwealth shall pay the 10 per cent.

Textile Unit Backs LaborBoard Ruling

Hopewell, Va., June 22 (AP).—Local 2170 of the United Textile Workers of America last night unanimously voted to accept the decision of the National Labor Board in the Tubize Chatillon Corporation case, and then went on record as pledging enforcement of the ruling's terms.

"Local 2170 unanimously accepts the decision of the National Labor Board," A. T. Bowden, representative of the Virginia Federation of Labor, said. "If the company attempts in any manner to evade the decision the union unanimously pledges all its efforts to make the decision binding on both the company and the union.

"Power to call a strike is still in the hands of the executive board, to be exercised when they deem it necessary—when all other means have failed."

$177,518 Benefits Paid N. & W. Labor

Roanoke, Va., June 22 (Spl.).—Benefits totaling $177,518.25 were received by Norfolk & Western Railway Co. employes and their families in the first quarter of 1934, it is reported by J. C. Snavely, superintendent of the railway's relief and pension department.

On March 31 the fund had a balance of $2,707,628.11, an increase of nearly $100,000 over the same quarter last year.

The fund, established in 1917, has paid $8,631,404.61 in benefits. The railway has expended $1,959,652.02 for the establishment and operation of the department.

R.S. Luttrell New President of Augusta Unit; Others Named.

Harrisonburg, Va., June 22 (Spl.). R. S. Luttrell, of Clifton Forge, was elected president of the Augusta Association Baptist Young People's Union at the annual convention held yesterday at the Broadway Baptist Church.

Other officers named were Charles Hall, Staunton; Bessie Whitesell, Buena Vista; Pauline Aldhizer, Broadway, and L. D. Barnett, Covington, vice presidents; J. S. Wilkerson, of Clifton Forge, secretary and treasurer, and the Rev. S. C. Hutton, Broadway, chorister.

Buena Vista was chosen for the next convention of the association which embraces the counties of Rockingham, Augusta, Alleghany, Bath and Rockbridge.

Arlene Evans, of Clifton Forge, won the sword drill contest and thus will be given a free trip to the B. Y. P. U. State convention at Virginia Beach in July.

Dam Builders Find Stone Formations

Excavation Reveals Trees Were Changed to Rock.

Harrisonburg, Va., June 22 (Spl.). Rock formations estimated by geologists to be 200,000,000 years old have been uncovered in excavations for the submerged dam being constructed at the city of Harrisonburg water source at Rawley Springs, 12 miles west of here.

The formations are sandstones in the form of a small butcher's block. They are among the oldest formations discovered in the Appalachian Mountain system, which is said by geologists to be the oldest in America.

The sandstones were formed by trunks of trees rotting out and sand replacing the wood, later becoming solidified. A number of other varieties of rock have been unearthed in the dry river bed excavation. One variety appears to carry an amount of heavy minerals. Others appear to be a mixture of slate and limestone.

Parade Ends Franklin Firemen's Convention

Waynesboro, Pa., June 22 (Spl.).—A large parade last evening concluded the third annual Franklin County Volunteer Firemen's Association convention at Mount Alto, north of here. Nearly 1,000 firemen participated in the parade, which was featured by the appearance of a score of fire trucks and bands.

Eagles Elect Officers At Portsmouth Session

Other officers are Thomas F. Gray, of Norfolk Lodge, No. 162, outside guard; E. F. Fuller, of Richmond, secretary; J. E. Barr, South Richmond, vice president; V. R. Travers, Alexandria, Va., chaplain; William Schnider, Winchester, conductor; J. T. Brown, treasurer; John W. Moss, J. J. Cherry and B. T. Croker, trustees.

Rites for Poison Victim Conducted at Danville

Danville, Va., June 22 (Spl.). Samuel Lind, 87, who swallowed poison and died at Martinsville yesterday, was buried in the Jewish Cemetery here this evening.

Formerly a jeweler of Pittsburgh, he had gone to live with his daughter, Mrs. Morris Prager, in Martinsville, a month ago. A restaurant waiter dashed a capsule from Lind's hand yesterday, but while the waiter telephoned to Mrs. Prager, Lind drew out a vial of poison and swallowed it.

Culpeper Told Of Early Days

Culpeper, Va., June 22 (Spl.).—In his address on "Culpeper Courthouse" at the anniversary celebration held here last evening, Col. John Philip Clayton Hill, of Baltimore, gave a sketch of the early history of the county and of the town of Fairfax, later called Culpeper, which was laid out on 50 acres of land donated by his ancestor, Robert Coleman.

The original city fathers were represented in the gathering by descendants of the well-known families of Slaughter, Pendleton, Green, Williams and Claytons, many of whom were on the speakers' stand.

The program, sponsored by the Culpeper Chamber of Commerce, and directed by Leon R. Waters, president, and Charles N. Goldsborough, secretary, was held on the courthouse lawn and opened with a half-hour concert by the municipal band.

Church Presents 3 Groups in Plays

Westminster, Md., June 22 (Spl.). With three dramatic groups participating, the second annual interchurch festival of religious drama was held in Sykesville Methodist Episcopal parish hall, last night.

Under the auspices of the Carroll County Council of Religious Education, the dramatizations were: "The Bishop's Candlesticks," young people of Belle Grove Square Church of the Brethren, Westminster; "The Color Line," Carrollton circuit dramatic club of Patapsco and Pleasant Grove M. E. Churches; and "Burnt Offerings," young people's dramatic club of Baust Reformed Church.

The festival, which is held primarily to raise the standard of religious drama in the county, was well attended.

Smithsburg Depositors To Receive 15 Per Cent

Hagerstown, Md., June 22 (Spl.). The first report, providing for the distribution of $52,500, representing 15 per cent of the deposits of the Peoples' Bank of Smithsburg, was approved by Judge Frank G. Wagaman today, and distribution will be made to several hundred depositors within the next two weeks, A. C. Merriam, receiver, announced.

The Peoples' Bank closed September, 1931. It was then a branch of the Central Trust Co. of Frederick County. The courts, however, later divorced the Smithsburg bank from the Frederick institution and returned most of its assets as they existed at the time of the merger.

Alonzo Pyles Funeral Held at Hyndman

Cumberland, Md., June 22 (Spl.). Funeral services were held today at Hyndman, 14 miles north of here, for Alonzo Pyles, native of Dickerson, Md., who was stricken with paralysis on Sideling Hill Mountain. He died in a nearby garage.

Survivors are, sisters, Mrs. Laura Disney, Washington; Mrs. Sally Price, Frederick; brothers, Wallace Pyles, Urbana, Md.; A. T. Pyles, Bluefield, W. Va., and Reggie Pyles, Washington. He also leaves two sons, Everett, Myersville, Md., and Roy, Hyndman, and two daughters, Mrs. Laura Tucker, Garrett, Pa., and Mrs. E. F. Short, Anna, Ohio.

Richmond Girl Missing; Amnesia Is Feared

Richmond, June 22 (AP).—Police of Norfolk, Washington and other cities have been advised to be on the lookout for 18-year-old Charlotte Reid. The girl vanished last Friday after having been seen dancing at a roof garden here.

Alleghany County Relief Rolls Record Gain in May

Cumberland, Md., June 22 (Spl.). The number of families in Alleghany County listed on the relief rolls of the county welfare board in May aggregated 2,492, as compared with 2,199 in April. The number of persons included in the figures was 10,304 in May and 9,153 in April.

Miss Elizabeth G. Smith, executive secretary, said that families on relief this month would be greater than in May, with indications of a further rise during the summer.

"The present and indicated increase in the number of families on direct and work relief is largely due to the fact that large numbers of miners have part-time work during the winter, when demand for fuel increases mining operations," Miss Smith said.

During May, the welfare board spent $45,913.82, as compared with $31,620.52 in April. The figures are for direct relief and work relief.

Joseph Carson Funeral Today

Former Riverton Lime Co. Official Dies at 74 at Woodstock.

Front Royal, Va., June 22 (Spl.). Joseph Lougheed Carson, a resident of Riverton and Front Royal until a few years ago, who died yesterday in the home of his daughter, Mrs. George Carrington, in Woodstock, aged 74 years, will be buried here tomorrow. Mr. Carson was treasurer of the Riverton Lime Co. for many years until his retirement, due to ill health. He was a man of exceptional literary culture, a thirty-second degree Mason and a leading authority on Masonic history and ritual. For many years he was a contributor to fraternal periodicals.

He was the son of the late Samuel Carson and Mrs. Annie Lougheed Carson. He married Miss Janie McNeil, a native of Ireland, who survives.

Mr. Carson is survived also by four daughters, Mrs. Dutton, wife of Dr. B. B. Dutton, Winchester; Mrs. George Carrington, Woodstock; Mrs. William Paxton, Harrisonburg, and Mrs. Percy Randolph, Berryville, and one son, Lieut. Joseph Carson, jr., of the United States Naval Air Service.

More Enter Race In West Virginia

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 22 (Spl.).—Candidates continue to register for legislative seats in the August State-wide primary.

Joe M. Woodford, lumber operator and stock raiser, of Elkins, has filed for Democratic nomination for a Randolph County seat in the House of Delegates.

Another house candidate is Foster L. Rine, of Moundsville, who seeks Republican nomination for Marshall County membership.

O. M. Jarrett, of Pinch, for Kanawha County membership in the house on the Democratic ticket.

Virginia Builder Dead at Richmond

C. G. Whetzel, Winchester, Passes at Hospital.

Winchester, Va., June 22 (Spl.). Carey Gordon Whetzel, 31, Winchester contractor, died late yesterday in a Richmond hospital, friends here were advised today.

A native of Singer's Glen, Rockingham County, Mr. Whetzel came to Winchester several years ago. Surviving are his widow, his mother, Mrs. Frances Whetzel, and the following sisters and brothers: D. Olin, Raymond and Scott Whetzel and Miss Ava Whetzel, Mrs. Roy Henkel, Mrs. Howard Lannon, Miss Goldie Whetzel and Miss Calvin Whetzel, all of Rockingham County.

Funeral rites will be conducted from the home of Dr. Whetzel's father-in-law, John H. Myers, here tomorrow at 4 p. m.

CCC Youth Killed In Auto-Truck Crash

Roanoke, Va., June 22 (AP).—Eugene Lead, about 24, of Naples, N. Y., was killed this morning when the car in which he and two others were returning to a Tennessee CCC camp ran into the side of a Kroger Grocery & Banking Co. truck in Salem, about 6 miles west of here.

Lead, officers said, was thrown under the rear wheel of the truck. He was killed instantly. Two other occupants of the car, Lawrence Jones, of Oswego, N. Y., said to have been the driver, and Richard Schultz, also of New York, were not injured.

W. T. Koontz Is Dead; Mayor of Shenandoah

Shenandoah, Va., June 22 (Spl.). W. T. Koontz, 61, for the past 25 years mayor of Shenandoah, died at his home here at 11 p. m. yesterday.

For the last 15 years cashier of the First National Bank of Shenandoah, Mr. Koontz is survived by his widow and two daughters, Misses Frances and Dorothy Koontz.

Culpeper to Fete Masons of State

Culpeper, Va., June 22 (Spl.).—Dr. William Moseley Brown, grand master of the Grand Lodge of Virginia, Ancient, Free and Accepted Masons, will visit the Fairfax Lodge of Culpeper Sunday for a special service in the high-school auditorium.

All nearby Masonic lodges have been invited to attend, and the cooperation of all local churches has been secured so that no service will be held at the same hour and the pastors will take part in the program.

The committee on arrangements, including T. I. Martin, F. H. White, the Rev. M. F. Draper, and Hugh Ryan, master of the local lodge, have announced that special music will be rendered by the Culpeper Orchestra, under the direction of Mrs. Taylor Amiss.

Karl Sherrill Heads Piedmont Millers

Roanoke, Va., June 22 (AP).—Karl Sherrill, of Statesville, N. C., was elected president of the Piedmont Millers' Association, succeeding E. C. Wine, of Harrisonburg, at this morning's session of the association's annual convention, which is being held at Hotel Patrick Henry here.

Other officers elected were G. H. Vaden, Gretna, first vice president; W. W. G. Smart, Shelby, N. C., second vice president, and S. F. Poindexter, Richmond, reelected secretary. Members of the executive committee elected are C. B. Fretwell, Spartansburg, S. C.; E. C. Wine, Harrisonburg; C. E. Worley, Bluff City, Tenn.; James A. Sloan, Mount Ulla, N. C., and E. C. Fockler, Richmond.

The association voted in favor of an exchange rate on grain to the farmer based on fluctuating prices of wheat.

The "Kick-Back" Racket.

Suspension of the prevailing wage requirements of the Bacon-Davis act by Presidential order does not obviate the need for a thorough inquiry into the so-called "kick-back" racket. Secretaries Ickes and Perkins agree that confusion has resulted from the simultaneous operation of this statute and the industrial recovery act. But the issue involved in the "kick-back" hearing being conducted by Senator Walsh goes much deeper than the discrepancy between these two acts.

In the inauguration of the public works program to create jobs, Congress provided that employers entering into contracts with the Government should pay the wage rates prevailing in the locality where the work is to be done. The objective was, of course, to protect workingmen from exploitation in a period when jobs are scarce. If the purpose of that act is being defeated by secret arrangements, the workers have cause for vigorous objection. And it is up to the Government to see that remedial measures are taken.

The "kick-back" has a vital connection with the whole wage dispute in the local building trades. When workmen are forced to give back part of their pay by devious means, excessive wage demands are encouraged, and there is a tendency to put the whole question of wage rates on a false basis. We do not know how extensively the "kick-back" racket has been practiced in Washington, but it may be a significant element in the demands of some groups for abnormal wage rates which seem entirely out of line with economic facts.

There are various methods by which such exploitation of wage earners may be practiced. In some cases, it appears, wages have been paid in vouchers and charges have been made for cashing them. Witnesses before Senator Walsh's committee allege that outright cash refunds from their wages were required as a condition of employment. Denial of these charges by the accused employers further complicates the issue and makes a searching inquiry still more imperative.

No excuse can be made for underhanded methods of dealing with labor. It is difficult enough to adjust differences between employers and employes when all the cards are laid on the table. With the "kick-back" in operation, confidence is entirely lacking and the basis on which reasonable agreements might be made is destroyed. In probing to the bottom of this racket Senator Walsh is doing the right thing, at the right time.

Pursuing The Inquiry.

It is a matter for congratulation that the House Committee engaged in investigating the methods followed in making Army purchases has been empowered to continue its inquiry during the summer months. The information acquired in connection with the probe into the air-mail contracts calls for further action and as the committee proceeds, it seems quite probable that it will unearth other irregularities that should be brought to public attention.

The testimony given by Col. Joseph I. McMullen, who acknowledges receiving a retaining fee from the Cuban-American Manganese Co. while on active duty in the Army, may, of course, be an isolated instance of divided allegiance. But the public wishes to be assured on that point, especially as the practice of serving two masters is found in so many branches of the public service in State and Nation. The result is that it tends to become an entrenched evil difficult to eradicate because public opinion does not sufficiently condemn it.

Enough evidence of irregularities has been produced in any case to make it imperative for the committee to proceed with its investigation. If its findings prove to be negative, the work will not have been in vain. Such outcome would give assurance that our heavy outlays for National defense are not being dissipated.

A Costly Game.

The British are preparing to impound balances due to German exporters and apply them to payments due from Germany on debt account. The Germans have replied by hinting that they may impose an embargo upon English goods and possibly upon Empire products, if their exchange reserves are seized. Quite apart from the merits of the controversy, it is clear that the British are following a singularly inconsistent and essentially short-sighted policy in trying to settle a debt issue by force.

Seizure of German balances would reduce the exchange of goods to a minimum, as Dr. Schacht said when protesting against the proposed British action. This is undoubtedly true, since reprisals lead inevitably to retaliation and the result is a steady shrinkage of the volume of trade, upon which maintenance of debt payments depends. Furthermore, Germany relies upon imports to provide many industrial raw materials subsequently transformed into finished goods for export. Retaliatory import embargoes would, therefore, further impair Germany's ability to export, already reduced by the impounding of her foreign credit balances.

This vicious circle of reprisals and retaliation would lead inevitably to a progressive destruction of foreign trade between the warring countries and ultimately between the debtor country and the rest of the world. It is strange that the British are unable to see the folly of their own methods, when they appreciate so clearly the mistakes of policy committed by a creditor country in the position of the United States.

A New Banking Era.

Under the Banking Act of 1933 the divorce of commercial banking from investment banking was decreed. The instinctive cry of dismay that went up from the banks and investment houses affected soon died away. And the changes which were required by June 16, a year from the date of the law's passage, have been made without attracting much public attention.

Nevertheless, the separation of security affiliates from parent banks, and the segregation of the business of handling investment securities from that of receiving deposits, mark a significant transition. A hybrid type of banking business has given way to one which differentiates between these related activities.

The optimism with which some of the private investment houses face the future is shown by the fact that an encouragingly large number have elected to continue in the business of underwriting, selling and distributing investment issues. Their choice not only testifies to confidence in the revival of the new capital market; it also provides assurance that the banking legislation has not resulted in crippling or destroying institutional agencies equipped to undertake the flotation of new issues.

At the same time, the separation of security affiliates, and the limitations and restrictions placed upon the underwriting and purchase of investment securities by National banks, emphasize the intention to draw a sharper line of demarcation between commercial and investment banking agencies. If that distinction had been insisted upon in this country as it has been in England—the home of commercial banking in the strict sense of the term—the United States might have been spared a huge number of bank closings, caused by the practice of employing demand deposits to finance long-term capital requirements.

Unfortunately, the regulatory powers of the Federal Reserve Board have not been used to influence the character of the lending carried on by member banks. And the growing competition between National and State banks has encouraged an irresponsible liberalization of banking laws. This has tended more and more to break down the distinction between savings and commercial banking activities.

Commercial banks have to an increasing extent placed their funds payable on demand in long-term investment paper, while savings institutions have in practice undertaken to pay on demand funds invested for long periods of time. The inevitable reckoning came when the speculative collapse left banks confronted with demands for immediate payment. They were loaded with securities that either could not be sold at all or had to be disposed of at great loss.

The commercial banks at present hold great masses of Government securities which are "liquid" assets only so long as they can be sold without loss. So it is perhaps premature to talk about the emancipation of our commercial banking system from investment activities. The Federal Government for the time being is the chief source of new capital for all kinds of operations, and the banks are the financing agencies through which it operates.

But if and when the present abnormal reliance upon public credit is relieved by a revival of private investment activities, it will be everywhere apparent that the foundation for a safer and sounder capital expansion has been provided by the recent changes in the banking laws.

"Draco Wallaca."

When the god Ra (you will find him in almost any good cross word puzzle) conquered the world of darkness, one of his most herculean tasks was to subdue that great serpent Apophis, one of the earliest dragons on record. Since that early time, in Christian mythology, the dragon has played his part. The serpent was the original source of death and sin and from him grew the dragon. Greece and Rome had their hydras, chimaeras, gorgons. Some of them were good dragons. The erudite Encyclopaedia Britannica talks of them with utter seriousness, and why not? There is no question but that dragons, hideous or lovable, have existed. Even St. Augustine admitted that.

It is only sheer ignorance that makes people say of the reptiles just imported by the zoo that they are not dragons, but lizards. In the first place, there is a very definite relationship between lizards and dragons. A good case might even be made out to prove that Boswull's "dragon" was only an overgrown worm. On the other hand, that done to death by Sigurd was not. It had definite shoulders and legs. The death wound was inflicted behind the shoulder. Malory, however, describes King Arthur's dream dragon as "winged and active." Did it not "swough" down from the sky? (Probably an overgrown bat.)

Now this zoo dragon most obviously is not a lizard but a real honest to goodness dragon. He (she?) has shoulders of a sort, and a dragon tail, but is lacking the St. Georgian wings. Of course, thus far no one has seen him (her?) at night, and we have no scientific report upon her (its?) nocturnal habits. Undoubtedly later research and observation will reveal that he, she, or it spits fire. Of that, however, we can not at present be too sure, for dragons are peculiar about this habit, and reserve its manifestation for festive occasions. The night before the Fourth would be the earliest date on which it would be possible to check on this.

A close examination indicates that Dr. Mann's new charge is a dragon of the wyvern type. Wyverns have two legs and a snake-like body. Whether man-eating or not also remains to be seen. We are rather inclined to believe the zoo's dragon is. From its pig-eating habits we have no trouble in understanding why this wyvern is scientifically known as the draco wallaca, and that it will thrive much better in a Washington than a far western climate.

A Blank Check.

Preliminary reports to the effect that Japan wishes to conclude an exclusive non-aggression pact with the United States may serve to save the Tokyo government a mutually undesirable diplomatic rebuff. It is indeed fortunate that the suggestion has been made in an unofficial, informal way, as a trial balloon which can be exploded without harm to anyone.

What the scheme seems to envisage is a pledge by this country to guarantee acceptance in advance of Japanese policy, no matter what turn it might take toward China, or Russia, or even the Philippines. No other conclusion can be drawn from the careful way in which the foreshadowed proposal excludes other Asiatic nations from its scope.

Even in its embryonic form the suggestion calls vividly to mind the origin of the famous Pact of Paris. On April 6, 1927, Foreign Minister Briand proposed, also through the press, that we should make an agreement with France never to use war "as an instrument of national policy" between the two countries. A number of important people, notably Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, fell hard for this subtle suggestion. They failed to see that what France sought was a guarantee that she could handle Germany—or Italy—with complete assurance that we would, under no circumstances, effectively oppose her policy. Exactly the same assurances for Japanese policy toward China—or Russia—would seem to be involved in the reports now emanating from Tokyo.

It will be remembered that the Department of State, with one of those flashes of genius which our diplomacy not infrequently exhibits, turned the exclusive proposal of M. Briand into the inclusive treaty now known as the Pact of Paris. In the brilliant wording of Secretary Kellogg's note of December, 1927:

> It has occurred to me that the two governments, instead of contenting themselves with a bilateral declaration of the nature suggested by M. Briand, might make a more signal contribution to world peace by joining in an effort to obtain the adherence of all the principal powers of the world to a declaration renouncing war as an instrument of national policy.

After this note, France was hoist by her own petard. Having sponsored the suggestion that the solution of all disputes with this country should "never be sought by either side except by pacific means," it was impossible to denounce a multilateral application of the idea. M. Briand wriggled for some weeks, and made reservations which he had not contemplated at first. But the treaty finally went through as applicable to all who wished to sign. It stands today as an imperfect, but still very substantial, contribution to the preservation of world peace.

If the Japanese proceed with their proposal of an exclusive treaty with us, it will not be as simple as in the case of the Kellogg Pact to turn these usages to noble ends. Tokyo has taken care in advance to block extension of the nonaggression scheme in a single treaty. That being so, it may be impossible to do more with the Japanese suggestion than turn it down, politely but firmly, as outside the orbit of our traditional foreign policy.

For that policy will much more consistently fit into the League of Nations system of collective international treaties, which Japan seeks to repudiate, than into the old diplomatic game herewith revived. Often in history aggressive governments have sought to secure blank checks which might help them to carry out their plans unhindered. But it has never been the practice of the United States to sign such checks.

It Cuts Both Ways.

One does not have to approve the code for the cleaning and dyeing industry in order to sympathize with the attack on NRA practices launched by the executive committee of that Code Authority. If substantiated, there is obvious ground for dissatisfaction in the committee's assertion that Gen. Johnson has suspended the price control clause without notice or hearing, and in direct violation of a promise that no material change in the code would be made.

It seems plain, after a brief and stormy experience with the cleaning and dyeing code, that the agreement is in need of drastic revision, especially those sections attempting to fix prices. But we recall that great indignation was manifested in Washington when minimum-price provisions adopted for certain well-organized industries were violated on the mistaken assumption that the NRA had denounced all price-fixing policies. Gen. Johnson said then with characteristic force that parties to code agreements had no warrant for assuming they were released from their obligations until revisions had been made after consultation with representatives of the industry.

If that logic applies in one direction, it seems equally applicable in reverse. Representatives of the cleaning and dyeing industry have spent an enormous amount of time conferring about a code, and a great deal of money has been expended in establishing a Code Authority and staff. Industrial self-regulation under the NRA would be worse than a farce; it would be very costly chaos, if the NRA should attempt to alter the terms of its agreements without prior consultation and due warning to all code members of the impending changes.

"Too Much Emotion."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Whenever I hear the word "brain-trust" (it has already acquired the dignity of a compound word) I recall a very amusing incident:

I studied economics under the supervision of a very able Columbia University instructor. When we began the discussion of labor unions, entrepreneurs, capitalistic organization, and the like, he asked me to express my written opinion of the human side of the problem as it related itself to the mechanical and industrial whole. I was a bit hurried for time, therefore submitted to him a short four-minute article I had already written on "American Character" which outlined my ideas on the subject. The article, while written on a serious subject, was intended to be humorous.

When this able economist again returned to this discussion, he accused me of too much emotion. He had never recognized the fact that it was intended to be humorous. Then, too, he asked me to substantiate statements wherein I had said that our commodities in storage were in the hands of persons not American.

The truth, is that I had not made that statement. What I had said was that an American was an American because he had American principles, quoting, "Many persons born in America are not Americans, and many persons not born in America are loyal Americans; let's see what his principles are." Later I said "Commodities are in storage waiting for prices to go higher. Are these Americans; well, I guess not."

It was such a joke I never bothered to reply or defend myself from the accusations.

MARY ANNE WALFORD.

"A Real Public Service."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Men have most of the advantages in life but women do dress more sensibly in summer with their light-colored, cool clothes. It is an absurdity for men to wear thick, dark-colored wool suits on the hottest days with stiff collars, and it is depressing to people who have to look at them to see them sweltering in the heat on a summer day. All men should wear light Palm Beach suits. They owe it to themselves to discard their hot clothes, and especially do they owe it to the public because it makes others warm just to see them. Men would not like to see women wear navy blue and black wool dresses all summer, and it is no treat either for women to see 90 per cent of the men dress the way they do.

Proper Flag Display.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In the edition of The Post of June 19 you have published under the title "Letters to the Editor" correspondence from A. M. Miller, stating that the flags were not properly displayed at the dedication ceremony of the new Postoffice Department building.

Please be advised that the flags were properly displayed in accordance with the flag circular of the War Department and of the American Legion.

AMBROSE O'CONNELL,

Just a Little Brown Dog.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Lost in the city on a Sunday, when the traffic was at its worst, a little brown dog fell exhausted on the street. He was helpless and unable to fend for himself, trembling with fear, hoping some one would stop to aid him. Some one did—buying him food at a nearby restaurant and filling a paper cup with water, so that he might have a drink.

But where did he live and how could he be returned to his home? He had no collar. A collar can be purchased at the 5 and 10 cent stores and the owner's name may be engraved thereon at any sign store for a small sum.

I want to make an appeal to owners of dogs to place collars on them, with their addresses plainly marked. The little brown dog would have been returned to its home had there been any way of knowing his address.

If you have lost a pet, inquire at the Washington Animal Rescue League, 71 O street northwest. Telephone North 5730. The Rescue returns many lost pets to their owners. The Rescue is always open to receive lost or unwanted animals.

The Case For The Sea Serpent.

LIEUT. COMDR. R. T. GOULD, R. N. (retired), takes sea serpents seriously. His "The Case for the Sea Serpent" is a very serious book and a fascinating one. For Commander Gould has culled history for sober accounts of sea serpents; has corresponded with naval officers who hesitate, expecting public ridicule, to tell in print what they have seen; he has assembled this evidence and added his own conclusions. He believes that sea-serpent stories are based upon at least three types of living creatures not "known to science": a long-necked seal, a gigantic turtle-like creature and, most intriguing of all, a huge swimming sea reptile akin to the plesiosaurus of Mesozoic times.

Don't be too quick in rejecting this as absurdity. The giant squid, with its 30-foot arms, which many scientists now offer in explanation of apparent sea serpents, was, until the 1870's, also regarded as a maritime myth. More than one huge animal has been accepted by science on the evidence of a single carcass—such as the famous Toothless Whale of Havre (Aodon Dalei) and Sowerby's whale, of which, in the last half century, a score of records have accumulated. Up to 1877 only one specimen of the Indian two-horned rhinoceros was known; 30 years ago the okapi was unknown, and this week's newspapers report explorers bringing back from Panama cubs of an unidentified quadruped. It is not inherently improbable that the sea still has its mysteries.

The records, of course, are conflicting. But, as the commander points out, if a dozen jurymen were asked to draw and describe the judge with whom they tried a case the results might well be as discrepant. And the reports of sea serpents, by sober, church-going citizens, are amazingly abundant.

* * * *

PERHAPS the finest collection of data on any sea serpent in history is that on the Gloucester critter of 1817. Boston was ever a curious-minded place, and Boston is close to Gloucester. The Linnaean Society of Boston in August of that year appointed a committee "for the purpose of collecting any evidence which may exist respecting a remarkable animal, denominated a sea serpent, reported to have been seen in and near the harbor of Gloucester," and published its findings, full of the sworn affidavits of 12 eyewitnesses. There were others; apparently the rockbound coast for weeks was littered with spyglass tourists, and the serpent was accommodating. He hung around and arched his back in the sun for all to see.

Amos Storey watched him—50 feet of him—for an hour and a half on August 10, and saw him again on August 23. Solomon Allen 3d saw 90 to 100 feet of him on August 12, 13 and 14. He saw some 50 distinct "bunches" of the beast out of water at one time, and swore that it swung its body from side to side, like a snake. Lonson Nash disagreed; he said its motion was vertical, and he saw only eight "bunches" at once. Matthew Gaffney shot at it on August 14, but missed. Col. T. H. Perkins, hearing of the beast, rushed to Gloucester on August 18, and saw it that afternoon. His experience was a sore topic with him for the rest of his life; some folks dared to laugh at his story. He reported also the testimony of a Mr. Mansfield, "one of the most respectable inhabitants of the town," who with his wife saw the beast stretched out in shoal water. The Mansfields agreed that it was at least as long as their hundred-foot wharf.

Gloucester's sea-serpent story had a distressing second chapter. A month after the beast swam away to sea two small boys found a three-foot snake with a humped back on the beach at Loblolly Cove. The humps in its back seemed so remarkably like the "bunches" in the sea serpent's spine that the Bostonian Linnaeans concluded that it must have been a baby of the sea-serpent species. . . . Unfortunately, further investigation suggested that the Lobolly Cove serpent was a deformed young specimen of the common black snake. That denouement cast an undeserved ridicule, according to Commander Gould, upon the whole Gloucester story.

* * * *

SKEPTICS attribute the recurrent waves of sea-serpent stories to a sort of mass hypnosis, which leads folks to see things in broad sunlight. Commander Gould, assiduously searching the records, produces evidence to show that there has never been any considerable gap in time between one sea-serpent report and another. There was the animal which raised its lean head six feet out of water as Lieut. George Sandford, of H. M. S. Lady Combermere, stared through his spy glass in 1820; the strange beast seen by Dr. Davidson and others on the Royal Saxon in 1829; the 80-foot serpent observed in Halifax Harbor in 1833 by Capt. Sullivan and four fellow officers (Mr. Gould reports only the best attested cases); the unique animal reported by H. M. S. Fly in 1838, and, skipping minor reports, the famous disputed Phoenix of the Deep seen by Capt M'Quhae, of the Daedalus, in 1848.

The Daedalus animal (contemporary pictures of which are not the least interesting of the illustrations to this "Case for the Sea Serpent") was at least 60 feet long, had no fins, but something like the mane of a horse (that is an old tradition among sea serpents), and was seen by several reliable officers, all indignant when their word was questioned. It was reported to the Admiralty and became in its day almost as famous as the Loch Ness monstor of our own period.

* * * *

MANY an ingenious explanation of reported sea phenomena has been based upon creative reconstruction of the undersea parts of the animals. Commander Gould legitimately insists that no sea animal keeps much of its body out of water for any space of time, and the unseen parts are presumably larger and may be very different from those visible to the human eye. This argument obviously gives large opportunity for creative zoologists; it is the basis of Commander Gould's own favorite faith in the plesiosaurus.

Nothing short of capture of a sea serpent and its incarceration in a zoo, the commander fears, would convince most folks today of the reality of the sea serpent. That is probably true. Meanwhile, it is impossible to prove the negative; and the stories reported in this entrancing piece of research will lead the most skeptic to moderate their denials. It at least makes the world more interesting.

The Post Impressionist

Postoffice, Saturday.

WEARIED of Neo-Dadism four brief months after the premiere of Gertrude Stein's and Virgil Thompson's opera, the inconstant poets are uniting to revive the Sonnet. Why shouldn't the prose-writers revive the Daffydill and make it literary?

For oft when on my couch of pain
I toss with wild desire to sleep,
They flash upon the tortured brain,
And from the unwilling lips they leap;
And then my soul with madness thrills
And dances with the daffydills!

A few years ago, they were a fixed form. Remember?

* * *

As we sate late over our supper at the Cheshire Cheese, it was noted how JOHNSON partook sparingly of the port, so that of all the company each man wondered upon whom the Damoclean blade would presently descend. GARRICK seemed to court it. He had come from his house by the river, where, though he dined alone, he dined well.

Finally, the great player recognized at a neighboring table my lord CHESTERFIELD, who had lately well merited JOHNSON'S animosity by a too tardy appreciation of the Dictionary. What was not our amazement at GARRICK'S bravado when he hailed my lord to join us for the cold pigeon-pie?

Says CHESTERFIELD, with his customary mincing courtliness: "A thousand thanks, but I lack the appetite."

"Even for beer and skittles?" GARRICK rallied him.

"Even for that," my lord made answer.

Whereat JOHNSON let fall the sword. "Damn it, sir," he thundered, "if we gave you BACON would you CHAUCER?"

(Cheer up; the cursed are yet to come!)

* * *

Consider also how the daffydill could be used to lighten the toil of criticism. Van Wyck Brooks might write of the newest poem by the British Laureate:

This author's happy blending of the two schools, his ability to see realism in the terms of romance and forthwith to envisage it, is the tongue of the real—that is his ultimate claim. His tone-color, his sense of values, his perspective, all, staccato though they may be, decline before it. Texas will applaud and Mayne Reid. Who except the hypercritical will stoop to point out that there are Wells in Masefield?"

* * *

By cultivating daffydills, the reporters on our local staff can solve their constant puzzle of how to put words in silent citizens' mouths without extracting libel-suits:

Seen yesterday in his cell, the accused public-utilities magnate insisted that he had nothing to say. However, he smilingly recovered his old aptitude for literary allusion when asked whether he considered his advance of stockholders' money to the Coal Miners' Defense Fund a justifiable investment.

"When Southey owned a Coleridge," he encountered, "what were Wordsworth?"

* * *

And George Horace Lorimer, of The Saturday Evening Post, already famous as writing the friendliest refusals in magazinedom, might further coat his verbal turns-down:

"Please accept this story," pleads its writer. "I need the money, for I have just become a father."

Effective response would be possible only should the disappointed parent be able truthfully to parry: "'Is?' You mean 'are.' Mark Twain!"

* * *

And then there is the sphere of culinary culture:

Prof. Hyperion Locks, the popular University Extension lecturer, had concluded his three hours' talk on the poets-laureate of England with the customary bluff about wanting to be questioned.

"Who'd you say wrote that epic around Alfred the Great?" inquired the village humorist.

"Henry Pye," truthfully snapped Prof. Locks.

"Was that," pondered the humorist, "the Pye that Bennett?"

* * *

Or:

The young author trembled with delight when the seventy-third publisher told him this firm considered his novel worthy and would undertake its publication upon deposit of a thousand bucks to cover composition-costs.

"There is just one alteration," continued the publisher, "which we think should be made. The name of Herbert, which you have given your hero, is too sentimental. You have called your villain by the homely name of Henry. Why not give your hero a strong name like Paul?"

Hope died in the eyes of the budding genius. Not even the bountiful terms of the publisher could, however, tempt him to sacrifice one ounce of his artistic conscience.

"No!" he cried. "If I call Herbert Paul, I might as well call Henry James!"

(You never miss the fountain till the pen's run dry.)

* * *

NRA Gets an Ally.

IT was to be assumed that the NRA's rule against tobacco vandors giving away more than one package of matches with a tobacco unit would be followed by criticism from the uninformed and those selfish interests who would like to throw our business back into chaos. In the name of heaven, what is the United States Government doing, they ask, in seeking to control the country's match outlay; Some people are simply ignorant of the problems of our Government, and others are obviously looking backward to the day when they can again gather in all the wealth in their paltry hands.

BARGERON.

The plain truth, available, of course, to those who would take the trouble to find out, is that our match industry has been in a state of chaos for goodness knows how long. Matches have lain about haphazardly on the counters of cigar stores and anyone could walk in and pick up a package. During the depression a clerk making a sale of a package of cigarettes was likely to become so excited that he would give you a handful of the things. Matches are entitled to the protection that is being given to other commodities, it's a cinch.

• • • •

Primarily, however, this move of the NRA was not so much to protect the matches as it was to solidify its position or, as the military men say, to consolidate its gains.

It has been recognized pretty much ever since the New Deal pitched its tent here that every agency was on its own. Agencies were simply spread all over the place to satisfy every type of vanity and to reflect every possible type of governmental philosophy and then told to do their stuff. It was not expected, or apparently it was not, that there should be any coordination among them. Each agency was to go its own way. It was a case of the survival of the fittest. Instead of working together, they are more often in conflict, with jealousies and rivalries rampant everywhere. Thus we have had the open antagonism between the NRA and the Federal Trade Commission, the NRA and the AAA, Mr. Morgenthau and Mr. Ickes, Mr. Ickes and the NRA and so on and so on.

Of them all the NRA has been most under fire. In the alphabetical soup it has been a solid off by itself, the other elements not mixing with it and giving the impression that the first opportunity they got they would dissolve it.

What the NRA is seeking in this match move, in my opinion, is to form an alliance with the Tennessee Valley Authority. The Valley Authority is a very formidable group, and riding quite high in the Administration favor. It intends, as I understand it, to make electricity so cheap and popular that we will use it to the exclusion of other fuel and for most every purpose imaginable. It intends to do this first in the Tennessee Valley and then to spread its activities gradually out over the country.

Now, isn't it reasonable to suppose that as it moves forward with its electricity it will appreciate this move to restrict the use of matches and will look sympathetically upon the agency that makes this friendly gesture?

• • • •

It stands to reason that with all of our little dynasties around here, each looking with increasing suspicion upon the other, there will be moves toward alliances of two or three dynasties after the fashion of the European countries, alliances for defense or aggression as the case may be. The ultimate result will probably be two armed camps from which we will have a regular little world war.

In the meantime, though, it would appear that the NRA has stolen a march on its rival dynasties. An alliance with the TVA would be particularly effective, because it is looked upon as being on the socialistic or brain trust side of the fence. The NRA goes into alien territory for a friend!

Skyline Drive Bridge Planned

Overhead Structure Would Eliminate Crossings.

Luray, Va., June 22 (Spl.).—An overhead bridge constructed of native stone to harmonize with the landscape is contemplated for the Skyline drive with the completion of the northern extension of the drive from Panorama to Front Royal. The bridge would join the two sections of the drive, passing over the Lee highway at Panorama and eliminating crossings.

A model of the crossing was taken to Washington this week by Lynn Harris, junior landscape architect, with the Park Service.

It was this crossing that made the securing of Panorama for the park a necessity, and held up construction of the drive until deeds for rights of way could be obtained.

The department's acceptance of these deeds was recorded here this week and construction of the northern extension is expected to begin immediately.

Baltimore Man Drowned.

Laurel, Del., June 22 (Spl.).—Edward Meeley, 41, of Sparrows Point, Baltimore, was drowned in the Laurel River yesterday.

Meeley, with Edward Harris and Joe Curran, both of Baltimore, two comrades, was bathing when he ventured in to deep water and was seized with cramps.

Von Papen Criticism Bad Dose for Hitler

German Vice Chancellor's Attack on Muzzling of Press, Observer Believes, May Be Beginning of a "Palace Revolution."

(Mr. Bouton, for many years special correspondent of the Baltimore Sun in Germany, was recently forced by the present government to leave that country. In this article, specially written for The Post, he discusses the political crisis which confronts the Nazi regime).

By S. Miles Bouton.

IT is not going too far to say that the address made by Vice Chancellor Franz, von Papen to the students of the University of Marburg last Sunday was the most sensational happening, from a political viewpoint, that has been reported from Germany since the Nazis came into office more than 16 months ago. It was also the most encouraging happening in all that period.

For here was a man, occupying the second highest post in the Cabinet, coming out openly against the muzzling of the press and the suppression of all criticism of the government. One paragraph of his speech was also a thin veiled plea for the return of the monarchy.

It would have been sensational enough in any event, even if it represented only Herr von Papen's private views. And since then we have learned that a copy of the speech was shown President von Hindenburg in advance—but was not shown to Chancellor Hitler. This may, of course, not have been the beginning of a "palace revolution," but it looks very much like it. In any event, it is deeply significant and creates a situation more serious in its possible consequences than any that has heretofore confronted the Hitler regime.

Probably no man stands as close to President von Hindenburg as does Herr von Papen. And that means much more than would be the case in another country, for the venerable field marshal has from the beginning depended jn high measure on the men around him. It must be remembered that he was educated solely in a cadet school as a soldier, and was only a soldier until, at the age of 77, he was called on to become the country's chief executive. Naturally he knew nothing whatever about political affairs.

He took over as his Secretary of State Otto Messiner, who had occupied the same post under President Ebert, the Socialist. His closest friend and companion was for years Otto Braun, Socialist premier of Prussia, with whom he often went hunting. He looked forward daily to the report made for the foreign office by Dr. Zechlin, a Socialist, and treasured the man highly. It is impossible that a man of President von Hindenburg's character could overnight forget these men, or could concur in the Hitlerites' vicious hatred and treatment of all Marxists, whether Communists or Socialists.

What role does Vice Chancellor von Papen play? What is to be expected of him?

Still Regarded Here As Altogether Bad.

I WAS in Germany when he was compelled to leave America, and I have never learned the details of his offending. But I have been warned since reaching America against saying anything good about him. He is still, I am told, regarded as an arch-villain and altogether bad. But, quite apart from the fact there is such a thing as a genuinely reformed criminal, this method of approach must be disregarded in making an estimate of the Von Papen of today if that estimate is to be of any value.

The Franz von Papen whom I know is a highly educated, highly cultured gentleman, always kindly and courteous, speaking English and French with the same fluency as his own tongue. He is a monarchist and was the leader of the monarchist wing of the Roman Catholic Center in the Prussian Diet. He was also the owner of the controlling interest in the Germania, the official organ of that party. Although a native of West Germany, he belongs more or less in spirit with the great landowners of the district east of the Elbe, the Prussian Junker.

Yet it was this man who induced President von Hindenburg to appoint Adolf Hitler chancellor, and who himself took a post under him. He traveled about the country making speeches in favor of the Nazi regime. He gave the orthodox "Hitler greeting" at the prescribed times. He uttered no word of protest when his own Center party was dissolved and all other parties were prohibited. He made no protest when priests of his church were beaten or placed under arrest, or when Catholic youth organizations were dissolved and their property confiscated.

Is it possible that a man with Franz von Papen's antecedents, learning and experience, has ever been in sympathy with the men who now rule Germany, or with their brutal methods? Has he been genuinely "gleichgeschaltet," "coordinated," as millions of other Germans have let themselves be coordinated?

This is the question which the foreign correspondents in Berlin have been asking themselves from the beginning. Those among us who knew him more or less well have never believed it. We felt that he was enduring much in order to be in a position of power when the final break came—and that he felt that that break would come. The happenings of the last week seem me to bear out that estimate.

In opposing the muzzling of the German press by the unspeakable Joseph Goebbels, the "Minister for Popular Enlightenment and Propaganda," Von Papen takes up arms against the most powerful weapon in the Nazis' whole armament. If the press could be freed, if it were made possible to give free expression to opinions, Hitlerism would fall almost overnight. Its twin bases are ignorance and terrorism, and of these, ignorance is the more important. It could not survive a free press.

Majority in Berlin Marxists at Heart.

AN utterly false impression of the alleged unity of the Germans has been created just because no dissent has been possible. More than half of all voters in Berlin, to name but one city, were Marxists—Socialists or Communists—when the election of March, 1933, was held. Most of them are still Marxists at heart. And can it be supposed that the 20,000,000 Catholics in Germany are unitedly with the Nazi regime?

It is significant that on days when houses are supposed to flag, one sees more swastika flags in the formerly Red districts than anywhere else. One might call it protective coloration. That is precisely what it is. The observer who gains the confidence of inhabitants of these sections will hear things that would mean the concentration camp or even prosecution for treason for those responsible for them.

Shortly before I left Germany with my family, two women, both of them ardent Nazis, said to my wife, independently of each other: "We are afraid of trouble in the fall. Half of our Storm Troopers are still Marxists, and we know it."

If President von Hindenburg—who is still clean in mind despite all reports to the contrary—and Franz von Papen stand together, they will find plenty of support. But it will be a hard fight, and Von Papen has aged perceptibly in the last year—another indication, it seems to me, that he has been under a terrific strain. Three weeks before leaving Berlin I walked with him for a while in the garden of the late Johanna Gadski's beautiful home in the Grunewald.

"I am sorry that I am to lose an old friend," was his greeting as he came toward me.

If it rested with him, no journalist who tells the truth about Germany would have to leave the country.

And it may well be that the time is also not all too far off when no German journalist will face imprisonment for criticizing the government.

William Ellis Funeral Rites to Be Held Today

Pocomoke City, Md., June 22 (Spl.).—Funeral services for William S. Ellis, 55, local business man, who died Wednesday after a protracted illness, will be held tomorrow from his late residence. The Rev. J. A. Ditto, pastor of the Baptist Church, will officiate. Interment will be in the Baptist Cemetery.

Mr. Ellis returned to his home here last week after spending a year at the State Sanitorium, Sabillasville, Md., and Pine Bluff Sanitarium, Salisbury. He is survived by his widow and one daughter, Miss Lenora C. Ellis.

New Rules to End Truck Overloading

Charleston, W. Va., June 22 (Spl.). An order has been issued by the State road commission dividing the State into metropolitan and agricultural areas for the regulation of motor trucks.

The purpose is to bring about strict enforcement of State laws governing weight of motor trucks. Many trucks have been overloaded and tearing up roads, the commission states.

All incorporated cities and towns of more than 1,000 population have been designated as "metropolitan areas," and all territory outside of them as "agricultural areas." Motor truck weight regulations on highways vary in the respective areas.

Md. Pharmacists Install Officers

Andrew F. Ludwig, of Baltimore, is president. Other officers are H. W. Matheney, of Cumberland; Melville Strassburger, of Baltimore, and A. A. M. Dewing, of Centerville, vice presidents; E. F. Kelley, of Baltimore, secretary, and H. S. Harrison, of Baltimore, treasurer.

Today's ceremonies ended the fifty-second annual convention of the organization, which began Monday night. President Ludwig was authorized to select the place and time for the midwinter session.

Non-Fiction Check-List.

Religious.

"FROM Skepticism to Faith," by Dr. Charles Fiske (Harper, $1). Once a month Harper prints a book of sermons—this is the twenty-second in the series. The Bishop of Central New York, with the added graces of a legal and journalistic background, speaks sensibly and to the point. Recommended.

THEO. HALL

• • • •

"The Trail of Life in the Middle Years," by Prof. Rufus M. Jones, of Haverford (MacMillan, $2). The author's religious development between the ages of 30 and 50, continuing two previous volumes. Awfully "sweet."

• • • •

"Charles W. Abel, of Kwato," by his son, Russell W. Abel (Revell, $2). The story, told without an ounce of slush, of a grand human being who spent 40 years as a missionary in Black Papua among the cannibals. Generously illustrated with photographs. If you believe in foreign missions, the book is obligatory. If you don't, avoid it lest you be converted. Highly recommended.

• • • •

"Talks to Young People," by Dr. George A. Crapullo (Revell, $1.25). Brief advices on conduct and character by the pastor of the Irving Square Presbyterian Church, Brooklyn. Bromides, but always necessary.

• • • •

"Know Yourself and Live," by Arnold Blome (Putnam, $2.50). Good and evil, life and death, God. Stuffily written.

Government and Economics.

"Monetary Statesmanship," by Norman Lombard (Harper, $4). An immensely readable discussion of the whole money question, by an author favorable to the New Deal. A striking feature is the inclusion, all through the book in columns parallel with the text, of quotations from a myriad other authorities pro and con. Especially recommended.

• • • •

"New Governments in Europe," edited by Raymond Leslie Buell. (Nelson, $2.50.) The Foreign Policy Association gathers case histories of the growth of dictatorship in Italy, Russia, Germany, Spain and the Baltic states. Complete, but dullish.

• • • •

"Tariff Retaliation," by Joseph M. Jones, jr. (U. of Pennsylvania Press, $3.) A big, realistic and masterly study of the repercussions of the Hawley-Smoot tariff of 1930. Favorably introduced by Secretary Wallace, who notes that it shows up "the mutual insanity of the different nations of the world with respect to international trade."

• • • •

"Compulsory Spending," by Julius F. Stone, jr. (Ransdell, Washington, $2.) The former director of Federal projects, CWA, now relief administrator for Florida, makes a proposal to combat depressions. Too ingenious to be real.

• • • •

"Industrial Control for People," by Ernest W. Williams. (Privately printed, 1228 I street northwest.) Hopeful generalities about how we can get out of the mass. But they don't jell.

• • • •

"Looking at America," by Bernard Drachman. (Putnam, $2.75). The problems of the Negro, the Jew, economics, religion, prohibition, government; education, immigration, and world policy solved in 269 pages. Gosh!

• • • •

"A Political Paradox," by Harry Frease, past president of the American Patent Law Association. (Winston, $2.) A history of commerce and currency in this country, to prove that the NRA is unconstitutional and can not be enforced. An able presentation of this point of view.

• • • •

"A Free Society," by Horace M. Kallen. (Ballou, $1.) A spirited plea that the consumer should come before the producer in the national economy. Proposes a Consumers Cooperative Society, holding title to land, resources and machinery.

• • • •

"Public Opinion, Private Business and Public Relations," by Samuel Crowther. (Liveright, a pamphlet, 10c.) The biographer of Ford and Firestone advises business to stop playing ostrich and send out its own propaganda.

General.

"The Secession Movement in Virginia, 1847-1861," by Henry T. Shanks. (Garrett & Massie, Richmond, $3.) A detailed study, the first of its kind, on the reasons which allied Virginia with the Confederacy. Interesting.

• • • •

"Judaism as a Civilization," by Mordecai M. Kaplan. (Macmillan, $5.) A huge and thorough tome (601 pp.) which treats of every aspect of the matter. The author proposes a program of "creative Judaism," faithful to tradition and fitted to present-day American life.

• • • •

"Italy's Part in Winning the World War," by Col. G. L. McEntee, retired. (Princeton University Press, $2.) A brief history, with marvelous military maps and photographs. Swell.

• • • •

"New Horizons for the Child," by Stanwood Cobb. (Avalon Press, Washington, $2.) The founder of the Chevy Chase Country School offers some sound advice on training the modern child. Marred by an indomitable belief that genius lies in everyone.

Seth Bowers and his wife have parted, following a serious family fight over the Government offer to cooperate in making "existing American homes more livable." Mrs. Bowers wanted the leaks in the roof fixed with Federal aid, but Seth contended it would be just putting on airs under Government auspices.

Luke Shoreby's house and barn on Saw Mill road were repaired and painted by the Administration last week, the discovery that Luke was an original Hoover man coming just too late.

Mrs. Carrie Withers has returned from Washington pretty sore at the President. It seems Carrie, always ambitious, wanted to borrow enough money to add a Hollywood outdoor swimming pool and a couple of formal gardens to her bugalow on Carol Hill, but the Government turned her down for swank.

The Tutt Abingills are around town looking carefree and optimistic again, following the transfer of the mortgage from hard-hearted Shank Scroggins, who always wanted the payments on time, to the United States Government, which isn't fussy.

Walt Hosley, who intended to build a four-room, one-story bungalow for his new bride, now plans a 17-room show place, with winding driveways on the Federal time-payment plan, and says he thinks he has enough influence to get the Housing Commision to throw in a Russian wolfhound.

Mrs. Sadie Cillikinthy of Putnam Glen, who has always wanted one of those modern bathrooms with sunken marble tub and a white and black tiled floor, was in conference with influential Democrats last week and it looks as if she might get it.

Chidsey Peppergill has borrowed $2,000 from Uncle Sam to have his house papered and the fireplace fixed. "I could have had it done for about $85 under normal conditions," said Chidsey today, "but I'm no slacker in this business of priming the industrial pump."

MAJ. ERNEST W. BROWN, Superintendent of Metropolitan Police. Like New York's Mulrooney, he arose from police ranks to a place of quiet, respected distinction. A former beat-pounder, police captain, head of the District's traffic bureau, he knows his city from its lowest reaches to its plush parlors. Directing local detectives to high record of crime solution, he has gained Nation-wide fame for his handy disposition of bonus marchers, radicals and impassioned farmers. Gained a psychological victory over rampant Lorton convicts by timely distribution of tear gas and machine guns. Adhering to modern school of penology, he eschews harshness, treats criminals as mental misfits. Heavy-set, bespectacled, bald, is retiring, but unmistakably direct. Admired, listened to, followed, is jovial and friendly.

Another Letter From a Dad To His Red-Headed Daughter

By Robert Quillen

My dear Louise—Don't let that article in the Atlantic fool you. It's reasoning would be funny if it wasn't pathetic.

The writer is offended by the assertion that certain acts aren't "womanly." She suggests as a crushing reply: "But I am a woman, and I do these things." That, she says, is unanswerable.

In other words, anything a woman does is thereby made womanly because she is a woman.

Well, try it on the word "manly." If an act is manly because a man does it, what of the fellow who howls and crawls under a table when somebody threatens to slap him. Is he manly?

Perhaps I am too much disturbed by the militant feminists who would equalize the sexes by making women masculine, but sometimes their arguments are shrewdly plausible and I won't have you tricked for lack of warning.

I will grant, for the sake of argument, that women are superior to men — smarter, nobler, braver, cleaner, finer—anything you like.

But though they be equal to men or superior to men, they aren't like men. They are as different as a buck and a doe. And things that are appropriate to men and becoming to men are wholly foreign to women and out of keeping with all that constitutes proper womanhood.

Fashions and customs and the very definition of morality may change with the coming of each new generation, but there is an eternal fitness of things that neither time nor taste can alter.

There are offenses that violate nature and the common conscience of mankind, and nothing could make them less offensive.

Any perversion of nature offends good taste, and certainly it is a perversion of nature to make a man out of a woman.

Women can learn to do almost anything that men do, but that doesn't prove anything. Men could learn to weep and to kiss one another and to paint their faces, but they couldn't make these practices seem appropriate to their sex.

Aping men is a passing fad, like powdered wigs and short skirts. Let it alone, my dear. You make a poor bargain when you trade feminine charm for masculine coarseness. Love, DAD.

Peery to Attend Potato Parley

Conference to Be Held in Capital Monday.

Richmond, June 22 (AP).—Gov. George C. Peery, of Virginia, will attend the Tri-State potato market control conference in Washington on Monday, he said this afternoon. He "hopes to get the Federal Relief Administration to buy some of the potatoes that are holding the market down."

The Governor announced his plan after telephone conversations with Gov. Ehringhaus, of North Carolina, and the office of Goy. Ritchie, of Maryland.

The move for potato price control was begun in Norfolk a few days ago when Gov. Ehringhaus asked Gov. Peery to cooperate in a price-boosting movement. Growers also have been anxious to have Gov. Peery take some step to raise the price of their product, which, they say, is now below production costs.

Gov. Peery has already addressed a request to growers and shippers here to withhold potatoes from the market.

Former Md. Sheriff To Be Buried Today

Cambridge, Md., June 22 (Spl.). Funeral rites for Henry W. Ruark, former sheriff of Dorchester County, will be held tomorrow at 2 p. m. The Rev. W. G. Harris, pastor of Zion M. E. Church, will officiate.

Besides his widow, he is survived by several children, Mrs. Nettie Keene and Thomas Ruark, of Baltimore; Eugene and Lee Ruark, of Washington, and Mrs. Carroll L. Dail, of Cambridge. He also leaves one sister, Mrs. S. H. Tolley, of Honga, and two brothers, William W., of Cambridge, and Thomas W. Ruark, of Honga.

Daily Talk About Books and Authors

George Arliss.

Although Mr. Arliss is certainly not venerable, he has reached an age when in former times he would in all probability have retired from the theater. He is 66.

Thanks to the development of the motion pictures, including the talkies, Mr. Arliss finds in the sixties that, instead of ending his career, he is beginning a new one, more important, more remunerative, and more popular than anything he did in the first 60 years of his life.

George Arliss is now one of the most widely known and one of the most universally beloved persons in the world, and I wish to recommend to the millions who enjoy his art that they read his delightful autobiography, called "Up From Bloomsbury," which he published in 1927, as a kind of farewell to his career as an actor.

Mr. Arliss made his first appearance on the stage in 1887, when he was 19. He made his first tour in America with Mrs. Partick Campbell's company in 1901. He played with Blanche Bates in "The Darling of the Gods" in 1902. I remember, when the play first appeared, it was stated that the spectators saw in one evening more stage scenery than Shakespeare saw in his whole life.

Not long after that he supported Mrs. Fiske, and then appeared as a star in the play called "The Devil," a particularly detestable play, but one in which his peculiar talents first found something like full scope.

One of his greatest successes came in the only success of William Archer as a playwright. One night Mr. Archer, one of the best known of dramatic critics, who had repeatedly said that he could not write a play to save his life, DREAMED the whole plot of "The Green Goddess." He told the story to his friend Bernard Shaw, inviting him to collaborate, and Shaw replied with good-humored contempt that when he took to writing for the movies he would let him know, &c. His refusal was a good thing for Archer, for this one play, which was revealed to him in a dream, earned him more money than all his previous writings for 50 years. I was present at the first performance with the author, and Mr. Arliss and the play both made such a tremendous hit that it was evident that a whole fortune would come out of it.

It is in character parts—Disraeli, Hamilton, Rothschild, &c.—that Mr. Arliss is most successful. I liked also his suave portrayal of Shylock in "The Merchant of Venice," but the public did not care for it.

George Arliss is as splendid a character off the stage as he is an artist upon it. It is a pleasure to see such a man winning new honors every year.

Readers of his autobiography will understand why it is that his fellow-actors and the public have always regarded him with such affection and respect.

Radio Waves and Ripples

NOT having any ducks of our own, we went over to the Fox yesterday to see Joe Penner.

We were prepared to make him a very nice proposition, too, but he wouldn't sell. He sold us, instead, Mr. Penner. He sold us a modest, almost shy young man, dapper in green-gray suit, matching shirt and string bow, a business man, sober, serious, intent. He wasn't funny. He didn't try to be. Not once, not even once, did he say "nathty man." He was, if anything, a trifle unhappy, a little worried, in the manner of business men. The inquisitioning processes of the interview seemed to discomfort him, as they sometimes do serious, sober men.

He was worried, was this man of 29, who almost overnight finds himself at the very top of radio's heap, worried, for one thing, about "Mother" Sheiry, who is mother also to a family of Washington printers. Since 7 that morning she had been waiting at home to see Joe. It would be just like her to come down later on and stand in line in the searing sun instead of boldly coming backstage. "Mother" Sheiry isn't young enough to stand very much sun.

Joe wasn't worried about filling the house. It was only beginners' luck—never having tried to see Penner before—that got us in to him. The young, the old, the lame, the blind, the halt, were standing out there, three deep and a block long. Joe was worried about turning so many customers away.

"You'd better plan on eight shows Sunday," he said, pointing a cane at someone.

Being funny is Joe Penner's business. He likes it, as a business. But off stage, out of the studio . . . anyone wanting Mr. Penner to be funny should call around at the Fox during business hours.

Editor's note: We have no tickets for Mr. Penner's broadcast from the Press Building auditorium tomorrow night. N. B. C. has no tickets. Mr. Penner's sponsor has no tickets. The tickets—all 800 of them—have been disposed of, handed out, given away. There are no tickets.

The National Geographic Society-Army Air Corps balloon is ready for the ascent. Maj. William E. Kepner and Capt. Albert W. Stevens are ready to get in it. The 8-watt transmitter which is to keep the balloon in radio contact with this blury, brown, insignificant earth is ready, too. And 40 associate stations of N. B. C. are standing by to pick up the story of America's second expedition into the ether, and broadcast it throughout the length and breadth of the land.

Everything is ready. A 200-watt sending set has been installed near the scene of the take-off—Rapid City, N. Dak. W9XF, at Downers Grove, Ill., and W3XL, at Bound Brook, N. J., will handle communication from the ground after the big bag has gained significant altitude. N. B. C. has arranged for a plane to fly at maximum heavier-than-air altitude to keep in touch with the balloon and portable transmitters on the ground so there won't be any last-minute scurrying around when the bag begins its descent.

The trip up will begin not later than June 30.

JOE PENNER, "You'd better plan on eight shows Sunday."

First in the voting for radio's best team were—you guessed it—Amos and Andy—105,098! They should retire. Next were Burns and Allen, 103,613; Myrt and Marge, 30,179; Mills Brothers, 22,156; Benny and Mary, 19,033; Stoopnagle and Budd, 15,517; Olsen and Johnson, 14,317; Gene and Glenn, 13,293; Maple City, 8,320; Baron and Sharlie, 7,346.

The WRC hillbilly team of Eddie and Ernie are happy with 40 fan letters a week when they consider that all they have to compete against on their solitary spot is Rudy Vallee. . . . The "See Washington First" campaign of the Merchants and Manufacturers Association gets under way on the air Tuesday with a 15-minute speech by Sylvan King, association board member . . . There'll be more speeches until, we suppose, somebody does really go out and look the place over . . . From Roanoke, Va., Carlton Smith has brought Fey and Margaret for a WMAL show Monday at 3:15 p. m. . . . Margery plays the piano, Fey sings barytone and plays a saw.

CHRISTINA WAS BOTH KING AND QUEEN OF SWEDEN...

Christina, Queen of Sweden from 1632 to 1654, was also King of Sweden. She became Queen at the age of 6, in 1632, upon the death of her father, Gustavus Adolphus, who was killed in the Battle of Lutzen. From that time until 1644 she ruled under a regency headed by the Chancellor Oxenstjerna.

When she was 18 she became Queen in her own right, and six years later, in 1650, she assumed the title of "King of Sweden," becoming both King and Queen. She decided to abdicate the following year, but was persuaded to remain on the throne. Three years later when she again decided to abdicate she found that most everybody was in favor of the idea. Her appointment of about 500 nobles during her reign, and her selling and mortgaging Crown property to provide for them, had brought about a decided change in public opinion. She left the throne, therefore, in 1654. Her cousin, Charles Gustavus, became King as Charles X.

Christina remained sovereign of one tiny bit of her once mighty kingdom—she retained the right to rule, as a law unto herself, over her own household. Also, by the terms of her abdication, she was given an income for life.

She lived abroad for years, returning to Sweden twice in vain attempts to regain the throne she once renounced. To preclude this possibility she was forced to sign another formal abdication — Sweden no longer wanted her.

Christina died in Rome, where she lived on charity, in 1689—poor, neglected, and forgotten.

BLACKIE BEAR

By D. SAM COX

The Children Learn Something About Bugs

For two or three days after Dr. Coon had melted them apart, Benny and Jenny didn't cut up very much. The spots on their backs where the hair had pulled so were still sore, and they felt more like just lying around in the sun than they did like frolicking. But after a few days they were all right again, and they began looking around for some more capers to cut.

Maybe you remember that Blackie ate bees and honey all together that day when the log broke and turned out all that honey. The mouth of a grown bear is awfully tough, and bees can't hurt him. Well, Jenny and Benny thought they could eat anything that their daddy could, and, besides, they had been catching butterflies all along and hadn't been hurt. They didn't know that there was any difference between a bee and butterfly except that they didn't look alike. So the first day they felt like frolicking around they went out into the garden and ran after some big yellow butterflies till they caught them. And then Jenny saw the bee gum, with a lot of bees going in and out as they packed more honey away for the winter.

You children know that your mouths are not as tough as your dady's, for you have seen him drink coffee when it was so hot it would burn your hands. Those bear children hadn't learned this yet, and they thought they could put anything in their mouths that anybody else could. So, when Jenny saw the bees crawling in and out of the gum, and flying out and settling on the flowers, she said, "Let's catch some of these bugs," She hadn't heard any of them talk about the stickers that bees have, and she wasn't at all afraid of them. She thought they were just another sort of bug, and she had eaten many kinds of bugs.

Benny was right ready to do anything, and so they began jumping up and snapping at the bees when they would come out of their house to go for some more honey. Bees fly mighty fast, and it's not nearly so easy to catch them as it is to catch butterflies, that seem to just dance in the same place and never get very far. The children snapped at several bees before they caught one, and then both caught a bee at the same time. And they both did something else at the same time. They screamed. A bee is in a hurry about everything he does, and by the time these children had snapped their jaws together with a bee inside, they felt that hot sting of a bee that burns worse than fire. Did they keep their mouths shut? They did not. They gave those bees plenty of room to come out, and they came.

But they left the fire behind them, and it was almost funny to see those cubbies scratching at their mouths, trying to get the fire out. The noise they made soon had Bettie and all the others running out to see what was the matter. There was no need to tell Dr. Coon anything, he had treated just such cases before, and he knew what to do. He mixed up some greasy looking stuff from his medicine chest and rubbed it on the tongues where the bees had stung the children. Then he told them that they needn't think that everything that had wings was butterfly, and that they had better ask somebody about the next bug they wanted to eat before they grabbed it in their mouths.

Their tongues swelled up so they could hardly talk for a long time, but when the medicine got soaked in good they felt a lot better. But Bettie said they had had enough doings for one day, and after giving them just a little soup, she put them in bed, just as the sun went down.

$1,000 Raised in Drive For Health Camp Fund

The campaign for funds for the Tuberculous Children's Health Camp, conducted by the Tuberculosis Association of the District, succeeded in raising about $1,000 yesterday.

Principal contributions announced by Mrs. Ernest Grant, executive secretary of the association, were an anonymous check for $250, and a check from Mrs. Eleanor Patterson, publisher of the Washington Herald, for $500. The goal set for the drive is $1,500.

First Regular Plane Lands on the Ranger

The first regular airplane landing on the U. S. S. Ranger, the Navy's newest aircraft carrier, was made yesterday off Lynhaven Roads, Virginia, by Rear Admiral Ernest J. King, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics of the Navy, it was announced here.

The Ranger was commissioned June 4. She is conducting test and trials at sea preparatory to her shakedown cruise.

Military Hop Brings Past Back to Life

Chaperoned Groups Attend Dance in Style of Century Ago.

Capital Girls Are Guests of R. O. T. C. Unit at Fort Humphreys.

By Evelyn Peyton Gordon.

One often hears of parties that have two or perhaps three hosts, and even a debutante affair at which 10 or 12 young ladies get together and play hostess, is never viewed with astonishment. But when the hosts number 300, it is an occasion worthy of attention.

Last evening Harris Hall, the rustic old club at Fort Humphreys, Va., was the scene of a dance given by the R. O. T. C. students, who are in camp at the Engineer post.

These young officers include recent graduates and next year's seniors from Yale, Johns Hopkins, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Carnegie Tech, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and the University of Alabama. This is probably the last gay affair that will be given beneath the hospitable roof of the old club, as the handsome new colonial McKenzie Hall, down on the river, is almost completed and all of the post entertainments will be held there. Harris Hall served faithfully for many years more than was intended when it was first built.

Revival of the Past.

The party was like an evening clipped from the diary of some young lady of the past century. Instead of laughing, boisterous couples arriving, two by two, the fair members of Washington's younger set, including debutantes, and Army and Navy Juniors, arrived in groups accompanied by their chaperones. They were met at the door of the ballroom by their beaux-of-the-evening.

The musicians were at one end of the long ballroom, in front of the large brick castle, symbol of the Engineers, which stands against the wall, towering almost to the high ceiling.

All along the dark-paneled walls were hung the bright coat of arms of the various Engineer regiments. The other end of the ballroom, which is flanked on either side by the lounge opens on a wide veranda, which between dances last evening shared honors with the punch bowl for popularity.

Among the Guests.

Among those who were glimpsed dancing or strolling in the veranda were Miss Betsy Dern, daughter of the Secretary of War; Miss Carrol Fries and Miss Barbara Fries, daughters of Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Amos A. Fries; Miss Helen DeFrees, daughter of the Commandant of the Navy Yard and Mrs. DeFrees; Miss Mary Senate Howes, daughter of the Assistant Postmaster General and Mrs. W. W. Howes; Miss Katherine Cummings, Miss Margaret Spear.

Miss Dorothy Kurtz, Miss Margaret McMullen, Miss Frances Simpson, Miss Betty Hartz, Miss Katherine Friant, Miss Helen McKenna, Miss Ethel Mae Taylor, Miss Mary Caroline Henry, Miss Anne Henry, Miss Anne Potts, Miss Helen Potts, Miss Katherine Pearson, Miss Alice Spalding, Miss Millicent Ward, Miss Evelyn Wright, Mlle. Lucy Hatrang.

Miss Mildred Gist, Miss Elsie-Louise Reinecke, Miss Ethel Paige Matheson, Miss Ruthanna Gill, Miss Penelope LeClair, Miss Betsy Simpson, Miss Mary Catherine Bentley, Miss Gertrude Hummer, Miss Helen Hummer, Miss Aubine Olivet, Miss Marian Olivet, Miss Dorothy Rivers, Miss Margaret Rivers, Miss Eleanor Wilson, Miss Margaret McCormick, Miss Ruth Marlow, Miss Sybil Kauffman, Miss Katherine Phelps, Miss Alice Shediker, Miss Willoughby Patton and Miss Betty Haines.

Many Guests At Ceremony In Englewood

Miss May Butler and Mr. Welcher United in Marriage.

Many guests attended the ceremony at 8:30 o'clock Thursday evening, when Miss Mary W. Butler was married to Mr. John E. Melcher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Josiah R. Melcher, of Englewood, N. J. The bride is the daughter of Col. Rodman Butler, U. S. A. (retired), of Englewood, and a niece of Gen. Jay J. Morrow, brother of the late Senator Dwight W. Morrow. She and her father have been making their home with Gen. and Mrs. Morrow.

Miss Peggy Salter, of Glenridge, attended the bride as maid of honor. Mrs. Theodore Barton, of Englewood; Mrs. Garth Shamel, of Avon, N. J.; Miss Caroline Walker, of Washington, and Miss Lily Buchanan, of Princeton, were the bridesmaids.

Mr. Russel Melcher, of Englewood, was his brother's best man, and the ushers were Mr. Garth Shamel, Mr. James Montgomery, of Rye, N. Y.; Mr. Thomas Glover and Mr. Warren Glover, of Washington; Mr. Henderson Emanual, of Paterson, N. J., and Mr. Frank Webster, of Elizabeth, N. J. The Rev. Dr. Robert Elmore officiated.

The bride was gowned in white satin and wore a lace veil. She carried white roses and lilies of the valley. Her attendants wore frocks of flesh-colored and blue mousseline de soie and carried tea roses and blue delphinium. A reception at the home of Mrs. Dwight Morrow followed the wedding.

After a wedding trip the couple will reside in Elizabeth.

The bride was graduated from Connecticut College for Women. Mr. Melcher, who is associated with Transcontinental-Western Airways and is stationed at Newark Airport, was graduated from Hackley School, Tarrytown, N. Y., and spent a year on a world cruise as a member of the floating university.

The bride wore a dark blue triple sheer traveling ensemble, with a shoulder corsage of talisman roses. Her only attendant was Miss Mary Catherine Holsopple, of Washington, who wore a yellow crepe model with white accessories and a shoulder corsage of yellow roses. Mr. Stoddard had for his best man Mr. Malcolm H. Weller, of Staunton. A reception and luncheon followed at the Shoreham for the wedding party and members of both families.

The bride was graduated from Harrisonburg, Va., High School and Bridgewater College, and for several years has been teaching in Fairfax County, near Washington. Mr. Stoddard is a graduate of Robert E. Lee University and Dunsmore Business College, Staunton. Mr. and Mrs. Stoddard sailed later on the Chatham from Baltimore for Boston. After July 1 they will be at home at Staunton.

Marriage Claims Five Of Six Beauty Queens

Two of Atlantic City's "Miss Americas" Later Divorced, One Remarries, Three Are Mothers; None Regret Contest Experience.

NEW YORK, June 22 (U.P.).—What has become of the six Miss Americas who won National bathing beauty contests at Atlantic City?

Well, five got married; two later were divorced; one married again; one is "single and heart free" and three have babies.

Nation-wide publicity, flattering stage and screen offers, acclaim in their home towns came to the girls who won the titles in Atlantic City before these contests were abandoned in 1927. Did the sudden burst of popularity affect their subsequent lives?

The United Press sought the answer by interviewing the girls. Here are the results of the inquiry:

Miss Lois Delander, Joliett, Ill., Miss America of 1927; now 23, a sales girl at the Century of Progress exhibit sponsored by a Chicago store. She has received numerous proposals of marriage, "but thus far it seems that Mr. Right Man has not appeared on the scene and I am still single and heart-free."

"I do not believe that I have any regrets for having entered such a contest," Lois said.

Miss America Divorced.

Norma Smallwood, Dallas, Tex., Miss America of 1926: Now living in Tulsa, Okla., divorced from Thomas Gilcrease, oil millionaire. Miss Smallwood married Gilcrease, who was more than 10 years her senior, two years after winning the title. They went to France on their honeymoon and lived there for a time, later returning to Tulsa.

Last year he sued for a divorce which was granted last month. He won the custody of their only child, a daughter of 6, called Des Cygnes l'Amour (Swans of Love) and was ordered to pay her $72,000. Both sides gave notice of intention to appeal.

Fay Lanphier, Oakland, Calif., Miss America of 1925: Now the wife of Winfield J. Daniels, a mechanical engineer, her second husband. They have a daughter, Shirley, 14 months old.

After winning the title Miss Lanphier toured the country in a vaudeville skit. In 1927 she operated a beauty parlor in Oakland. Later that year she spent three months in the scenario department of the Hollywood Paramount studios, "until I quit and came back home to Oakland."

Twice Married.

She married Sidney Spigel, jr., of Chicago, in 1928. They took a European honeymoon and got a Reno divorce the same year. In 1929 and 1930 she "stayed home and did nothing." In 1931 she married Daniels, since when she has been "just a housewife."

"I think I would do the same thing over again if I was the age once more," she said.

Ruth Malcolmson, Philadelphia, Miss America of 1924: Now Mrs. Carl Schaubel, of Upper Darby, Pa., and mother of a son, James, who will be 2 years old in August. Her only activities are "keeping a home for my husband and my baby."

"So far as I can see," she said, "being Miss America has made no appreciable difference in my life."

Happy as Wives.

Mary Katherine Campbell, Columbus, Ohio, Miss America of 1922 and 1923: Now Mrs. Frederick Staunton Townley, East Orange, N. J. Mrs. Townley did not marry until 11 years after she first won the title because she didn't believe in marriage "unless a couple are deeply in love."

After Atlantic City, Miss Campbell made theater appearances for eight months, then entered Ohio State University, where she studied until the death of her mother. She left to keep house for her father. She made appearances as a dress model and five years ago won a trip around the world in a competition sponsored by the Ohio Chamber of Commerce.

Margaret Gorman, Washington, Miss America of 1921: Now Mrs. Victor Cahill, wife of a well-known Capital real estate dealer. Cahill said his wife was summering elsewhere and that he preferred the press "forget about her."

Culbertson on Bridge

A Series of Forces.

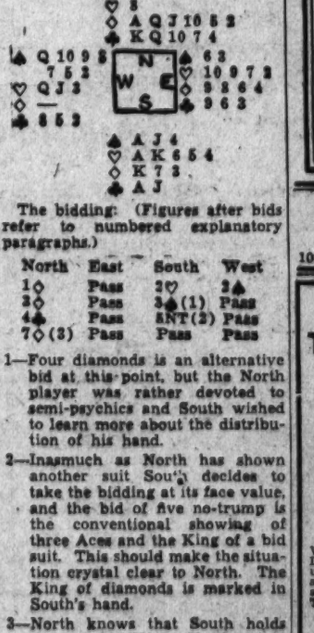
Forcing bids are in themselves both an evil and a necessity. They are bad because players are apt to use them too indiscriminately and with hands which do not justify their use. On the other hand, when a Forcing bid should be used, a Bridge player should not hesitate as otherwise a wrong picture of the hand is presented. In this hand the South player used three Forcing bids to assure the correct final contract.

North, Dealer
North and South vulnerable



The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

| North | East | South | West |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1◇ | Pass | 2♡ | 3♠ |
| 3◇ | Pass | 3♠(1) | Pass |
| 4♣ | Pass | 3NT(2) | Pass |
| 7◇(3) | Pass | Pass | Pass |

1—Four diamonds is an alternative bid at this point, but the North player was rather devoted to semi-psychics and South wished to learn more about the distribution of his hand.

2—Inasmuch as North has shown another suit South decides to take the bidding at its face value, and the bid of five no-trump is the conventional showing of three Aces and the King of a bid suit. This should make the situation crystal clear to North. The King of diamonds is marked in South's hand.

3—North knows that South holds the diamond King. He therefore bids the Grand Slam at once.

Of course, seven diamonds was made laid down as both diamonds and clubs were solid and South's Aces accounted for the singletons in the major suits.

Capital Couple On Ocean Trip For Honeymoon

Miss Florence Duckett and Arthur F. Swinburne Take Vows.

The wedding of Miss Florence Duckett, daughter of Mrs. H. Ainsley Duckett, to Mr. Arthur Francis Swinburne, son of Mrs. Louise T. Swinburne, took place Wednesday at 8 p. m. in the National City Christian Church. Dr. A. P. Wilson performed the ceremony. The church was decorated with bright garden flowers and palms. Mrs. Carleton B. Hazard, aunt of the bride, gave several vocal selections.

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. Charles B. Duckett. She wore a gown of ivory satin made with a bateau neck and long fitted sleeves. The flaring skirt terminated in a long train. Her veil of tulle was caught into a cap of net, held in place by a wreath of lilies of the valley, from which fell a face veil. She carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and gardenias.

Miss Mildred Duckett, sister of the bride, was the maid of honor. She had on a frock of blue mousseline de soie, made with a brief ruffled cape. From the waist there were several vertical ruffles which formed a short train. She carried a bouquet of pink roses and baby's breath.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Stanley G. Benjamin and Miss June Marks, cousins of the bride; Mrs. A. Gwinner Miller and Miss Esther Moore.

Mr. Harry Proctor was best man. Ushers were Mr. Charles Proctor, Mr. Stanley G. Benjamin, Mr. Francis Keys, Mr. Edward Dowden, and Mr. Frederick Hutchinson and Mr. Fenton Hutchinson, cousins of the bride.

Later, Mr. and Mrs. Swinburne left on their wedding trip, the latter wearing a smart suit of gray-beige crepe made with a short fitted jacket trimmed with gunmetal fox fur epaulets. With this she wore a hat of violet rough straw, matching accessories and an orchid corsage. They sailed yesterday from New York for a cruise in Southern waters. Upon their return, after July 3, they will be at home at 2807 Connecticut avenue.

White Rules Supreme in Fashion's Color Scheme for Hot Weather Wear

New Womanhood of Europe Will Find "All Is Vanity," The Same as Predecessors

By Malvina Lindsay,

EVERY SO OFTEN a New Woman comes along. And invariably she is heralded as ready to emancipate her sex from the slavery of fashion.

In the 90's, she appeared in a divided skirt astride a bicycle. In the 1920's, she was in a knee skirt at the wheel of her sports roadster. Recently she has been working in a khaki skirt in Soviet factories. And now in Italy and Germany she is in a gingham apron.

The New Woman of Italy has abandoned stays and also diet, according to Mussolini. Declaring that "slimming practices" tend to ugliness, Il Duce's newspaper recently announced that "the Anglo-Saxon fancy" was fast becoming only a memory in Italy.

In Germany the New Woman, according to Dr. Emmy Wagner, head of the Hitler Organization for the Reconstruction of German Womanhood, has freed herself from "the restless change of fashion." She now wears what she pleases, including sensible shoes, and has eschewed the "thousand and one frivolities which have usually ranked as necessities."

* * * *

IF FASCIST WOMEN retain their freedom from stays, diets and fashion openings, they are to be congratulated. Yet in view of past events, the outlook is not hopeful.

It might be remembered that the New Woman of the 90's, far from stepping into trousers, retreated into hobble skirts. The alleged revoltant flapper of the 20's has, in the last few years, been swishing a train about the ballroom. And the Soviet women, according to a recent letter in The Nation, no longer go to the opera in bedroom slippers but in high-heeled pumps. In view of all this, it might not be surprising if Nazi women in a few years were again studying the pages of fashion quarterlies.

As for the movement to bring back avoirdupois, that is not a new one, even to America. Regularly every season since the boyish form came in, some style prophet has been so rash as to promise a return of the hour-glass figure and older men with sentimental memories of Lillian Russell have been so gullible as to look for it.

* * * *

HOWEVER, WOMEN, while they may be sheep, are not exactly ostriches, and they are too wary to seek poundage at a time when gentlemen's fancies are running to cuties in sub-deb dresses.

In the sartorial pursuit of youth, designers have hit upon what promises to be a permanent fashion theme. For women in their innermost hearts are always 16. No matter how full of years they become, the selves they know secretly are the selves of girlhood. Faced with a choice between youth and beauty, between youth and health, between youth and patriotism, they will always choose youth.

Mussolini, no more than Mae West, will ever be able to stabilize the matronly figure in a feminine world that still carries on assiduously the quest of Ponce de Leon. Hitler, no more than Stalin or the dress reformers, will ever be able to regiment into drab attire a feminine world that in the matter of its plumage will always remain fiercely competitive.

Ohio Girls Plan Picnic; D. A. R. Group Meets

Writers' League Arranges Monthly Outings All Through Summer.

THE Ohio Girls Club will hold its annual outing this afternoon and evening, at the country home of Mrs. Grace Young Pickett, in Falls Church, Va.

Plan D. A. R. Luncheon.

MRS. EDWIN J. RYAN, president of the State Officers' Club, District of Columbia, Daughters of American Revolution, will entertain board members with a bridge luncheon today at the Olney Inn.

AT the last meeting of the Writers League of Washington plans were made to hold a picnic each month during the summer. The first one will be held at 4 o'clock today at Hains Point.

THE Women's National Press Club will be entertained at a swimming and cocktail party from 4 to 7 o'clock today at the Dower House, near Marlboro, Md.

Woman Lawyer Honored.

APPOINTMENT of Miss Shoshana Garber, young attorney, of Cleveland, to the staff of the National Council of Jewish Women has been announced by Mrs. Arthur Brin, of Minneapolis, president of the council.

Miss Garber is a graduate of Columbia and Western Reserve Universities with the degree of doctor of laws from the latter, and for several years practiced law in Cleveland.

She did graduate work in Europe at the University of Geneva and the Institute de Jean Jacques Rousseau and studied at the Sorbonne in Paris and at the National Institute of Industrial Psychology in London. While in Geneva she was connected with the research department of the International Labor Bureau.

THE Washington League for the Hard of Hearing will hold open house from 4 to 10 o'clock tomorrow at its headquarters, 1116 Vermont ave., in honor of the visiting delegates attending the annual meeting of the American Federation of Organizations for the Hard of Hearing, opening Monday at the Mayflower Hotel.

The local league is one of 140 organizations in the United States. It has recently issued a small publication outlining the activities of the conference.

Seasonal Wave of Popularity Follows Historical Precedent

Helen of Troy Found Long Ago the Charm That Washington Women Are Rediscovering—Everything From Hats to Shoes in White.

By Virginia Lee Warren.

EVER since women discarded fig leaves and leopard skins in favor of fabric, white has been a best-seller. Down through the years famous sirens and sophisticated women as well as wide-eyed brides and dewey high school graduates have chosen this color for dress-up costumes.

Poets have sung of lovely maidens garbed in white that matched alabaster brows. Shelley's "lovely lady garmented in white" proves he was impressed by the pure, clean color. Helen of Troy's face is usually given the credit for getting a thousand boats into the water, but her queenly white draperies undoubtedly helped in making her a glamorous, sought-after figure.

Mme. Recamier, idolized by the greatest statesmen, artists and litterateurs of Europe for half a century, wore white more than any other color. This chaste hue was becoming to her wild rose coloring and dark hair. It also symbolized her supremacy in the realm of spiritual love and platonic affection. In spite of her army of suitors, history says she never gave a caress to a single admirer; never was a word of scandal breathed against her.

White Summer.

Most modern women, however, in looking back on the lives of these two charmers, consider them rather stuffy. They had no golf, no tennis, no beach with gay umbrellas, no cocktail parties, no garden suppers. But they did have one thing the modern woman appreciates—white clothing.

Virtually everybody is wearing it this summer. Stores in Washington report they have never before had such a white season. They are selling hats, dresses, suits, coats, bags, shoes, in plain, forthright white. About the only thing they aren't selling in this color is hose. Wanted shades in stockings are still suntan, pale beige, and smoky pastels.

Although plain washed-out white is most fashionable this season, the off-shades also are popular. Creamy tones, such as eggshell and ivory, are usually easier to wear than those with a gray cast, such as oyster and chalk. For the girl with brilliant coloring, however, oyster white can be enormously becoming.

Added Color Helps.

A good many persons who think an all-white costume makes them look completely blah, can get safely around this little difficulty by adding touches of color. Some of the very newest white dresses have accents of bright embroidery, applique, or painted designs.

Other white dresses and ensembles are enlivened with brilliantly colored belts or sashes of silk, canvas, string or leather. Shiny cire bows posed at the neckline bring out the color of one's eyes without detracting from the scrubbed white look of the snowy frock.

But the damsel with golden hair, melting gaze and slender figure can do no better than deck herself out in white and nothing but white. She'll look ethereal, angelic, youthful, innocent, and all the other things that are guaranteed to send hearts into tailspins.

For every potential golden-haired angel, there is a striking, lean brunette with her skin burned a rich sepia tint. All this svelte creature needs to look like a coppery Venus from some tropical Utopia is to wear a white dress, built on severe lines. She won't even need hibiscus blossoms dangling back of her ears to complete the illusion.

Dress Length.

QUESTION—What is the proper length for street dresses this summer?

ANSWER—The length that is most becoming is the proper one for any woman's street dresses. Women with thick ankles find fairly long dresses best. Those with slender, straight-up-and-down legs can usually wear their dresses a little shorter than the person with an average figure. Broadly speaking, the average length for street dresses this year is from 8 to 12 inches off the floor.

QUESTION—Are bridal veils used only with white outfits? White is unbecoming to me and I should like to have a pastel-colored wedding dress. Yet I also want a veil. What shall I do?

ANSWER—Have you considered a deep cream shade that verges upon pale yellow? If you think it, too, is unbecoming, you may select a bridal gown and veil in lightest pink or ice blue. Some of the most fashionable weddings in this country and abroad the last few season have been notable for brides in delicate pastel gowns and veils. But if you choose a gown in some pale shade, be sure your veil matches it. And be sure both are very, very pale.

QUESTION—With what kind of a skirt may one wear an organdie blouse?

Lead, Instead of Drive, the Child, Is New School Official's Method

Miss Bertie Backus Will Build Character of District Public School Pupils by Isolating Reasons for Delinquency and Fault.

By Hope Ridings Miller.

LECTURING and scolding will never cure the problem child.

The modern scientific method is rather to make the child feel he is a valuable part of his own little social circle, that he is contributing something to the welfare of his companions, his school, and his home.

So believes Miss Bertie Backus, who has been chosen to fill the newly created position of assistant superintendent of schools in charge of character education.

In her first interview given to a Washington newspaper since her selection for the office, Miss Backus yesterday discussed the purpose of the character-building program and the steps that led to making a definite part of the District of Columbia school system.

"The aim of the program, of course, is to diminish juvenile delinquency," she said, "but I should dislike for anybody to get the idea we are going to confine ourselves solely to superficial moral issues, such as—for instance—stealing and telling falsehoods.

"We want to go deeper than that. We want to ferret out the reasons for dishonesty and correct them at their source, if possible."

The basis for juvenile delinquency, she said, lies in the fact society has grown so compact that few provisions, comparatively, are made for children. Children have been crowded out of industrial life and herded out of small communities into apartment houses. Left largely to seek their own diversions, they have—as a whole—developed no sense of obligation.

To give them a sense of obligation by correcting their troublesome tendencies and to guide their energy into worthy channels by giving them diversion through the recreational and educational phases of the community center are aims of the character-building program.

Schedule Begins Monday.

Working with an adequate research staff selected to determine causes of delinquency, Miss Backus will carry out a schedule to be planned at the Character Education Institute, which will begin Monday.

Under the part of the schedule already worked out, the project will be carried out in six schools here next year. Elementary, junior high, and senior high schools — both white and colored—will be represented.

Miss Backus' appointment is the culmination of a series of steps toward the character-building project. In 1929, Dr. Ballou, superintendent of the D. C. Schools, asked the School Board to study the problem of juvenile delinquency and formulate a program to combat it.

As a result, a committee with Miss Backus as chairman, was appointed for this purpose. Later—but not in connection with the D. C. school committee—the U. S. Senate also appointed a committee with Senator Copeland as chairman.

Slump Whets College Brains

THE intelligence of college students has been increasing steadily during the depression, but no one explanation is offered for this phenomenon, according to a study of 193 colleges made by the Ohio College Association. This evidence was announced in the publication "School and Society," by W. H. Thompson, of the University of Omaha.

One hundred and twelve colleges out of the 193 noted a definite gain in the mental agility of freshmen in the last few years. Only two colleges reported losses.

That brighter students have been getting encouragement to go to college may be one reason for the uplift in the average I. Q., writes Mr. Thompson. Or it may be that the guidance programs in secondary schools is starting to have some good effect.

During depression years cash for college fees has been scarce and only sons and daughters of the well-to-do had sufficient money to afford college educations. Mr. Thompson says it has been suggested that this factor indicates better parental intellects have been sending their offspring off for higher education and that consequently students of more intelligence have been in the majority at colleges and universities throughout the country.

STRICTLY SPEAKING

Pronunciation Puzzles.

1. Does one become AC-clim-ated or ac-CLI-mated to Washington weather?

2. Is the "a" in tomato supposed to carry the long sound, or is the word pronounced with the broad English "a"?

3. Is it EE-ther or EYE-ther?

4. Is it correct to say, "I am going to take the long trek from Washington to California this summer?"

5. What is the correct anglicized pronunciation of amateur?

Opinions of Authorities.

1. If you are a follower of the King's English, you become ac-CLI-mated to Washington weather.

2. Webster and Worcester give preference to to-MAY-to. The Century Dictionary lists to-MAW-to first, and the Standard gives the latter as the only pronunciation. In short, you have authority for either pronunciation, but you're still wrong if you call it to-MAT-to.

3. Authorities are decidedly in favor of EE-ther, although Phyfe says EYE-ther is the pronunciation of a very respectable minority in the United States," and recounts this incident: "A Scotch professor, being asked which of the two pronunciations of this word he preferred, replied 'AYE-ther will do.'"

4. The sentence is not correct unless you mean you're going to travel by wagon.

5. The correct anglicized pronunciation is amaTUR (to rhyme with fur). One authority suggests the pronunciation closely approximates the sounds in these words, I am at her house.

Job-Hunters Require Rest to Rally Spirits

Problem of Providing Vacations for Unemployed and Needy Girls Is Met With Camp Operated by Y. W. C. A., Aided by Gifts.

Vacation time brings hopes of rest and change to old and young alike, to rich and poor, to the employed and the unemployed. The following is the fifth in a series of articles telling of vacation possibilities.

"THE TYPIST who hasn't done a day's work in two years needs a rest," said Miss Saida Hartman, in charge of industrial work and employment at the Y. W. C. A.

"Idleness is the hardest known work," she continued. "The unemployed girl searching for a job wears herself out physically, mentally and spiritually far more than she would were she employed. The girl who has sought to sell ribbons and failed, the woman who couldn't find a chance to iron collars, or the girl weeping because she has no place to sing for her living—all of them have worked for an opportunity to work. And they deserve a rest."

It is the girls and women of the unemployed class who have been enabled through the Y. W. C. A. to have a vacation from their troubles at nearby camps. People have generously contributed to the fund for jobless girls, according to Miss Hartman, and thus have aided many a weary girl to have a rest.

Helps Job Hunters.

Week-ends of camp life, swimming, canoeing and restful surroundings have gone far to reestablish a girl's self-confidence which becomes threadbare as she trails herself from one place to another in search of the elusive employment. Miss Hartman says that even a short rest stimulates a jobless girl so that she has new ideas and new energy and comes back better fitted to find a place in the industrial world.

The cost of a week-end at camp is $3.50, transportation over 37 miles being included. A week's stay costs $12. Some persons in contributing to the jobless fund specify the girls whom they wish to have vacations. Others leave it to the Y. W. C. A. to select needy girls.

A nurse and a dietitian stationed at the camp do all they can in a short time to repair the damages of the too-sketchy meals eaten by jobless girls as they scan the Wanted Female columns of the newspapers.

Girl Scouts' Camp.

Vacations for younger girls are provided through the local branch of the Girl Scouts of America at its Summer Camp down in the wilds of the Virginia mountains, about 20 miles from Harrisonburg.

Even Scouts whose families have to budget carefully to make ends meet go to this camp. The price per week, already low, has been cut again. It's now $9.15, including everything but transportation.

For those who can't manage this price the troops raise scholarships through entertainments such as teas, luncheons, cookie sales and anything their young, ingenious minds can contrive. When it's not possible to raise the entire amount partial scholarships are given.

The camp is situated on the banks of North River, which has been dammed to provide enough depth for swimming.

Learn Woodcraft.

Beside the river stands the "Lodge," a rustic affair built of rough-hewn beams and stone. Here the Scouts retreat on rainy days to tell stories and sing before the hearth fire.

In good weather they range far, on hiking trips through the mountains. Many hiking and riding trips take the girls away from camp for a night or perhaps several days. The older girls who go in for "pioneering" will have a strenuous time of it. The girls of this group take no equipment with them, use nothing other than what they can make. They build their own shelter, arrange their food in ceches, gather all their own firewood. It's primitive, but they love it.

For the younger ones camping is made easier but not less enjoyable. Equipment is taken with them in packs.

Five hundred girls each summer attend the camp, 125 each session of two weeks. Their ages range from 10 to 16 and 17. Occasionally a small sister just below the Scout age of 10 is admitted.

PILLAR S S TO POST

Meet Mrs. McMillin.

THE personality of Mrs. Lucille Foster McMillin has the irridescence, the charm and talent for frivolity associated with the fabled butterfly, while conversely she can improve the shining hours with all the ardor of the fabled bee. With her colorful background as the wife of a Governor who later became ambassador to several South American countries, her gift for story telling, her melting brown eyes and her delectable smile, she has been in constant demand for dinner parties in Washington since coming here to serve as civil service commissioner.

* * * *

A friend asked her how she could stand keeping such irregular hours, knowing that she was on hand for heavy conferences with the other commissioners at 9 every morning. "Oh, but I don't keep irregular hours," protested Mrs. McMillin. "I go to bed late regularly every night, and I get up early regularly every morning."

* * * *

Mrs. McMillin resided in Washington as a debutante, after graduating from Mary Baldwin Seminary. Here she met Benton McMillin, many years her senior and a member of the House. After two subsequent terms as Governor of Tennessee he spent nine years in the diplomatic service. For seven years they lived in Lima, Peru, a city that Mrs. McMillin considers a small Paris. There she became interested in Spanish dramatists. She lectured on them at Columbia University after her husband's death.

* * *

Her most outstanding accomplishment is public speaking. She frequently addresses women's clubs and political rallies. She tells this story on herself. Addressing a women's club, she noticed a woman in the front row gazing fixedly at her. Mrs. McMillin was flattered into thinking that she must be doing rather well. In the midst of congratulations after the speech, the front-row auditor made straight for Mrs. McMillin.

"My dear, there's a hairpin falling out."

Sailor's Wine Thrown Away By Lady Astor

PLYMOUTH, England, June 22.—Lady Astor, American-born representative in Commons, today chalked up another score against alcohol.

At a ceremony in memory of Sir Francis Drake yesterday, she grabbed a wine-filled goblet from a midshipman on the American battleship Wyoming and threw the wine into the river.

Before expressing her abhorrence of wine, Lady Astor had passed a loving cup filled with wine among guests, including officers and men of the Wyoming and the battleship Arkansas, on a training cruise here.

"I can not understand why men will leave home for this beastly stuff," she observed. She then drank the great admiral's health in water.

Books Wisely Chosen Develop Child's Sense of Possession

ITHACA, N. Y., June 21 (Spl.).—Family budgets should provide books for children, a shelf on which to place them, and a room in which the child may enjoy them.

These are convictions of Miss Katherine Reeves, instructor in the nursery school of the New York State College of Home Economics, who believes books help children to develop—particularly when the child himself realizes they are his personal property.

"A child should have his own books for the same reason that he is entitled to his own clothing, his own bed, his own food," said Miss Reeves. "The clothes and beds of other members of the family do not fit him. Their food does not agree with him. Books of his own, like a bed of his own, help him to develop more fully."

Volumes to Avoid.

Carrying about a bright, smooth book brings a feeling of satisfaction that can not be overestimated, Miss Reeves said. And the child's needs demand planning on the part of parents.

Books, she further pointed out, should help the child to live, and if they fail to do this then he is better off, while he is very young, never to have known them.

"If a book confuses him," Miss Reeves went on, "laughs at him, interprets life in a less true way than he has known, then it fails. But if it meets his needs, it will lead him to a higher level of knowledge and enjoyment.

On Choosing Books.

"In buying the right book for the right child, consider the child and fit the purchase to him as an individual. Choose substantial and truthful books with accurate pictures from which he may get a true impression."

Other standards to be observed in buying children's books, according to Miss Reeves, are:

"Choose books that are sturdy enough to stand the wear and tear of a child's handling; that suit his present stage of development, rather than those which may be listed as suitable for his own age; choose books that add to his experience and stimulate his thinking, and that do not conflict with life, and lastly, choose books that are well illustrated, well written and well planned as to paper, print and binding."

Vines Enhance Joy of Dining At This Cafe

Garden Setting Provides Cool Retreat for Hot Days.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

NOW IS the time for housewives to take a vacation—at least from the kitchen—and insist on being dined and wined in some expensive—their wives can tell them about a little tea room a cool, green spot. If husbands complain that these idyllic places are too far out—too few blocks from the White House.

A quaint gateway by the side of a small old-fashioned house leads into a vine-covered garden. Over the vines are orange-and-green striped awnings against the sun, green walls, green tables, a cool-looking concrete floor and tall trees all around make it an ideal summer dining spot. Inside the house two large rooms have been turned into a gallery of tables and chairs, not stiff, bare things, but covered to give both an air of comfort and coziness.

Here one may have a plank steak platter for only 50 cents. It is well served and tasty. The steak—a perfectly broiled filet mignon . . . surrounded by delicious potatoes and three fresh vegetables, make a dish for anyone.

Or, one can order a full course dinner, including everything from cocktail to dessert, for the same price.

The tired, hot, and hungry shopper may lunch well here for 25 cents, and for 35 cents she can literally feast.

• • • •

Variety in Olives.

The wise hostess is not the one who serves merely the recognized seasonable delicacies, but the one who takes her ideas from these and improves on them. For instance—olives. Few summer platters would be complete without olives to garnish them and add relish. And to be a bit different, it's easy now to serve olives flavored with other viands.

A local food shop has at least seven varieties: Quart jars of mammoth specimens, rich, and meaty. Jars of chopped olive meat already mixed with pimentos. Olives stuffed with small white onions. Olives stuffed with almonds, with celery, and olives stuffed with a combination of almonds, celery and peppers. And small or large pitted olives ready to be stuffed with cheese, bacon, or whatever the hostess pleases.

Bacon a la Ireland.

Twenty-eight years ago a smart American was traveling through Ireland. He became so attached to a certain type of bacon frequently served there that he bought the recipe, tied strings on it to insure its exclusive use, returned to this country and started a company. He puts out whole sides of this Irish bacon, as savory and flavory as bacon should be. There's a food store close to the shopping center which carries it nearly all the time. The manager says if a customer once tries it, she invariably returns for more. So—it must be good! And it isn't expensive.

• • • •

Kitchenware, Plus ——

A local department store not only features a serviceable kind of kitchenware, but even suggests things to cook in it. There's a sauce pan, aluminum with a hammered finish, which they say is just the thing for preparing Chinese rice. The rice cooks tender, flaky, and every grain separate. It's quick and simple to prepare.

Use two cups of rice which has been thoroughly washed. Four cups of cold water. Two teaspoons salt. Put into the sauce pan, cover it and set it over one-half of a full gas flame or electric unit set at medium. When the water boils—it should take 8 to 10 minutes—turn off the fire and let the rice steam 25 to 30 minutes without lifting the cover. That's all there is to it.

• • • •

Wooden Salad Bowl.

This is a season for salads, so naturally a season for attractive serving utensils. The gift department of a large store is featuring just now a wooden salad bowl on a copper base, together with a wooden spoon and fork. It requires little imagination to visualize this graced with letttuce leaves and sliced tomatoes with a mound of chopped-up vegetables mixed with mayonnaise. This could be used either as a side dish for a dinner or a course for a luncheon. And don't forget, no matter how delectable the salad, its setting is going to make it infinitely more tempting.

• • •

Macaroons by the Pound.

Macaroons and macaroons—for only 29 cents a pound today. And anyone who has ever bought a pound of macaroons knows how many, many macaroons come in a pound. If it's a small tea party they're wanted for, a half a pound will be plenty. This particular sale includes coconut macaroons, and half a dozen fruit flavors. Try them with sherbets! They're great!

Broiled Ham Makes A Feast in Summer

Quickly Prepared and Right in Flavor for Hot Weather, It Is Ideal Just Now Cooked With Pineapple Slices.

By Ann Barrett.

JUST a nice, juicy slice of ham—broiled about 8 minutes under a medium flame. You can't beat that for a flavorsome, quick-cooked summer meat. It's Marie Dressler's favorite. And that goes for a lot more folks, too.

Have it about 1 inch thick, so it won't dry out in the cooking. While it's broiling have some canned slices of pineapple ready in a flat bake dish. As soon as the ham starts dripping, baste the pineapple with some of the fat, sprinkle it with granulated sugar and set it in the oven. Then when ham is done (about 4 minutes on each side) set pineapple under flame till the top is glazed and delicately browned.

Thin Ham Steaks.

Ham steaks cut about ¼ inch thick (one steak weighing about 6 ounces after trimming served to each person) will cook more quickly still, in a variety of ways. There's ham steak country style, for example. For this dish, first fry your steaks quickly on each side in 3 tablespoons butter. (Use a heavy skillet, and brown ham quickly on both sides—not longer than 2 minutes to each side. But don't let butter burn while ham is frying.) Then keep ham slices hot while you make sauce as follows: Blend 3 tablespoons flour into drippings left in skillet. Stir over medium flame about 2 minutes, so as to brown flour lightly. Then slowly stir in 1½ cups rich milk and keep stirring till sauce is thickened. Add ½ teaspoon pepper, and salt if needed. Pour the sauce over the steaks and sprinkle with a little minced parsley. Hot corn bread or corn pudding is the thing to serve with this.

Spiced, Fried Ham.

Here's another delicious dish from thin ham steaks. Spread each steak with ½ teaspoon prepared mustard, sprinkle with ½ teaspoon vinegar and a little pepper. Then brown each steak quickly in 3 tablespoons butter, taking care not to burn it. Keep steaks hot on a hot platter, while you add ¼ cup grape juice and 2 teaspoons sugar to drippings in pan. Stir this sauce up while it is heating, and then pour it over hot steaks.

Send for More Recipes.

Of course there are many other ways to make ham into delicious summer dishes. My bulletin, "Ins and Outs of Cooking Ham," tells many good ways to enjoy this meat. Please be sure to send six cents in loose stamps with self-addressed envelope and coupon below.

What Today Means

"Cancer."

If June 23 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 8:30 to 10:30 a. m., from 12:30 to 2:30 p. m. and from 4:30 to 6:30 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:30 to 8:30 a. m., from 2:30 to 4:30 p. m. and from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m.

The principal activity evinced in business on this date will be the Saturday rush to get away from the office. You will save a lot of energy if you concentrate your morning efforts entirely on office detail work, for soliciting business or seeking interviews may result in a waste of time. You will find the majority of people socially inclined and pleasure-minded. This date will be a good one for married and engaged couples and the love-smitten to seek refuge from the city's heat and turmoil, by planning an excursion outside of the city's limits.

If a woman and born on June 23, your happiness in life will depend entirely upon how much importance you attach to money. If you will realize there is much more in life than the things that "filthy lucre" represents, or can buy, you will find a great deal of joy in living. You are naturally of a very generous disposition, but instinctive frugality many times controls your impulses, and causes you to do a good deal of unnecessary worrying. It might be wise to open your heart to the love that will be offered, and do not be afraid to show your appreciation of it. You have almost a genius for handling money and if you do not permit it to become your God, you will be financially successful. You will be very happy if you marry. It will be advisable to guard against ever becoming dictatorial. Bear constantly in mind every human being is entitled to its own individual opinion, and it is wrong to try to force anyone to accept yours. You will be gratified by being the recipient of a very pleasing letter or package. Being versatile, you can readily adjust yourself and capably fill almost any position requiring skill in the handling of money, with either a commercial or a professional firm. Your capability will receive recognition. Domestic life, however, is your best medium for real happiness.

The child born on June 23 will, as it grows up, differ very little from the average healthy, normal youngster. It will occasion you no more nor no less perplexities.

The man born on June 23 is instinctively a good business man and salesman. Many, following artistic or literary careers, display the foregoing characteristic in disposing of their work. If born on this date your appreciation of your own real merit and worth will prove of great aid and, if, in an unegotistical manner, you insist upon receiving what you know is right. A woman whose mentality is equal to your own, of a sympathetic nature, and with an opinion of her own, would be of great help to you as a wife.

How to Keep Well

Typhoid Fever and Your Vacation.

Because of the widespread use of chlorine in public water supplies and of improved methods of handling water used for drinking purposes, pasteurization of milk, and the like, typhoid epidemics that formerly spread terror to our communities, large and small, have been well-nigh eliminated. Typhoid fever, however, is still present in various parts of our country, and may be carried, if adequate precautions are not observed, from one part of the country to another.

As a rule the protection against typhoid contamination of water and milk is more perfect in the cities than in rural communities. This has been found to be true in New York State. Certain individuals who have had the disease are known as carriers and are capable of spreading it. Typhoid fever carriers are dangerous persons, particularly if they have anything to do with the preparation or serving of food. Furthermore, they may carry the bacillus of typhoid for months or years without apparent danger to themselves. They may be unaware that they are typhoid carriers. The bacillus has a tendency to linger in the intestinal tract, urinary tract, or in the gall bladder, and it is sometimes necessary to remove the gall bladder surgically before the carrier is completely freed from danger to others.

In spite of the remarkable reduction in the number of cases, the disease, when it does attack the individual, is just as severe as it was years ago. The treatment is symptomatic; the strength of the patient is supported, proper diet is prescribed, and the damage incident to the high and prolonged fever is minimized by proper temperature reduction methods. There is no known plan of stopping the disease once it has gained a foothold, and the remedy lies in prevention, not cure.

In these days of motor car travel with roadside camps every possible precaution must be taken against contaminated water, milk and food. Boiled water may be insipid, but it is safe. Swimming in contaminated streams or lakes into which sewage may be emptied is a potential danger. A gallon of water from an untested well may be rendered safe for drinking purposes by adding a drop or two of liquid chlorine or a dozen grains of hypochlorite of lime. Milk may be heated to a temperature of 145 degrees Fahrenheit and retained at that temperature for one-half hour, constituting pasteurization and rendering the milk safe.

Mrs. Duvall's Mint Julep Takes Prize

Mrs. Irving Fisher Hale Wins Second With Iced Coffee.

By Susan Mills.

RECIPES for cooling drinks literally poured into the office this week. They were many and delicious, and final elimination was difficult.

The prizes were awarded for recipes that were simple, original and practical. First prize of $3 goes to Mrs. Mary V. Duvall, Box 305, Edmonston, Del. Hers is a recipe for mint julep. Second prize of $2 is awarded Mrs. Irving Fisher Hale, 2101 New Hampshire avenue, Apt. 803, Wakefield Hall. For a spiced punch third prize is awarded to Mrs. Elmer Nelson, 918 F street northwest.

Many excellent recipes were regretfully discarded because of the limited number of prizes. Among these, honorable mentions were given Miss Evelyn C. Dean, Mrs. D. B. Zimmer and Miss Sarah E. Summer.

Mint Julep.

Place a bunch of mint in a bowl, sprinkle with pulverized sugar, add a little brandy and water. Bruise gently but thoroughly with a wooden pestle until the oil is pressed out. Place the bruised mint into a glass bowl and pour a cup of boiling water over it. Let stand for 15 minutes, strain and pour the juice into a pitcher that has been filled with crushed ice. Let stand a while and cover with French brandy. Garnish with sprigs of mint. It is best to gather the mint while the dew is still on the leaves.

• • • •

Iced Russian Coffee.

Melt 1 ounce square of unsweetened chocolate in a double boiler, stir in 3 or 4 tablespoons sugar then add gradually a cup of rich milk. Cook five minutes, add 3 cups cold strong coffee. Serve in tall glasses with crushed ice.

• • • •

Spiced Drink.

Make a foundation syrup of 1 cup water, 1 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon whole cloves (placed in cheesecloth) 1½ three-inch cinnamon sticks. Cook until a well-flavored syrup is obtained, remove spices and allow to cool. Add juice of 6 oranges, 6 lemons, 1 cup grapefruit juice, 1 cup pineapple juice, White cherry juice and water may be added if desired. Serve very cold.

Post to Hold Table-Cooked Dish Contest

NEXT week we plan to glorify the chafing dish. The subject for the contest will be dishes that can be prepared on the table, with the use of either a chafing dish or electric grill.

Mail all contributions to Susan Mills, The Washington Post. Your name and address should appear on each sheet. The number of recipes is not limited. All contributions should be received on or before Thursday of next week. Prizes will be the same, $3, $2 and $1.

Salvation Army Head Hopeful on Election

Evangeline Booth Believes Group Will Thrive.

NEW YORK, June 17 (U.P.).—Evangeline Booth, American commander and daughter of the founder of the Salvation Army, believes her farflung organization will carr on after the approaching August election of a world leader in London exactly as it has done before.

Interviewed about her own highly probable chances of being elected successor of Gen. Edward John Higgins as commander in chief of the international army, Commander Booth minimized the importance of such an eventuality.

"The spirit of the organization," said the 69-year-old executive of the more than 2,000 corps and 5,000 officers and cadets in the United States, "will continue regardless of who is general. Its devoted men and women, trained and inspired workers in the effort to lift upward those unforunate persons in the lowest strata of human society, are steadfast in their purpose."

SLANDER

By Arthur Somers Roche

Gerald Gerrish has been advancing money, on her own securities, to Martha Blaisdell and spreading rumors that he is supporting her. When she remonstrates, he retaliates by starting suit against her, charging that he advanced money to her on her promise to marry him. She leaves a note, breaking her engagement to Herbert Cranston, wealthy explorer, because of the scandal attached to her name; he follows to her home and finds Gerald Gerrish dead there. Dr. Peter Baxter is also in love with Martha.

"I WENT into the railroad restaurant and ordered something to eat. I went through several of the papers, thinking there might be something in them about"—she finished painfully—"last night. I took a long time over breakfast. Somehow, it seemed to me that I never wanted to see my apartment, to see any one I ever knew, ever again." Her eyes narrowed; they glanced toward the bedroom door. "We must do something," she said.

"Well, I finally decided to go to my apartment. What I'd do after that I hadn't decided. I came up here, unlocked the door and found Gerry here."

"He was in pajamas. He was out of his mind. I saw that instantly and started out. But he got between me and the door and said that if I left he'd make such a noise that the employes would come in. He said he'd give me more scandal than I could imagine. He'd been drinking, and I could tell that he wanted an excuse to bring people to the apartment. He raved. He talked about you and threatened all sorts of things. And he said that that summons last night was just the beginning. He said that those men had reported to him what Peter Baxter had said and he told me that he was going to sue Baxter. Then he stopped threatening and pleaded. He said that I was ruined unless I married him. He said he wouldn't leave my apartment, that he'd call in newspapermen, let them find him here in pajamas. And he asked me how I would explain that. I tell you, he wasn't merely drunk, he was mad. And I was frightened."

Key for Himself.

"He asked how I would explain that. He told me that when he had rented this apartment for me he had had a key made for himself. But he asked me who would believe such a statement if it came from me. I tried to calm him, and he simply laughed at me. He said that he'd not leave until he had my word that I'd marry him as soon as he got his divorce. He said that he wouldn't trust my word, and that he'd make me sign a paper admitting that I had borrowed money from him and that he'd given it to me on my promise to marry him. And then when I told him to telephone downstairs and ask the hallman to come up, when I told him to telephone the newspapers, he went completely, utterly, raving mad. For a moment I thought he'd kill me. He ran toward me and I was too frightened to move. But he stopped, turned, went into the bedroom and fell upon the bed. He was so silent that I went in there, and I saw he was dead."

Almost Insane.

"How long ago was that?"

"Have you been sitting here all that time?" he asked.

"I couldn't make up my mind what to do. How could I explain his being here, undressed? After all he said, after he brought a suit against me? I've been half insane. My God, who will believe what I've just been telling you?"

"I believe it," said Cranston quietly.

"You would. But who else would believe that he'd do such a thing, that he'd come to my apartment this way unless—unless he'd been in the habit of coming here? There isn't a thing to do except telephone the police. I've known that ever since he staggered into the bedroom and fell upon the bed. But I've put it off, hoping, praying that I could see some way out of it. But I can't. There isn't any way out of it."

Relied On Him.

Between his eyes appeared furrows. Desperately he tried to think of some response to her statement. She had phrased her hopelessness flatly, yet he knew that she put it as a question. She was relying upon him, in a moment when there could be no reliance upon any one.

"You stay here," Cranston ordered.

He walked to the bedroom door and opened it. The distortion of Gerrish's features had told him at his first glance that the man was dead, and a quick examination now merely verified what he already knew. Cranston had seen death many times. Men died from fever, from hardship, from sudden accident, in those explorations of his. But he had never seen death in so unpleasant a face as now. The man reeked of liquor, and his face looked as though not merely pain but terror had overwhelmed him in the moment in which he was struck down.

He turned away from Gerrish and looked about the room. There were the clothes which he had taken off and drunkely thrown upon the floor. There was a small handbag, initialed "G. G.," in which he had brought his night things.

Death From Stroke.

Cranston bit his lower lip. Amateur though he was in such matters, he knew that Gerrish's death had been due to an apoplectic stroke which had not been mitigated by his drunken condition. No blame—for his death—could attach itself to Martha. But there was no place in the civilized world where the name of Martha Blaisdell would not cause a lifting of eyebrows and the clatter of tongues. If she had been gossiped about heretofore because of her supposed relations with Gerrish, what would be said about her now when the man's body, clad for the night, was discovered in her bedroom?

Those friends of Martha who knew what a lying scoundrel Gerrish had been would accept her explanation. But the rest of the world would not believe her bizarre tale. Why should it? It is always so much easier to believe the obvious than to strain one's credulity in believing the bizarre. Also, the world liked to believe scandal. And the higher placed the subject of scandal was, the more readily the world believed whispers and insinuations. No woman on earth could live down the implications of this affair.

Terror for Her.

Not merely because he loved her, but because she was a woman in unjust distress, Cranston racked his brains to discover some way out of the situation. To his credit be it said that the fact that he hoped to make her his wife, and that such a scandal about his wife would make life almost unendurable for him, in no way entered his thoughts now. Not dread for himself, but terror for her stimulated his mind.

He thought, of course, of telephoning for a doctor. That was the natural thing to do; indeed, pertinent questions would be asked as to why Martha had not done this instantly.

But the doctor would have to file such report as physicians must always file in the event of death. By this afternoon, at latest, newspapermen would be questioning Martha. In despair he went back into the living room.

"What can we do?" she asked.

"If we wait too long——" she shuddered. "Can't a doctor tell how long he's been—dead? Won't a doctor think it's funny that we didn't send for him sooner?"

"I suppose he would," he admitted, "unless we got a doctor that would be willing——"

"Pete!" she cried.

Cranston put away an unworthy feeling of annoyance. In need like this, why should he care that Martha's tongue uttered, almost spontaneously, the name of another man? He wonder at, and was ashamed of, the quick jealousy that came to him.

"Of course," he said. He picked up the telephone and called Trudie Lemming's house at Green Point. "Dr. Baxter isn't here," Trudie's butler told him. "He left for New York about half an hour ago. He'll be back for luncheon, though."

Life and Death.

Cranston hung up, thumbed the pages of the telephone book and found the number of St. John's Clinic. In a moment he was speaking to the nurse that answered the telephone.

"Is Dr. Baxter there?"

"He's not in now," was the reply. "Do you expect him?"

"Is this a patient?" asked the nurse. "The docter doesn't like to see patients on Sunday morning. If it's very important——"

"Well," the nurse was reluctant, "in that case—the doctor is coming in shortly to see a case, a patient who can only see him on Sundays. I'll have him telephone if you'll give the number."

He gave her Martha's number.

"You'll tell him it's imperative, won't you?" he insisted.

"He should phone you in less than in 15 minutes," the nurse assured him.

Annapolis Forms Hub for Four Delightful Week-End Auto Trips From Capital

Routes Lead Through Many Famous Places

Summer Resorts Offer Refreshing Pauses Along Way.

This week we suggest a trip to some of the alluring spots east of Washington. Here are four different trips from which to choose.

Drive out Highway 50 to Annapolis and spend the morning browsing around the quaint old city named in honor of Queen Anne and known as "The Athens of America" in 1650. See some of the old buildings in which early American history was made, such as the Old Senate Chamber, where Gen. George Washington resigned his commission. It is open to visitors.

The Maryland Statehouse, the oldest wooden dome in America, maintains the same stolid dignity as in 1772. In its courtyard you will find cannon of Revolutionary days as well as of the World War period, the Old House of Burgesses, the first United States Treasury. There are many old buildings bearing the marks of the War of 1812. There is the Anthony Workman House, built in 1680. St. John's College, founded late in the seventeenth century, stands across the street from the United States Naval Academy. The Academy is open to visitors the year-round.

Beach at Mago Vista.

Drive on Highway 2 about five miles north of Annapolis, then turn to the right and you will discover Mago Vista, one of the finest bathing beaches within a day's driving distance of Washington. There are high and low diving boards over deep water, a hard-packed, clean sand beach and a green play-park for the youngsters. You will enjoy the afternoon there as well as the evening when the music from the splendid dancing pavilion floats over moonlit Chesapeake Bay. You will stay late and like it.

If you have another day to spare, then take the Stephensville Ferry from Annapolis across Chesapeake Bay and drive on to Rehoboth Beach. You will pass many interesting and historic marks such as the famous Oak at Wye Mills, old dwellings of another century that stands unchanged, little coves and bayous, hiding places of pirates back in the early seventeen hundreds, Maryland and Delaware farms that prosper along highways that are excellent.

Rehoboth Beach, "The Summer Capital of Delaware" can not be fully appreciated in a day. Here is to be found a richness of beauty and pleasures incomparable. It is the mecca for tourists where they may camp among the fragrant pines that border the beach. The streets of Rehoboth are walled with giant pines and great apple orchards grow within a stone's throw of the salty water of the Atlantic.

Sportsman's Paradise.

This section of the coast has become the sportsman's paradise. It is the winter home of the Canadian wild duck and hundreds of sportsmen may be found there during duck season.

Accommodations at either the Henlopen Hotel or Milton by the Sea are perfect. The food is perfect and the salt air makes you hungry.

Rehoboth affords salt-water bathing as well as fresh water bathing and canoeing in beautiful Silver Lake, within sight of the Atlantic Ocean. It has many charming drives and points of interest nearby, such as Lewis, where was located the Old Henlopen Light House of pre-Revolutionary days.

Less than two hours' drive south of Rehoboth is Ocean City, Md., the fisherman's paradise. Five fishing banks within easy reach of the resort make it almost impossible to come home empty-handed.

A Trip Across the Bay.

Concentrated at one end of the long board walk are a variety of amusements, and miles of clean, peaceful, sandy bathing beach. There are playgrounds for the children, and golf courses for the grown-ups. A good sea-food dinner is available.

Another interesting excursion is the one to the southeast from Annapolis. Take the ferry to Claiborne, across Chesapeake Bay. You will spend a pleasant hour and three-quarters on water first charted by Capt. John Smith in 1606 Here the first naval battle was fought in 1635, where the St. Margaret clashed with the St. Helen in the duel between the forces of Lord Baltimore and those of William Claiborne. In the concealed waters of Eastern Bay the brigantines captained by buccaneers under the old "Jolly Roger" once lay in wait to pounce upon unsuspecting merchantmen.

You will see Bloody Point, which won its name in an Indian massacre 300 years ago; the landing place of Claiborne; the pirates' execution grounds. Here every type of man-of-war has seen action or passed in review for three centuries.

Tilghman's Island.

Dinner is served on the boat and the stroll around the deck is enjoyed in ocean liner atmosphere as the steamer docks at Claiborne.

Motor 12 miles due south, cross the little drawbridge and you are on Tilghman's Island, famous for its fishing parties. You will find Capt. Ed Garvin and other experts who have comfortable fishing boats for hire. These crafty watermen know the habits of the various inhabitants of the "Choptank" and will take you where they are biting. Their rates are reasonable and the womenfolk are expert at cooking your catch. You should plan taking these fishing trips either early in the morning or late afternoon. Don't forget your fishing tackle.

Another interesting trip is the one directly south of Annapolis. There are scores of beaches, too numerous to mention, so take your choice. Visit them all and you will be ready to take the short cut home by way of Solomons Ferry and Highway No. 5, through Charlotte Hall and Waldorf.

Yale Sweeps Regatta on Thames

Crimson Fades in Final Mile as Elis Shatter 88-Year Record.

By Edward J. Neil.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 22 (AP).—President Roosevelt brought a stunning New Deal to the Thames this evening as a great Yale Varsity eight crushed Harvard in record-battering time in a fitting climax to the greatest regatta in all the 82 years of this hoary rowing rivalry.

It was the first victory for Ed Leader's varsity in four long years and the brawny boys in blue went all the way while they were about it, sweeping the river clean for the day's program, and winding up for the benefit of the Chief Executive and a crowd of fully 100,000 with the greatest performance in all the 72 races since the competition started in 1852 on Lake Winnepesaukee in New Hampshire.

10 Seconds Under Record.

The Elis, stroked by Johnny Jackson, son of a New Haven publisher, pulled down 4 miles of swift and perfect water from Bartlett's Cove to the railroad bridge in 19 minutes 51 4-5 seconds to pull the mark under 20 minutes for the first time and blast by over 10 seconds the record of 20:02 set by Harvard in 1916.

Harvard, trailing for all but the briefest of seconds just after the start, came down the river three full lengths behind at the finish, but still two-fifths of a second under the old record.

The President, bringing to a close a full day full of excitement, fun and adulation, proudest in New London's recent history, rode down the river behind the varsities on the referee's boat, The Dodger III, just as he did this morning when his son, Franklin, jr., pulled the No. 6 oar in the Harvard shell that bowed to the Yale freshmen by a length, forcing 180-pound 6-foot-4-inch junior to give up his shirt to his Eli rival at No. 6. Ted Griggs, of St. Paul, to his great disgust.

It was Yale's first clean sweep of the three races on the program since the big Eli eights of 1928 and 1929 rowed the Crimson fleet off the river. Yale won the junior varsity

Cubs Rout Giants In 15-2 Slugfest

Chicago, June 22 (AP).—Their most humiliating defeat of the season was plastered on the world champion New York Giants today as the third-place Chicago Cubs, inspired by their 4-to-0 overthrow of Carl Hubbell yesterday, continued on an 18-hit rampage that brought them a 15-to-2 runaway victory.

While Bill Lee, six-foot three freshman right hander, shut out the Giants until he had a 15-run lead in the eighth inning, to run the champions' string of scoreless innings here to 19, his mates, led by Chuck Klein, disposed of Southpaw Watson Clark with two-run clusters in the second and third frames and then continued their bombardment against Clydell Castleman the rest of the route.

Miss Faunce Golf Finals Winner

Medalist Scores Over Mrs. Pray by 4 and 3 for D. C. Title.

DEFYING the hoary tradition of golf that the medalist never wins the tournament, Miss Winifred Faunce, of the Manor Club, yesterday stroked her way to the District of Columbia women's championship in her finals battle with Mrs. L. C. Pray, also of Manor.

Miss Faunce conquered Mrs. Pray by a score of 4 and 3, to bring to the Manor Club its first District women's title, after setting the pace in the tournament from the start with her round of 82 that was the low medal score in the competition at the Columbia Country Club.

Never behind in the finals match with Mrs. Pray, Miss Faunce swept through to victory as easily as she had disposed of her three previous match play opponents, Mrs. Don Scott, of Indian Spring, and Mrs. Harry A. Knox and Mrs. Jack Scott, of Congressional.

Abandoned Golf Once.

The new titleholder received her M. A. degree from Columbia last June after having abandoned golf in favor of horseback riding. Not until a few weeks ago did she resume her golfing with the District women's championship as her goal.

Yesterday she drove long and accurate tee shots, chipped well, and was guilty of three putts on only two of the 15 greens. Miss Faunce scored a 41 for the first nine and went to the tenth 4-up. Miss Faunce won the second and fourth, with pars, the fifth with a 6, and the eighth with a spectacular birdie deuce. Miss Faunce knocked a spoon 7 feet from the eighth pin and sank her putt, beating Mrs. Pray's par 3.

Miss Faunce went 5-up by winning the eleventn, but she lost the twelfth to Mrs. Pray's par 5 by three-putting as Mrs. Pray took one putt. Mrs. Pray won the fourteenth with a par 4 when Miss Faunce knocked her opponent's ball into the cup. The match ended on the fifteenth, which Miss Faunce took with a 5 to Mrs. Pray's 6. Mrs. Pray won only two holes during the match.

Mrs. Dowdall Wins.

In the first flight consolations, Mrs. J. F. Dowdall, of Congressional, defeated Miss Elizabeth Houghton, of Chevy Chase, 2-up. Mrs. Dowdall shot an 88.

Prizes were presented by Miss Elizabeth C. Harris, District Women's Golf Association president.

Red Sox Amass 18 Hits; Rout Chisox

Pound Out Gaston to Win, 11-1, Making It Three Out of Four.

BOSTON, June 22 (AP).—The Red Sox continued their terrific hitting as they swamped the Chicago White Sox, 11 to 1, today to make it 3 out of 4 in the current series, which will end tomorrow.

Starting early against their former teammate, Milton Gaston, the Red Sox slammed out 18 hits in all. Fifteen of these were made off Gaston, who finally surrendered the mound duties to Joe Heving.

Lefty Ostermueller, who has been furnishing Boston with some brilliant pitching of late, was effective throughout. The only run he allowed came in the fifth frame, when Evar Swanson nicked him for a triple to the left-field corner and crossed the plate later on an infield out.

Phillies Conquer Reds In Tenth Inning, 4-2

Cincinnati, June 22 (AP).—A bunt that failed today cost the Cincinnati Reds a chance to make three straight for the first time since the season opened. As a result, the Phillies won, 4 to 2, in ten innings.

With two on and none out, Harlin Pool attempted a bunt that the alert Phils turned into a double play, and Comorosky flied out to shatter Redland hopes. The Phils won at last in the tenth as Allen beat out a bunt, Todd doubled, and Jeffries singled both runners in.

Baer and Primo Agree It's Hot At Meeting in Hospital Room

NEW YORK, June 22 (AP).—The new king of fight paid a visit to the old today.

Primo Carnera—he's the old king—lay abed in the Columbus Hospital, his broken ankle encased in plaster-of-paris and hung up on a rope, like a leg of beef.

Max Baer—he's the new king—resplendent in a tailored checked coat, stepped briskly across the threshold, accompanied by a girl friend, several of his retinue and a couple more even harder to identify.

Primo grinned. Max grinned. They shook hands.

"Well, boy, here I am," said the large Venetian.

"Whew!" said Max, "It's hot in here."

"Yes, sir, boy, here I am," said Primo.

Silence.

Brothers Meet.

Max's face lit up. He reached into the crowd and pulled out a 19-year-old boy, almost as big as the Primo.

"Meet my brother," he said.

The fallen fight monarch motioned for his own brother to step up.

"Meet my brother," he said, proudly.

"Sure a lotta brothers around," said Max.

"Yeah," said the Primo.

A dapper little man stepped up. "Now, boys," he said, with a note of enthusiasm that seemed to be

Browns, A's Tied, 3-3, When Storm Breaks

Philadelphia, June 22 (AP).—The Athletics and St. Louis Browns played a 3-3 tie today. Darkness and storm halted their game in the first half of the eighth.

St. Louis averted defeat in the sixth when Higgins' wild throw put West on base, and Pepper followed with a home run that wiped out the A's 3-1 lead. The Browns had one out and none on in the eighth when time was called.

Indians Score, 4 to 1, Over Gomez

Deal, Yankee Mound Star, Second Loss of Year; Even Series.

NEW YORK, June 22 (AP).—The thirteen jinx caught up with Vernon (Lefty) Gomez today and the New York Yankees' ace left-hander dropped his second game of the season after winning 12 games. The Indians evened up the series by defeating the Yankees 4 to 1.

Since the opening game of the season against the Atheletics when he was replaced in the sixth inning, Gomez had finished every game in which he started until today. The southpaw star received ragged support throughout the seven innings he was on the mound, his teammates making three errors.

Keeps Hits Scattered.

Monte Pearson, the Indians' southpaw twirler kept the seven Yankee hits well scattered, after the Yanks put three singles together to send Earl Coombs across the plate for their first and only run in the opening inning. Pearson was never again in danger.

Gomez retired for a pinch hitter in the seventh and grizzly Burleigh Grimes finished the game. The veteran Grimes filled the bases in the ninth with nobody out, but pitched himself out of the hole without being scored upon.

The Indians picked up a run in the second inning on singles by Hale and Trosky and an infield out. Ben Chapman's wild throw gave them another in the third while Bob Seed's single drove two more home in the sixth.

Everett, Va, Star. Failure on Coast

Eliminated in Qualifying for Hurdles Events.

Los Angeles, Calif., June 22 (Spl.). Grover Everett, University of Virginia's star hurdler and the hope of the Old Dominion in the National Collegiate Athletic Association track meet, was elminated from competition today when he failed to qualify in either the high or low hurdle events.

Everett was shut out in the fourth heat of the 120-yard high hurdles, finishing far back among a field of six, the first two of whom qualified. The heat was run in 14.9 seconds and was won by Lee Haring, of Kansas State Teachers.

The 220-yard low hurdles heat in which Everett attempted to qualify saw him run fifth in a field of seven, the event being won by Vincent Reel, of Occidental, in 23.5 seconds. Abernathm, of North Carolina, finished fifth in a previous heat and also failed to qualify.

Wood Gains British Net Finals

LONDON, June 22 (AP).—In what amounted to a practice session for Wimbledon and the Interzone Davis Cup play, Frank Shields and Sidney B. Wood, jr., today defeated their American teammates, George M. Lott, jr., and Lester Stoeffen, respectively, in the All-American semifinals of the Queens Club tournament.

LOTT

So harassed by the umpire's decisions that he finally demanded of that official "If you can't see them ask us and we'll tell you." Lott fell an easy prey to the towering New Yorker, 6—3, 6—4.

The Wood-Stoefen duel was a battle to the last gasp with the polished game of the New Yorker finally wearing down the bludgeoning Californian, 2—6, 18—16, 6—3.

Wood Draws Praise.

All four players showed streaks of sparkling tennis, Wood's exhibition especially drawing praise and possibly assuring him of a singles assignment in Davis Cup play with Shields.

Wood and Shields will play tomorrow for a title won three times by Americans in the last few years and shared in 1933 by Stoefen and Ellsworth Vines, jr., when rain prevented their final meeting.

The Davis Cup team of Lott and Stoefen made a rather sorry showing in losing a semifinal match of men's doubles to the British pair of Ian G. Collins and F. H. D. Wilde, 6—0, 11—9. Previously Wilde and Collins had put out Shields and Dave Jones, the former Columbia University star, 6—3, 6—2. Williams and Wood won a quarter-final match from the Japanese players, Jiro Yamagashi and Jiro Fujikura, 8—6, 6—8, 6—1.

Miss Andrus Wins.

Dorothy Andrus, American girl from Stamford, Conn., defeated the unranked Englishwoman, Mrs. Molesworth, 3—6, 6—4, 6—3, to win final brackets in singles against Jacqueline Goldschmidt, of France. Miss Andrus also paired with Mme. Jung Henrotin, also of France, to upset the defending champions, Elizabeth Ryan, the former Californian, and Mme. Rene Mathieu, of France, 8—7, 3—6, 6—3, in doubles. She

Crossing Over Comes From Far Back to Win in Charles Town's Feature Race

Day's Riding Big Factor In Win

Filly Defeats Darktown by Half Length in 5-Furlong Dash.

By Walter Haight
(Post Staff Correspondent.)

CHARLES TOWN, West Va., June 22.—Crossing Over, a three-year-old daughter of Big Blaze and Tokio, may live to find Johnny Gilbert, Sonny Workman, Don Meade, Mack Garner or one of the other fashionable jockeys in her saddle but she will never get a better ride than that of one J. Day. It was the boy's ability as much as the horse's that the combination was able to win the feature race here in the mountains today. The filly bounded a half negth infront of Darktown which in turn had a six-length advantage over Jeanette K., a 35-1 shot.

Started Slowly.

Those who had tickets on Crossing Over probably would have sold them for a dime a dozen when the field jumped away on the five-furlong dash. She was shuffled back and had only one horse beaten at the start of the backstretch run. Hinight, Golden Measure and Justa Sunbeam were doing the chief running in the order listed. However, both Crossing Over and J. Day were determined. The filly began finding her speed and young Day began picking the holes. Steadily she marched up on the leaders. She swung around the final turn like a wild horse and went on to take care of Darktown, one that assumed the pace-setting position at the far turn.

Daily Double Small.

It was a powerful piece of riding and one that may bring Day more mounts. Crossing Over was only so and so in the betting and paid an $11.40 mutuel.

The daily double proved one of the shortest in the history of the track. Linnie, winner of the first and Easter Herald, which made it two victories in as many days, teamed to provide a parlay pay-off of $9.80.

The day's major upset came in the second race. Maisonette moved up in the stretch to defeat Barnstormer and reward with a $38.60 mutuel.

Cronin Names Pitchers for Twin Bill

Weaver Opposes Sorrell in Opener; Thomas or Stewart in Second.

By Frank H. Young.

JUDGING from the manner in which the Nats snarled at each other in the locker room after the Tigers had snatched a victory out of their grasp, they will be out there fighting this afternoon when a double-header ends the local series against the Detroiters.

Sitting on their bench before that terrible eighth which the visitors staged, Cronin and his gang took an inventory and figured that, with the Yankees having already lost to the Indians and with yesterday's victory in their grasp, it would be possible for them to go into first place today, provided they won twice and the Yankees were beaten again.

But a few minutes later their dreams were interrupted by the crack of the Tigers' bats and when they started figuring things out again they discovered that, instead of having helped themselves while they were taking it on the chin, both the Indians and Boston Red Sox had sneaked up to a virtual tie with them.

Manager Cronin will use Monte Weaver and either Al Thomas or Walter Stewart today, while Fred Marberry and Vic Sorrell are expected to do the flinging for the visitors.

It took brilliant plays to keep Heinie Manush and Charley Gehringer, who are staging a duel for the league's batting championship, from getting any safeties. A great stop by Mel Owens robbed Heinie of a hit in the fourth after Joe Kuhel had snagged a burning liner off Gehringer's bat in the first half of the frame.

The naming of Joe Cronin, Nat leader, as manager of the American League's All-Star team, which will oppose the pick of the National League in New York on July 10, seems to have acted as a tonic to the local skipper. The fact of the matter is that Joe has not had many occasions to be happy this season—that is, in a baseball way. Not only has his team been a disappointment—although he won't admit it—but his own batting slump, which lasted well over the first two months of the season, had him quite worried.

The Nats certainly were versatile in turning in twin murders. They made their fourth of the game in the sixth and no two were alike. On the two made in the fifth and sixth, Detroiters were scoring at the time, but the plays accounted for the second and third outs.

Frank Doljac, who pinch-hit for Fischer in the Tigers' big eighth, had two chances, as the batting order went around to him a second time. He hit into a force play his first time up, but doubled on his second chance. He scored twice during the round.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LINNIE, $6.80, $4.40, $3.00; PEGGY CAN, $9.40, $6.40; PARADE ON, $4.20.

LINNIE, away quickly, had speed to get to the front at once, was rated in the lead thereafter, went slightly wide in the stretch and, hard ridden to the end, just lasted. PEGGY CAN broke well, was unable to match the speed of the leaders, but moved up fast and, closing gamely, just failed to get up. PARADE ON had good early speed and closed fast on the outside.

SECOND RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $250. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 2:55. Off at 2:59. Winner, W. Lee Grant's ch. f. (2), by Claptrap—Shanty. Trained by G. Foreman. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 1:02 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MAISONETTE, $38.60, $8.00, $4.40; BARNSTORMER, $5.60, $4.00; DIXIE PRINCESS, $5.60.

MAISONETTE, slow to find her best speed, moved up with a rush, wore down BARNSTORMER and was well in hand at the end. BARNSTORMER had good early speed, gave way to winner, but was much the best of the others. DIXIE PRINCESS raced evenly throughout.

THIRD RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:25. Off at 3:35. Winner, Mrs. C. M. Feltner's b. g. (4), by Easter Bells—Aanunciation. Trained by C. M. Feltner. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 1:01.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—EASTER HERALD, $6.00, $3.80, $2.80; CAPTOR, $3.60, $2.60; JOBS DIDO, $3.80.

EASTER HERALD, away well and having good speed, was sent to the front at once and placed under steadying restraint, saved ground on the rail and was never threatened. CAPTOR was a forward contender at all times. JOBS DIDO raced evenly and slightly wide and was tiring at the end.

FOURTH RACE—Six and a half furlongs. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, driving. Went to post at 3:58. Off at 3:58½. Winner, Mrs. R. K. Yingling's ch. g. (4), by Trojan—Mary Jane. Trained by B. Grason. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 1:22 4-5.

| LADY LAWYER | 115 | 4 | 8 | Fell | | | | O'Malley | 6.10 |

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HANDLEY, $4.60, $3.00, $2.20; MORDROM, $4.00, $2.60; EN PASSANT, $2.80.

HANDLEY, away well, raced lapped on MORDROM in the lead until reaching the far turn, drew out easily when asked and was in hand to the finish. MORDROM had good early speed while holding with HANDLEY, could not withstand the latter's challenge, but was easily the best of the others. EN PASSANT raced evenly, but could not improve her position.

FIFTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:22. Off at 4:23½. Winner, Mrs. W. R. Waush's b. f. (3), by Big Blaze—Tokio. Trained by E. H. Gaines. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 1:01 4-5.

| HERODS SON | 107 | 3 | 7 | 7 | 7 | 7 | 7 | Scarpulla | 48.40 |

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CROSSING OVER, $11.40, $5.20, $3.40; DARKTOWN, $7.60, $4.20; JEANNETTE K., $6.80.

CROSSING OVER was taken back at the start, weaved his way through and, under severe urging, was up in the final strides. DARKTOWN, a forward contender at all times, assumed a short lead in the stretch when the leader went wide and hung on well. JEANNETTE K. gradually improved her position and was moving up quickly when carried wide.

SIXTH RACE—Five furlongs. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:46. Off at 4:48. Winner, Bernard Bond's b. g. (5), by Aromatic—Petty Cash. Trained by J. B. Bond. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 0:23 1-5, 0:35 2-5, 0:48, 1:01 1-5.

| LITERATE | 109 | 5 | 7 | 7 | 7 | 7 | 7 | Steen | 83.90 |

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SMALL CHANGE, $4.60, $3.40, $2.60; GIGGLEY ANN, $5.20, $3.60; JANE PORTER, $3.20.

SMALL CHANGE had his usual good early speed to take command immediately, was rated in front, disposed of GIGGLEY ANN, but had to be kept under pressure to the end. GIGGLEY ANN raced in closest attendance to the leader, at times made a bid for supremacy on the final bend, but could not get up while having no excuses. JANE PORTER, away well, saved ground throughout and closed steutly. PERSIAN STAR, early speed, TRENTONIAN had a flash of speed. BRILLIANT GIRL showed a dull effort and was never prominent.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $250; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gates. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 5:13. Off at 5:14. Winner, Mrs. M. M. Vine's dk. ch. m. by Singlefoot—Sailing Along. Trained by D. Gray. Value to winner, $200; second, $35; third, $15. Time, 0:24 4-5, 0:49 2-5, 1:13 2-5, 1:40 1-5, 1:46 2-5.

| LADY GOLD | 111 | 5 | 4 | 1½ | 1h | 2h | 7 | Williams | 6.40 |

Two-dollar mutuels paid—LIGHT BREEZE, $5.40, $3.80, $3.00; HOSAIN, $4.20, $3.60; SAND BELL, $3.20.

LIGHT BREEZE, slow to find her speed, trailed the field until turning from the back stretch, moved up quickly on the inside and, under punishment, wore HOSAIN down. The latter raced LADY GOLD into submission to take command after entering the back stretch, was rated in front thereafter and, saving ground, just failed to last. SAND BELL, rated off the early pace, closed with good courage. TRENTONIAN, slow to find his best speed, closed steutly. RUBE SAMUELSON had good speed, but tired and pulled up slightly lame.

At the Post . . .

with Bill Bennings.

First race—I prefer Doc Conner in the opener. He has taken three purses here and his last was a keen effort. Gets 5 pounds from Busk Ike and that may be the difference between these sprinters. Glisk is dangerous in this company and has a fighting chance to upset them.

Second race—Nora's Grace appears to be the best here. She runs as an entry with Aella. The latter could take the purse, although that last was not impressive. Maxyniata can not be too lightly regarded at the weights.

Third race—I called in Clocker Mike on this race and we discussed Nay Nay and Schley B. He leans to Nay Nay off that last victory. Schley B. has been freshened up. Looks like a close fit. Whirry, another that won last out, will have something to say about the money distribution.

Fourth race—Scotty Don was a well meant horse here earlier in the week and might have collected the main end of the purse in a few more hops. He will have Bonsoir to take care oof tomorrow. This one will draw the bul kof play. Barcelona Pete for the show.

Fifth race—Chatterfol comes to this recommended by Clocker Mike. He says this fellow has burned up the course in the morning. Fusco has improved several notches since arriving here, and will be in the thick of the battle. Pro Bono will close fast.

Seventh race—Bokie B. is about as reliable as Clocker Mike's luck in the hoisting machines. However, the veteran should earn a purse in this race. Bless Her Heart and Timber Fire for the rest. A horse named Palm Broom has been whispered around, and I'm passing the information along for what it's worth.

Eighth race—The Gen seems to have found his speed, and will be a hard horse to beat in the final. Helen's Alibi and Post Brigade for the place and show.

Manners' Late Spurt Wins Detroit Feature

Detroit, June 22 (AP).—C. E. Smith's fast-finishing Manners nipped Crackle in the final sixteenth today to win the fifth race at the Detroit fair grounds by two and a half lengths.

Crackle, making her first start of the season, ran a nice race, leading handily in the early stages and succumbing only to Manners' closing rush. She finished second, paying $11 to place while Manners' price to win was $6.80 for $2.

Curb Bit Victorious At Washington Park

Washington Park, Ill., June 22 (AP).—Tiffany's Curb Bit galloped to an easy victory today at Washington Park in the best event of a dull program caused by adverse weather conditions. A heavy rain caused the feature event, the sixth race, to be called off and only seven races were run.

Curb Bit ran the six furlongs in 1:16 1-5 and paid $9.58 in the $2 mutuels.

Stocks Stage Sharp Decline On Larger Sale

Many Active Issues Drop as Trading Mounts to 931,750 Shares.

New York, June 22 (AP).—The slow downward drift of stock prices became a sharp decline today under a heavy last-hour burst of selling.

Many active issues throughout the list tumbled 1 to 3 points as a sudden wave of selling stirred the market out of its summer lassitude.

The market seemed to fall of its own weight for there was nothing outstanding in the news to accelerate its drift into the sell-off witnessed after the ticker at 2:15 had registered the daily delivery hour on transfers.

List on Downside.

The list emerged on the downside from the narrow range it had been moving in for nearly two weeks. Its technical action, bearishly interpreted, brought in selling from professional traders and tuched off some stop-loss orders around the recent resistance levels.

In the final hour, trading on the stock exchange was heavier than the sum of the turnover in the preceding four hours. Volume for the day totaled 931,750 shares against 498,110 yesterday. The Standard Statistics Co. average price for 90 stocks dropped 1.8 points to 77.5. It was the fourth consecutive session of decline.

Scattered liquidation in Hudson Motors and a few other shares imparted a soft appearance to the market most of the day. But leaders held up until the late selling wave.

Hudsons at New Lows.

Commission house gossip that a pool account was being liquidated could not be confirmed and there was no news to explain its special weakness.

Losses were reduced a bit by a feeble rally toward the finish. U. S. Steel common, U. S. Smelting, Chrysler, Auburn Auto, American Beet Sugar preferred, Armour of Illinois preferred, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, American Smelting & Refining, Standard Oil of New Jersey and J. C. Penney were among shares showing losses of about 1 to 3 points at the close.

Rails Join Declines.

Rails joined industrials on the decline, despite a contra-seasonal gain of 2,084 cars in the weekly railroad freight movement report.

Santa Fe, Pennsylvania, New York Central and Northern Pacific shares were off fractionally to more than a point on the day.

Traders saw no reason for taking a near-term bullish stand as they studied forecasts of a seasonal downturn in operations of some industries next month and tried to fathom implications of Federal control of exchanges starting July 1.

The Dun & Bradstreet weekly trade review noted that retail business was resisting seasonal influences well and expressed the view that the major recovery trend had not lost its grip on business. One of the leading mail order companies reported its sales for the four weeks ended June 18 in dollar value were 25 per cent ahead of the like period of 1933.

Foreign Markets.

London, June 22 (A.P.).—Trading on the stock exchange was inactive today. Gilt-edged securities were firm, while the German Dawes loan weakened following Dr. Schacht's talk on foreign debts. Oil shares and transatlantic issues weakened, while gold mining shares were irregular and rubber stocks dull. Home industrials were steadier. The market closed irregular.

Paris—Led by rentes, prices on the bourse strengthened, gold mining shares being particularly strong. Young loan securities were lower on Dr. Schacht's speech. The closing was firm.

Berlin—A cheerful tone was recorded in an active session on the boerse today. Prices recovered yesterday's losses and moved to higher levels. The closing was sustained.

Naval Stores Firm.

Savannah, June 22 (A.P.).—Turpentine firm, 48½; sales, 210; receipts, 417; shipments, 322; stock, 7,762. Rosin firm; sales, 722; receipts, 1,341; no shipments; stock, 98,358. Quote: B, 4.15; D, 4.20; E, 4.30; F and G, 4.37½; H, 4.40; I, 4.45; K, 4.50; M, 4.55; N, 4.60; WG, 4.70; WW and X, 4.80.

Cleaning and Dyeing Industry Revolt Will Give Test of Whether NRA Can Make Any Lasting Contributions on Labor Conditions.

By Ralph West Robey.

In the revolt of the cleaning and dyeing industry against its code the NRA is faced with a problem that goes to the very bottom of the ability of this attempt to regulate business to confer lasting benefits upon society. Specifically, it raises the question of whether under the NRA as it now stands the Government is in a position to impose minimum working standards for labor. If it can not, and if the cleaning and dyeing industry is not forced to comply with these provisions in its code, it means that even in its social aspects the NRA will prove to have been a mere flash in the pan.

On the side of the cleaning and dyeing industry is the fact that it agreed to minimum hour and wage provisions on the understanding that prices would be fixed at a sufficiently high level to cover these additional costs. One can not say definitely, I suppose, that if the price fixing had not been given the industry it would have refused to come under a code, but it is probable that this is true. In any case it generally is agreed that such price fixing, production control, &c., have been concessions that it was essential for the Government to make in order to get large sections of industry to sign up under the NRA.

Is Now Evident That Concession Was Bad.

To say now that this concession probably was not worthwhile from the point of view of helping business or improving the condition of labor merely is to repeat the obvious. In some industries the price fixing and production control provisions have worked smoothly, but as a general thing they have caused more trouble than any other phase of the NRA. Those industries in which they have not caused trouble for Washington have been, by and large, the industries that readily lend themselves to monopoly control—the industries in which there are comparatively few units and in which the capital investment necessary for efficient production is too large to make entry into the industry easy. Steel is a good example.

In the rest of our industrial system any attempt at price fixing was doomed to failure from the start. More accurately, it was doomed to failure unless the Government was willing to put an army of enforcement agents in the field. Since the Government could not do this it was only a matter of time until the NRA would have an unbearable problem of enforcement on its hands. At no place was this more evident than in the cleaning and dyeing industry with its 11,000 cleaning plants and 175,000 retail outlets.

NRA Officials Should Have Recognized This Obvious Fact.

It always seemed to me that the NRA officials should have recognized this obvious fact from the start and steered clear of price fixing in the service industries even, if necessary, at the cost of not getting the industries under a code. Having failed to do so, they soon had the inevitable choice between putting pants pressers in jail or eliminating the price-fixing feature. It is to their credit that they selected the latter course.

Now, however, comes the more difficult problem of trying to make the industry comply with hour and wage provisions that probably never would have been acceptable to the industry without the price-fixing privilege. Technically, because of the right reserved for the President to change any of the provisions in the codes, they probably have all the needed legal authority, granting the law is constitutional. This, nevertheless, will not remove the question of enforcement of such provisions on an industry that maintains the burden can not be carried unless prices are held up. This may well prove to be just as hard a task as trying to maintain the minimum prices and, politically, just as full of dynamite.

It is a task, nevertheless, which NRA can not shirk. And upon its outcome, as stated above, will rest to a large extent whether NRA is to give us lasting social benefits or prove to have been a mere flash in the pan, both socially and economically.

Second-Grade Bonds Drive Prices Down

Federals Regain Losses; Sales Volume Cut to $10,869,000.

New York, June 22 (AP).—The downward trend in secondary domestic corporate loans was extended in today's bond market, although high-grade issues showed good resistance and some actually closed higher.

The Government department regained most of the ground lost the day before and the foreign list was moderately unsettled by weakness in Australian and German issues.

Trading was less active. Transfers totaled $10,869,000 par value, compared with $13,609,000 the previous day. The turnover in governments aggregated about $3,300,000 against $5,700,000 on Thursday.

The Standard Statistics Co. average for 90 domestic corporate loans declined four-tenths of a point to 86.3.

The softness of secondary bonds was described by brokers as largely the development of a sympathetic trend with stocks, which sold off sharply during the course of the day, and was not associated with any specific news or economic development. The rallying tendency of the Government list and the dogged resistance shown by highest grade corporate issues was pointed to as significant indication that the underlying position of the market was good.

A handful of issues like C. & O. 4½s, Santa Fe 4s, American Telephone sinking fund 5s, Consolidated Gas 5½s, Brooklyn Edison 5s, Detroit Edison 5s, Cleveland Union Terminal 5½s, New England Telephone 5s, Pacific Telephone refunding 5s, Pennsylvania Railroad 5s, United Biscuit 6s, and West Penn Power 5s, equaled or came within a fraction of their highs of the year before yielding slightly along with the general list.

Many of the most active issues lost one or more points, including some loans of Alleghany Corporation, Boston & Maine, Canadian Pacific, Chicago & Northwestern, St. Paul, Rock Island, General Cable, Interborough Rapid Transit, M-K-T, New Orleans Public Service, New Haven, Pan-American Petroleum, Pittsburgh & West Virginia, Postal Telegraph, Richfield Oil, Southern Railway, Western Pacific and Warner Bros.

Australian 5s declined nearly 5 points and the City of Brisbane 6s yielded around half that much. German 7s were more than a point lower, and Cuban 5½s declined about a point. French 7s and Paris-Orleans 5½s were a point or more higher.

Curb's Prices Drift Lower In Quiet Sales

Favorites Move Downward as Transfers Rise to 183,000 Shares.

New York, June 22 (AP).—Curb exchange favorites moved quietly lower today. Only a few specialties were able to resist the downtrend, but losses were generally of a minor nature.

Transfers picked up a little from Thursday, approximately 183,000, compared with 154,000 in the previous session.

Some of the oils were especially weak, led by Humble with a drop of 1⅝ points and Gulf with a loss of 3. Standard of Indiana declined fractionally, while International Petroleum slipped nearly a point.

Swift & Co. and Armour & Co. (new) were in some demand and displayed a firm tone. Fisk Rubber gained ½ a point.

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Zinc—Producers are showing interest in another move to curtail concentrate production in the tri-State district, "which, if successful, might result in a firmer situation in that metal," says the current issue of Metal and Mineral Markets.

Floor covering—Reports in the trade say a large number of carpet and rug manufacturers favor the proposal that current prices should be carried over to the fall season. The new lists will be disclosed during the week of July 9.

Tin—Demand for the metal is fairly active, but most of the business is said to be of a speculative character rather than consumer buying. Tin plate operations are reported at below 70 per cent of capacity and a further recession is expected.

U. S. Treasury Receipts.

(Associated Press.)

The position of the Treasury June 20 was: Receipts, $90,402,383.23; expenditures, $125,486,189.06; balance, $2,687,516,358.54; customs receipts for the month, $13,991,648.27.

Expenditures, $6,851,124,353.93 (including $3,839,328,707.29 of emergency expenditures); excess of expenditures, $3,308,567,939.23; gold assets, $7,835,036,354.73.

(United Press.)

| | This year. | Last year. |
|---|---|---|
| Expenses | $6,851,124,353.93 | $4,960,207,945.50 |

321 Big Industrial Companies Improve Their Cash Positions

New York, June 22.—An analysis of the financial positions of 321 large industrial corporations in this country, prepared for the 1934 edition of Moody's Industrial Manual now being published, reveals that throughout the depression these corporations have consistently improved their cash positions in relation to total current assets

The number of corporations involved in the study includes every industrial corporation for which comparable data are available back to 1926, the first year of the study.

From 1929 through 1933, cash and marketable securities of the 321 corporations (exclusive of cash in closed banks, which was eleminated from the study) decreased from $3,026,000,000 to $2,644,000,000, or 12.6 per cent. At the same time, notes and accounts receivable fell from $2,256,000,000 to $1,417,000,000, or 37.2 per cent, while inventories declined from $4,784,000,000 to $3,388,000,000, or 29.2 per cent. The net result was that, in relation to total current assets, cash rose from 29.73 per cent to 35.36 per cent and receivables fell from 22.16 per cent to 18.95 per cent. The percentage of inventories to total current assets, however, exhibited only a mild decline, falling from 47 per cent to 45.31 per cent. Total current liabilities declined from $2,088,000,000 in 1929 to $1,301,000,000 last year, a drop of 37.7 per cent. The "current ratio," that is, the ratio of current assets to current liabilities, rose from 4.87 in 1929 to 5.75 in 1933.

"The total bonded debt of the corporations involved in the study reached a peak in 1928 at $2,774 million," says Moody's. "From then it has declined consistently to $2,156 million in 1933, a drop of 22.3 per cent. The decline since 1929 has been 14.9 per cent.

"In 1933 a reversal of trends in effect since 1929 was evident in most items, in reflection of the increase in business activity, which occurred last year. Thus, as compared with 1932, inventories of the 321 companies rose from $3,091 million to $3,388 million, or 9.6 per cent, and receivables from $1,332 million to $1,417 million, or 6.4 per cent. Cash declined slightly from $2,731 million to $2,644 million, or 3.2 per cent, reflecting largely accumulation of inventories, and the current ratio dropped from 6.41 to 5.75.

"The exceptionally strong cash position which our large corporations have been able to maintain in spite of the depression and in spite of the numerous bank closings last year, reveals the extent to which industry has become independent of the banking system," concludes Moody's. This trend has been in evidence for some years past. It furnishes a partial explanation of why bank loans have failed to increase in the past year despite the sharp rise in industrial activity. It also indicates that the act providing for direct loans to industry, recently signed by the President, will affect primarily the smaller companies, as the large corporations are apparently quite adequately provided with working capital.

A. & P. Stores Net Drops To $20,478,190

National Power and Light Profit Is Reduced to $6,615,768.

New York, June 22 (AP).—Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. reports for the fiscal year ended February 28 net income of $20,478,190, against $22,732,772 in the preceding year.

Net for the year (Great Atlantic & Pacific) was equal to $8.94 a share on the common stock, against $10.02 a share in the fiscal period ended February 28, 1933.

Reporting for the year ended December 31, 1933, American & Foreign Power Co., Inc., subsidiary of Electric Bond & Share Co., shows net income, before exchange adjustments, of $5,006,819, against $7,079,052 for 1932. Balance of income for the year, as adjusted, was $1,181,161.

Gross operating revenues of subsidiaries totaled $57,513,331, compared with $53,137,081 in the previous year. The consolidated balance sheet of December 31 shows $13,305,777 cash, against $10,670,703 at the close of 1932. Current assets aggregated $34,970,682, against $30,841,105 on December 31, 1932. Current liabilities, including $30,000,000 notes payable, were $60,574,068, against $62,976,283.

National Power & Light Co. reports for the year ended December 31, 1933, net income of $6,615,768, equivalent after preferred stock dividends to 90 cents a share on the common. This compares with 1932 net income of $8,545,780, or $1.26 a common share.

For the twelve months ended March 31, net income amounted to $6,677,635, against $7,770,465 for the period ended March 31, 1933.

Chicago, June 22 (AP).—Montgomery Ward & Co. today reported a net profit of $1,048,849 for the month of May, contrasted with net loss of $548,347 for the same month of 1933.

In the four months ended May 31 the mail order-retail store company made a net profit of $3,309,946. A year ago the loss for the same period totaled $2,744,446. The figures were after all charges and provision for taxes, based on a conservative book inventory.

Boston, June 22.—A dividend of 20 per cent, payable on all policies expiring in August, has been declared by the American Mutual Liability Insurance Co. This is American Mutual's 551st consecutive dividend of 20 per cent or more.

The Dollar Abroad

(Associated Press.)

The dollar gained ¼ of a cent in London, closing at 5.03½ to the pound. Sterling declined ⅛ of a cent in New York to 5.03½, near its recent low point.

In Paris the dollar lost half a centime at a closing price equivalent to 6.59⅛ cents to the franc. The franc declined .00¼ of a cent in New York to 6.99½ cents.

The price of gold in London increased a half penny to 138 shillings 1 penny a fine ounce (equivalent to $34.77). Bars valued at about $805,800 changed hands.

Wool Market.

Boston, June 22 (A.P.) (United States Department of Agriculture).—Some further direct business was done on Texas 12-month wool at prices estimated on a scoured basis in the range 70@73 cents delivered East. Prices on the average 12-month lots were not fixed but sales mostly 70@72 cents, while choice staple lots in original bags were currently estimated at 73@75 cents scoured basis. Demand, however, was not very broad and sales were of mostly moderate volume. Quotations on spot 12-month Texas wool continued at mostly 80@83 cents scoured basis.

Cotton Prices Decline Under Liquidation

July Closes at 11.89 as General Market Falls Nine Points.

New York, June 22 (AP).—After advancing slightly during early trading, cotton eased off under near-month liquidation and scattered realizing or selling promoted by the easier ruling of the stock market.

October cotton, after selling up to 12.29 early, or 8 points net higher, broke to 12.14 in the late trading and closed at 12.18, with the general market steady at net declines of 9 points on July and 1 to 4 points on later deliveries.

The opening was steady at an advance of 1 to 5 points in response to relatively steady Liverpool cables and reports of continued hot weather in the Western belt.

Trading Picks Up.

Trading picked up on increased demand from commission house sources and active months sold about 7 to 8 points net higher during the morning, with July advancing to 12.04 and December to 12.40.

These prices seemed to attract realizing, however, and July liquidation in preparation for possible notices next Tuesday became active.

Differences between July and later deliveries widened out, and this, combined with realizing and scattered selling, caused prices to ease. July declined to 11.87 and December to 12.26 in the late trading, making net losses of 5 to 11 points.

The influence of unfavorable weather reports from the Western belt was evidently offset to some extent by reports of continued clear weather in the East, where farmers are supposed to be catching up with their field work following recent rains.

There were further complaints of dry weather in Texas and increasing boll weevil infestation in Eastern and Central belt sections, but they evidently failed to materially stimulate demand.

Exports today, 9,381, making 7,217,424 so far this season. Port receipts, 8,281. U. S. post stocks, 2,645,977.

Cottonseed Oil.

Bleachable cottonseed oil was irregular today and following early steadiness on covering and buying by refining interests, prices reacted under increased liquidation in July and selling by trade interests. Final prices were net unchanged to 4 points lower on active positions. Sales were 53 contracts. The advance in lard and continued firmness of hogs was probably responsible for the early steadiness and in a measure offset the easiness of stocks and lower corn market. Bleachable spot nominal; July closed 5.55, September 5.72, October 5.78, December 5.99, January 6.05.

U. S. Plans to Reopen Ohio Weather Bureau

The weather bureau at Dayton, Ohio, one of 23 stations closed a year ago for economy's sake, will be reopened within two months, bureau headquarters revealed yesterday. Officials said the Dayton station was particularly necessary because of its location in an area where temperature changes are "critical."

6-23
IT'S GOLD! THE REAL STUFF. FROM HARTFORD OAKDALE'S MINES. TAKE ANOTHER GOOD LOOK AND.....
OAKDALE? HA, I MIGHT HAVE KNOWN WHEN YOU SAUNTERED INTO THIS HOUSE LOOKING SO DIPPY THAT YOU, TOO, WOULD COME HOME STUFFED RIGHT UP TO THE EARS.
IN OTHER WORDS, YOU DON'T THINK THIS IS GOLD, EH? WELL I FELT THE SAME WAY BEFORE HARTFORD EXPLAINED...
HE EXPLAINED TO PEGGY TOO.....SO WELL, THAT SHE STROLLED IN WHILE MONTGOMERY EL DORADO WAS HERE AND MENTIONED IN AN OFF-HAND WAY THAT OAKDALE WAS WAITING DOWNSTAIRS FOR HER.
WELL I DON'T KNOW ANYTHING ABOUT THAT, BUT TO PROVE THIS IS GOLD I'LL CALL UP ANY JEWELER IN TOWN AND.....
OH GEORGE, I THOUGHT NO ONE COULD SEEM SILLIER THAN PEGGY DID IN MENTIONING OAKDALE'S NAME TO MONTGOMERY, BUT YOU SHOULD SEE YOURSELF LOOKING AT THAT PIECE OF RUBBISH AS THOUGH IT WAS THE SUN.

A FINE HOW D'YE DO!
WHAT'S UP, BIG BOY?
I'M SPARRIN' MATE FER THAT BLITZEN CHAP- I FOPS 'IM A BIT TOO 'ARD- 'E GOES OUT- AND I GET THE SACK FER IT!
WHAT? YOU KNOCKED BLITZEN OUT!
AYE! AND PUT MESELF ON ME UPPERS AG'IN; BROKE AND OUT O' WORK!
JUST A MINUTE, BIG BOY! THERE'S SOMETHIN' I GOT TO FIND OUT AN' FIND OUT QUICK! - HOP IN HERE - I'VE GOT A JOB FOR YOU!

NAPOLEON AND UNCLE ELBY — By Clifford McBride

DIXIE DUGAN — A Sly Hint — By J. P. McEvoy and J. H. Striebel

UNCLE BEVVY — I FEEL SO SELFISH ABOUT DIXIE — I HAVE ALL THAT MONEY AN' I HAVEN'T DONE A THING FOR HER — AN' THINK OF ALL SHE'S DONE FOR ME!
NOW, HONEY- YOU MUSTN'T THINK OF FRIENDSHIP AS A MATTER OF GIVE AND TAKE IT MADE DIXIE VERY HAPPY TO HELP YOU BUT IF YOU TRIED TO PAY HER FOR IT IN ANY WAY — THAT WOULD DESTROY THE SPIRIT OF THE WHOLE THING AND PROBABLY MAKE HER VERY UNHAPPY
CERTAINLY, IF SHE WERE IN NEED — OR IF SHE EVER IS — YOU'D HELP HER — BUT SHE ISN'T NOW AND SO YOU MUSTN'T TRY TO DO ANYTHING FOR HER —
AHEM — YOU MUST LET ME DO IT
NOW WHAT HAS UNCLE BEVVY GOT IN MIND? 6-23

THE GUMPS — Bottom's Up

A STRIKE! I SNEAKED ONE OVER ON BIM THIS MORNING- HE'S STILL SOUND ASLEEP- AND WILL I SHOW HIM A STRING OF FISH WHEN HE WAKES UP-

COME ON, SPIT IT OUT! I DON'T ANSWER RIDDLES!
I JIST SAW LARCENY LU, THE DAME THAT CONTROLLED THIS AUTO-STEALING RACKET BEFORE YOU TOOK IT OVER WHEN SHE WAS SENT UP THE RIVER.
LARCENY LU? WHY- I DIDN'T EVEN KNOW SHE WAS OUT OF STIR!
AND LISTEN, JERRY- SHE HAD A TOUGH HOMBRE WITH HER. A PLENTY TOUGH LOOKING EGG.
SO WHAT?
YOU DON'T SUPPOSE THAT DAME'S GOT ANY IDEA OF COMING BACK AND TAKING OVER HER OLD BUSINESS, DO YOU, EH?
WHAT DO YOU THINK- YOU DOPE?

Weather Prophets.

It has been hotter here than Tophet, and drought dried up the plain; and still the locoed weather prophet kept on predicting rain. The growing crops were killed or wilting, and death o'ertook the flowers; and still the prophet kept on lilting of cool impending showers. The vines and stalks and roots were rotting, a frightful scene in June; and still the prophet kept on wotting that rain would come full soon. A scientist of lofty standing, who once seemed safe and sane, was, from his shining perch, outhanding glad prophecies of rain. He'd studied every sign and token, as other prophets did, and said. "The drought will soon be broken or I shall eat my lid. We soon shall have a four-year cycle of waters rolling high, and men will call on Pete and Michael, and beg for weather dry. The spots upon the sun are showing the drought will soon look sick, and steams of water will be flowing where dust is two feet thick." It's strange how we, amid our grieving, in times of dread and fears, still keep on trusting and believing the tin horn weather seers. Pursued by various disasters, you'd think we'd rise and say, "Let's round up all these cheap forecasters and dump them in the bay."
